Hit The High Note!

Our family recently watched an old episode of the Honeymooners.

On the show, Ralph (Jackie Gleason) pulls out his old trumpet and regrettably remembers all the things he had started in life but never really finished. His tag-line is, "I never could hit the high note". He makes a pledge to change, to reach his potential and to hit the "high note" in life.

I've been thinking about our uncanny ability to rise to the challenge and do absolutely incredible things when we need to, but then when we're not challenged, we also have the ability to settle into the boring land of mediocrity.

Too many times we allow the demands of life to determine whether we live in the state of average or the nation of greatness.

The absolute greatness of our God ought to determine the greatness of his people. I encourage you today....

"hit the high note".

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

January 28 was a milestone day for me. My first daughter is moving away to start her independent life in Arlington, Va. Well, she is moving in with her longtime friend Cate Conroy.

I enjoyed almost every minute since she entered my life on Aug. 17, 1986. Well, I didn't enjoy the 10-hour-plus labor to push her out of my body, but when I first saw her I fell in love forever. I saw a newborn baby, holding her head up and looking straight in my eyes with her beautiful blue eyes. I knew she was strong, beautiful, and healthy –what every new mother wishes for. And I never changed my mind about her. I have always been very proud of her.

I was able to hold my tears back as she made several trips to the car carrying stuff through blowing snow, her long ash blonde hair blowing in the wind. But when she went out the door for the last time and I didn't have a chance to kiss her, then the tears started flowing.

Of course, I planned to address a serious problem of mine. My glasses are shot, and even my spare pair is no good at all. But Sears' optical department has a sale on glasses: two pairs for $99. Pretty good deal. I hoped to go to Sears in Morgantown so I could see my girls. But this morning, a major winter snow storm from the south and west hit our area. I can't blame my friend Sheri for being unwilling to give me a ride as planned.

Sheila Southerly called to alert me about a big West Virginia basketball game this afternoon. And right now, it is very close to the end – a very close game with Louisville. But I can't see well enough to keep up with the score or time. During the last few minutes, there was controversy over which team touched the ball last before it went out of bounds. The referees gave it to WVU. That call let the Mountaineers score some points, and the final score was 77-74, in favor of West Virginia. It was a big win for the Mountaineers. They have had a very good season, and were ranked ninth in the country before this game.

When the WVU basketball program is among the top teams in the nation, tickets for their games are hard to get. Bill Southerly was unable to score any for the big win against Louisville. Then someone e-mailed him Saturday morning saying that he had a couple extra tickets. But since the weather was terrible, Bill and Sheila turned them down. So that means another nasty dose of winter prevented two trips to Morgantown today. You just never know how bad conditions will be, and we have more than enough snow for drifting to be possible.

I got up early, as usual, and I turned on the news. The southern part of the East Coast was a mess, with lots of icy roads, etc. I was somewhat concerned about Cheryl Bender, who was supposed to drive up to her home from Florida. But she and Tim arrived safely Saturday morning. While she was gone, she ran another race. This was a five-miler, and she placed fifth among 50 women.

Rodney and Marci spent the weekend in Baltimore to attend their son's band performance. I called Claire Saturday afternoon. She answered her cell phone in the Baltimore area and was visiting with the Glotfelty clan. She said there was lots of snow there.

There are few policies as popular as tax reduction. The Republicans of the House asked the president whether he supports an across-the-board tax reduction. Then after he replied, they badgered him about the deficit and the national debt.

Although we didn't get the worst of the southern storm, it brought terribly cold weather here. Sunday morning I got up to the coldest house I ever experienced. I was afraid I had run out of heating oil. But thank goodness, my most helpful friend Jack Beitzel came down and checked the level of oil in the tank. He also cleared my lane. It was not in terrible shape, just about five or so inches of new snow, which is not bad as long as we don't get wind.

Sunday's roads were good enough to allow my friend Sheri and me to take a trip to Morgantown to get my new glasses. I was also able to see Caitlin and Mere for a couple minutes.

We did have some fun shopping in the mall. But I was very restrained with my spending. My sister was afraid there would be a big slush mess at the Morgantown Mall, and I wouldn't be able to get into it. But we were able to pull up to a door only a few yards from the optical department, and there was absolutely no ice or slush. It was fun, which I needed that night. I did not regret that I missed the Pro Bowl, which is just a big money-making, meaningless game.

But here we are again at Super Bowl time. I plan to root hard for the New Orleans Saints, because that city really deserves to celebrate.

Last week, our president delivered an intelligent and dignified State of the Union address.

One way that President Bush kept his deficit from going even higher was that he cut the U.S. share of funding for the United Nations and UNICEF. That was a no-pain cost savings, at least until the Haiti earthquake hit. One of the most well-prepared and reliable disaster response organizations is UNICEF. But unfortunately, it was under-funded and ill-prepared to help after the earthquake.

Almost everyone who saw the devastation in the news hoped that our government would respond fast and generously, which it did. Many individuals did also. Since we are the major nation closest to Haiti, we bore the heaviest load in first response.

One of the most valuable resources was the big mobile hospital from Baltimore that provided hospital resources unavailable in Haiti. It is also useful anywhere in the world.

I don't know whether it was deployed to the Gulf Coast when Hurricane Katrina hit, but it should have been, because thatcoast line was so destroyed that it lost most of its hospitals. But it does cost some big money to maintain and staff it. That is the one expensive item that shouldn't be cut out of our budget.

This week it affected the Medevac helicopter flights from Haiti, which is a terrible thing. Some very critical patients were unable to have access to the care they needed, not just to save their lives, but also to prevent permanent disability.

CHRISTMAS IS ALL ABOUT GIVING, and that was demonstrated once again this season by the managers of a local club and a business establishment. Phyllis Williams, manager of the Deer Park Sportsman's Club, and Robin Bittinger, manager of Mooney's Pub at the Oakland Golf Club, held another successful Tender Hearts Christmas for Garrett County children. The pair led the effort to provide gifts for 53 local children in need, working with staff from Garrett County Social Services, the Dove Center, Crellin School, and Friendsville School. Donations were provided by the sportsman's club members and local businesses, and guest bartenders at Mooney's raised $1,150 in just three hours. "We want to sincerely thank all who supported this effort," said Williams, "particularly the members and patrons of the club and of Mooney's. We extend a special thank-you to the Delligatti family of Garrett 8 Cinemas for providing a free movie showing, popcorn, and beverages to all of these children and their families." The fundraiser also provided a $250 donation to the local Warm the Children program. She added that a number of cards and letters of thanks were received from the families and the schools of the children who were served. Williams is pictured above flanked by fellow guest bartenders Ray Hanline and Earl Simpson, both members of the Deer Park Sportsman's Club.

CRELLIN STUDENTS BRING TROUT INTO THE CLASSROOM – Students at Crellin Elementary School will be participating in the Trout in the Classroom project for the second year. This project allows students to learn about the life cycle of trout, conduct chemical water testing, and give back to nature. Prior to the arrival of the trout eggs, Alan Klotz, DNR and member of the Garrett County chapter of Trout Unlimited, conducted a lesson with students about chemical water quality. He is pictured above with a group of fifth grade students. Neil Jacobs, also a member of Trout Unlimited, brought eyed Kamloop rainbow trout eggs for the fifth graders to temper by bringing the temperature up one degree at a time from 46.6° to 52°, which is the aquarium temperature. Once the eggs were at 52° students put them in the egg basket to hatch. Fifth grade teacher Mrs. Sanders (below) also assisted students with the tempering of the eggs. Students will continue to care for the trout until the fingerling stage, when they will be released into Snowy Creek behind the school.

Groundhog Day – They said on the television news that it is cloudy today. So I guess it will depend on how much sleep the ground hog got last night and/or how good his eyesight is as to whether he will see his shadow.

Regardless of what they say, I am sure we will still have another six weeks of winter. And it's too bad that the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals weigh in on it, saying that it traumatizes the groundhog. I am all for the decent treatment of animals, but it has nothing to do with the groundhog starring in Groundhog Day. It is just another example of reality television.

I seriously doubt that any groundhog from Bittinger is awake from his winter sleep, because it is too cold. I heard that the groundhog did see his shadow, which I suppose means we will have six more weeks of winter weather. I don't believe there will be any spring-like weather like the kind that makes our skunk cabbage appear. I never saw any real spring-like weather here in Bittinger until well into April.

Oakland Man Found Guilty Of CDS Possession

In recent Garrett County District Court proceedings, Michael Adam Kile, 25, Oakland, was found guilty by Judge Leonard J. Eiswert for a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) possession of paraphernalia charge, and was sentenced to $307.50 in fines.

Garrett County sheriff's officers and members of the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force executed a search and seizure warrant in May 2009 of an Oakland residence, and upon entry, Kile was located in the living room. A search of the residence revealed loose marijuana on top of a dresser and on a stool, a foil smoking pipe with marijuana residue, three bags of marijuana, a set of digital scales, marijuana residue in an Altoids can, a cigar box with a marijuana butt, and a glass pipe containing marijuana residue.

Kile was placed under arrest and transported to the Garrett County jail. He was not prosecuted on a CDS possession of marijuana charge.

In a separate case, Thomas Charles Carr, 51, Oakland, was not prosecuted on five charges of failure to comply with a peace order, two charges of second-degree assault, three charges of trespassing on private property, and one charge each of harassment as a course of conduct, fourth degree sex offense, malicious destruction of property valued at less than $500, theft less than $100, and opening letters without permission. His charges stemmed from altercations with another adult between May and October 2009.

DUI/DWI HEARINGS

The following driving while under the influence (DUI) and driving while impaired (DWI) cases were heard in Garrett County District Court, with Judge Eiswert presiding.

Kurt Edward Johnson, 40, Texas, was found guilty for a DWI charge from November 2009, and was sentenced to 30 days with all being suspended, one year of unsupervised probation, and $257.50 in fines. He was not prosecuted on charges of DUI and DUI per se.

Sarah Patricia Duck, 30, Md., pleaded guilty to a November 2009 DWI charge, received a probation before judgment (PBJ) verdict, and was sentenced to 30 days with all being suspended, one year of unsupervised probation, and $257.50 in fines. She was not prosecuted on charges of DUI and DUI per se.

Benjamin D. Ledewitz, 28, Pa., pleaded not guilty to a November 2009 DWI charge, received a PBJ verdict, and was sentenced to 30 days with all being suspended, one year of unsupervised probation, and $257.50 in fines. He was not prosecuted on charges of DUI and DUI per se.

Joseph Daniel Wakefield, 25, Md., pleaded guilty to an August 2009 DWI charge, received a PBJ verdict, and was sentenced to 30 days with all being suspended, one year of unsupervised probation, and $257.50 in fines. He was not prosecuted on charges of DUI and DUI per se.

Michael Alan Hechmer, 24, Md., pleaded guilty to a January 2009 DWI charge, received a PBJ verdict, and was sentenced to 30 days with all being suspended, one year of unsupervised probation, and $257.50 in fines. He was not prosecuted on charges of DUI and DUI per se.

Adam Eugene Fazenbaker, 42, Md., was charged in November 2009 with DUI, DUI per se, and DWI. His charges were placed on stet with no conditions given.

Town Hall

OAKLAND UPDATE
by Mayor Peggy Jamison

Census 2010: Every 10 years, a census of our population is conducted. The results help determine how federal funds are spent in our community on things like roads, parks, and other public services. The 2010 census count is just around the corner, April 1, 2010. When you receive your census form, please do not throw it away. It is so important that everyone be counted.

Recycling program in jeopardy: As noted on your recent water/sewer bill, Oakland residents are reminded to participate in our recycling program. With our severe budget crisis, this program may be in jeopardy. Unfortunately, the participation by Oakland residents is minimal, and we are concerned that it is not cost effective. Obviously, recycling helps to extend the life of our landfill. It also helps the county meet recycling goals as required by the state. Oakland's current recycling program allows for recycling of cans, newspaper, and also cardboard. Blue recycling bags are available for purchase at Oakland City Hall.

Winter changes: As a cost saving measure, during the winter months we have turned off the lights on the walking/biking path from the town parking lot to and including the Glades walking path. In addition, we have closed the public bathrooms in the town parking lot and at the Glades pavilion. The restrooms will be reopened in the spring when the weather permits.

Oakland Armory/Community Center: Persons interested in walking indoors during weekdays may obtain a walking pass at Oakland City Hall for $2 per month. The facility is also available for rent by any interested persons. Feel free to contact Oakland City Hall at 301-334-2691 for rental availability and information.

We extend a compassionate helping hand.

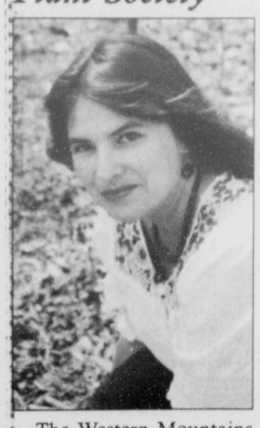
Hernandez Will Be Speaker For Plant Society



The Western Mountains Chapter of the Maryland Native Plant Society will hold its regular meeting at the Appalachian Laboratory in Frostburg on Tuesday, Feb. 16, at 7 p.m. The guest speaker will be Mimi Hernandez, the new coordinator of the Appalachian Center for Ethnobotanical Studies.

Hernandez, pictured above, will give a PowerPoint presentation titled "Bridging the Gap: Scientific and Traditional Uses of Plants." Her program will begin immediately following a brief business meeting. The public is welcome to attend.

Hernandez will lead a discussion on ways to bridge a traditional awareness with a scientific understanding of plant medicine. She will describe the difference between scientific and traditional evidence, and how persons can learn to "speak the same language." She will highlight examples of traditional applications versus novel scientific uses of plant medicine.

Hernandez is an herbal educator whose courses balance traditional reverence with scientific understanding. A professional member of the American Herbalists Guild, she received a master of science degree in herbal medicine from the Tai Sophia Institute. With roots in Asheville, N.C., she is the founder of the One World Healing Arts Institute and former president of the N.C. Herb Association. She also draws upon her Latino background and the "granny healers" in her life.

The Appalachian Laboratory is located along Braddock Road just off Interstate 68 at Exit 33, Frostburg.

The Maryland Native Plant Society uses education, research, and community service to increase awareness and appreciation of native plants and their habitats leading to their conservation and restoration. Membership is open to all who are interested in Maryland's native plants and their habitats. Preserving Maryland's natural heritage, increasing knowledge about native plants, and helping to further the society's mission are the goals of the organization. MNPS sponsors monthly meetings, workshops, field trips, and an annual fall conference. More information can be found online at www.mdflora.org

The Western Mountains Chapter has formed to expand the efforts of MNPS on the Allegheny Plateau and ridge and valley physiographic provinces of the central Appalachians. Residents of western Maryland, nearby Pennsylvania, and West Virginia, and anyone else interested in learning more about and conserving the native plants of the region, are invited to join. For more information, persons may telephone Liz McDowell at 301-895-3686 or visit the chapter web site at www.mdflora.org/chapters.

Since Heaven Has Become Your Home,
We Sometimes Feel We're So Alone;
Though We Now Are Far Apart,
You Hold A Big Piece Of Our Heart.
We Never Knew How Much We'd Grieve
When It Was Time For You To Leave;
Or Just How Much Our Hearts Would Ache,
From That One Fragment You Would Take.
God Lets This Tender Hole Remain,
Reminding Us We'll Meet Again.
One Day All The Pain Will Cease
When He Restores This Missing Piece.

Love you always,
Doris, JoAnn & Pat

Network 2000 has researched and analyzed the 2008 proxy statements of the public companies headquartered in the state. First United Corporation is one of six companies out of 13 that have 20% or more of their board seats, directors and executives, filled by women.

"It is an honor to be selected 'Best of the Best' by Network 2000," stated William B. Grant, chairman and CEO of First United. "The bank is committed to recruiting and developing talented individuals at all levels of the company."

Local Republican Women Attend Leadership Event

The Maryland Federation of Republican Women (MFRW) gathered in Annapolis recently for their annual leadership conference. MFRW president Ruth Umbel, a native and resident of Garrett County, welcomed about 80 leaders representing 42 clubs from throughout the state to the event, thanking them for their dedication and willingness to serve.

"This is going to be a banner year for Republicans in our state," Umbel said. "Through training programs like this, we teach our leaders to help their members to be more politically active, informed, and ready to volunteer."

The conference coordinator was MRFW third vice president Catie James, also a native and part-time resident of Garrett County.

Guest speakers included Joyce Lyons Terhes, Maryland National Republican Committee member; Kim Jorns, Maryland Republican Party executive director; and Lawrence Scott, a professional campaign strategist.

"All proclaimed that with help from MFRW leadership and all Maryland's community club members, this can be a great year for Republicans," a conference attendee noted.

Scott also shared highlights from the Massachusetts campaign strategy and reviewed how that plan could be successful in Maryland.

Maryland state delegate James King (R–Dist. 33 A) gave a brief report on the 2010 Maryland General Assembly session, and agreed to work with the federation's legislative chair on ways MFRW can help to influence legislation important to its members and communities.

Conference participants were invited to the MFRW Valentine Fundraiser on Feb. 15 in Annapolis to meet and share political views with candidates for various seats in the upcoming November elections.

A brief presentation was given on activities planned for the MFRW State Legislative Red Scarf Day, slated for Feb. 23 in Annapolis. Members will don red scarves, attend a legislative session, and attend a hospitality event with legislators.

The MFRW is a member of the National Federation of Republican Women, headquartered in Arlington, Va., with organizations in all 50 states and U.S. territories. To learn more about the state federation and upcoming events, persons may call 301-387-4026.

Strange BUT TRUE

• It was American journalist, author and humorist Don Marquis who made the following sage observation: "Procrastination is the art of keeping up with yesterday."

• A giant carnivorous plant has recently been discovered on a remote mountaintop in the Philippines. The second largest pitcher plant on record, nepenthes attenboroughii secretes a nectar that lures insects, frogs and even rats into its trap, where enzymes and acids break down the animal and digest it.

• There has been a lot of debate about whether older drivers should be required to pass driving tests in order to renew their licenses, with failing sight and diminished judgment being cited as reasons for the more stringent requirement. However, statistics tend to indicate that, as a group, teenagers are the more dangerous drivers, with their auto-accident death rate roughly triple that of the elderly.

• If you're thinking about going back to school during this economic downturn, you might want to consider working toward a master's degree in business administration. The average salary increase enjoyed by new MBA holders is a whopping 64 percent.

• The men's formal attire known as the tuxedo takes its name from the Tuxedo Park Club in New York, where the clothing first became popular. The word itself is derived from the Algonquian word for wolf.

• The man who holds the world record for running 100 meters and 200 meters, and who has won three Olympic gold medals, is a Jamaican by the name of Usain Bolt. Yes, Bolt.

• The Zagat restaurant rating system recently conducted a survey of Americans' tipping habits. The results? It seems that residents of Philadelphia are the most generous tippers in the nation, leaving an average of 19.6 percent. The average across the country is 19 percent.

• On Feb. 14, 278 A.D., Valentine, a holy priest in Rome, is executed. Ruler Claudius the Cruel was having a difficult time getting soldiers to join his military because of their strong attachment to their wives, and had banned marriages. Q: I have a large "Leaves and Berries" jardinière in green made by McCoy. It was originally one of a pair. What might I expect to pay for its mate? — Marie, Victoria, Texas

A: According to Warman's McCoy Pottery: Identification and Price Guide by Mark F. Moran (Krause, $24.99), the jardinière and pedestal are valued in the $225 to $275 range. I suspect if one surfaces in a shop or on eBay, it might sell for much more since McCoy is still very trendy and hot.

Q: I have an old Bible that was published just before the American Civil War. It is bound in leather and quite elaborate. Is it collectible? — Steve, Pueblo West, Colo.

A: Verily I say unto you, just because a Bible is old doesn't necessarily mean it is valuable. To contact an expert, I recommend William J. Chamberlin, vice-president of the International Society of Bible Collectors. He is friendly and quite knowledgeable. His contact information is 7413 Snow Apple Drive, Clarkson, MI 48346, and www.biblecollectors.org.

Casting a Broken Spirit

© stockphoto.com/wdragon

Some of us have had the misfortune to suffer a broken bone. The worst part is the pain; second to that is the discomfort and confinement of the solid cast, allowing no mobility of the area, no leeway for the bone to bend. This must be so that the bone heals straight and strong to support the body again.

Similarly, God heals a broken spirit. In Jeremiah 23:9, we read, "My heart is broken within me, all my bones tremble." For a spirit to heal, we must stay close to God, not bending to the familiarity of "quick fixes". This may seem uncomfortable during times of temptation, yet as the bone heals, so does the spirit, in due time.

Is your spirit fragile or broken? Visit the Great Physician at your house of worship this week. He will strengthen you and set you straight.

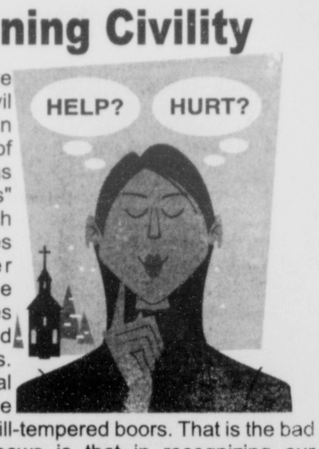
Regaining Civility



Whether we have become a less civil nation has been widely discussed of late. From politicians and "talking heads" screaming at each other to celebrities throwing temper tantrums, to the everyday incivilities on our roadways and in our marketplaces. There is a general sense that we have become a nation of ill-tempered boors. That is the bad news. The good news is that in recognizing our incivility there is hope for redemption. Perhaps we need etiquette lessons from Emily Post, or civics classes in our high school. But, on a more basic level, perhaps we just need to recognize that the problem arises because we have cultivated individualism and its corresponding selfishness to such an extreme that we have forgotten a central teaching of Christianity, and indeed of all true religion. After all, isn't loving your neighbor as yourself the lynch pin of both morals and manners? A simple litmus test for every thought, word and deed is to ask oneself whether one intends to help or hurt with one's words or deeds. If our intention is to help, then we can be pretty sure that we are being civil, whereas if our true intention is to hurt someone, either emotionally or physically, we can be pretty certain that we are not being civil. So, we should consider our actions in that light, whether they are intended to help or hurt someone, and strive to always come down on the side of civility.

Do nothing from selfishness or conceit, but in humility count others better than yourselves. Let each of you look not only to his own interests, but also to the interests of others.

Treatment for this Type of Facial Pain

Trigeminal neuralgia commonly causes facial pain. The pain typically occurs suddenly on one side of the face, and is severe and usually lasts for only a short period of time. The trigeminal nerve is responsible for transmitting sensations between the face and the brain. Each year, 4 to 5 out of 100,000 persons are newly affected by trigeminal neuralgia. Women are more commonly affected than are men. Persons over 50 years of age are also more likely to be affected. Persons with multiple sclerosis (MS) may be more likely to experience this nerve pain. Trigeminal neuralgia may be experienced as pain that feels like an electric shock. Attacks of pain may last days to weeks. Triggers of painful episodes may include eating, drinking, and smiling.

Anticonvulsant medications, such as Carbamazepine, oxcarbazepine, and phenytoin, may be prescribed for persons for trigeminal neuralgia. These medications work to block pain signals from the brain. Lamotrigine and gabapentin are other anticonvulsant medications that may be prescribed. Baclofen is a muscle relaxant that is sometimes prescribed. Surgical procedures also may become an option if medications do not work.

Local Groups Offer Advice On Keeping Animals Healthy Through The Winter

by Mercedes Pellet, HART for Animals development director

Garrett County winters are very hard on animals and put them at high risk. Sadly, many of the animals left outdoors during the winter are unable to survive until the spring.

According to Maryland state law, dogs that are tied outdoors must have shelter or protection from the weather and suitable and sufficient clean water. Failure to meet the minimum state requirements may result in up to $1,000 in fines, psychological counseling, and/or 90 days in jail.

Three animal welfare organizations – the Garrett County Humane Society, HART for Animals, and PAWS (Partners for Animal Welfare & Safety) – have endorsed the following information.

Denise Lohr, animal control officer for the Garrett County Humane Society who is the person that responds to animal cruelty calls, has researched inexpensive ways of helping cats and dogs make it through the winter. They are as follows:

Insulate Outdoor Shelters

•Use standard insulation or cover the pet house with snow.

•Place the shelter in a windproof area, with the entrance facing away from the wind.

•Put bedding (old blankets, straw, wood shavings, newspaper, etc.) on the bottom, back, and sides.

•Cover the entrance with an old rug as a flap and install a floor.

Water

•Ice and snow are not adequate sources of water.

•If purchasing heated buckets is not possible, dig a hole deep enough to drop a large container in so that only ¼ remains above ground to keep water from freezing or spilling.

•Old water should never be "topped off" because bacteria will remain in the water.

Food

•An animal should be fed with nutritious food designed for the animal's age, health, and size.

•Warm food is best. And because the animal actually needs to burn extra calories to keep warm, you must feed your animal more.

Veterinary Care

•The most common problem is hypothermia, when the body temperature drops below normal. This is life-threatening.

•Check the animal's coat – a matted coat will not provide protection from the cold.

•Arthritis also is aggravated in old or injured pets that are left outdoors.

Pet owners who would like additional information on how to protect their animals during the winter can contact Lohr at 301-334-4470. She advises that, when in doubt, owners should put themselves in their pets' "shoes."

"If it's too cold for you to stay outdoors for hours, it's too cold for your pet," Lohr says.

The Garrett County Humane Society, HART for Animals, and PAWS are 501(c)(3) non-profit organizations, dedicated to the protection of animals in Garrett County.

ALL IN THE FAMILY

Many areas of the country are experiencing buyers markets, and current tax laws make this a very attractive time for parents to help their children become homeowners. Prices and interest rates may never be lower than they are now, so strongly consider this potential investment in your children's future.

As parents, you can provide a significant down payment, free of taxation. Individuals may gift up to $13,000 per year, so two parents making gifts to their child and spouse can give a total of $52,000 in one year without paying gift tax!

Above and beyond the outright gift, you may loan your family money, as long as you charge a minimum interest rate, which is currently very low. Then you can make your gifts each year, and your child's family can use the gifts to pay the loan!

If neither of these options is attractive, you could purchase the home yourself and then set up a Qualified Personal Residence Trust (QPRT), with the home passing to the children at the end of an established term, tax free. You will need to consult with your financial advisor and employ an attorney to handle this kind of transaction.

Begin by meeting with your REALTOR® and explaining your situation. Contrary to what you may have been hearing, there is practically no better investment today than real estate.

If you are thinking of buying or selling a home but feel "out of touch" with real estate, give me a call today.

Smart Investment Moves for 2010

As an investor, you might wonder what the new year has in store for you. While economic and market forces are, as always, somewhat unpredictable, the overall outlook is generally favorable—and by making the right moves, you can further improve your chances of making 2010 a good year for your portfolio

And one of the best moves you can make is to stay invested. If you had jumped out of the market during the long downturn from late 2007 through March 2009, you would have missed quite a rally. In fact, the Dow Jones Industrial Average staged a considerable comeback from its March lows, climbing 61.1 percent. The S&P 500 rose 66.7 percent off its lows.

Still, it's unlikely that we'll experience returns in this neighborhood for 2010. Although we may see reasonably strong growth in corporate earnings — a key driver of stock prices — stocks are no longer as undervalued as they were when the rally began. However, although we still face some significant issues, such as high unemployment and tight credit, most experts predict that the economic recovery will continue in 2010, though not at a sizzling pace. And a growing economy is usually good news for investors.

Of course, despite the potentially favorable investment environment, there's always the possibility of bumps in the road. To protect yourself, consider taking these steps:

• Stick with "buy and hold." Despite some claims that "buy-and-hold" is no longer a viable investment strategy given today's volatile markets, it worked pretty well for those investors who were patient enough to ride out the bear market. Continue looking for quality investments and holding them until they no longer meet your needs or until the fundamentals of the investments themselves change.

• Own some short-term investments. During the long bear market, short-term investments, particularly cash, held up better than most other assets. Yet many investors had too little cash in their portfolios. Don't make that mistake. Keep an appropriate amount of cash for your age, income level, risk tolerance and long-term goals.

• Consider adding fixed-income investments. By owning some fixed-income vehicles, such as bonds, you can help reduce the effects of volatility on your portfolio. And if you hold your bonds until maturity, which is often a wise move, you can rely on them for a source of steady income. As always, make sure you understand the risks before investing.

• Watch for changes in investment taxes. In the coming year, the tax rate may increase for long-term capital gains and stock dividends. If that happens, you may need to review your investment mix. However, even if the long-term capital gain rate rises, you'll still likely be better off holding quality investments for many years, thereby giving them time to potentially overcome short-term volatility. And even if taxes rise on dividends, dividend-paying stocks, with their ability to provide both income and growth potential, can be a valuable part of your portfolio. (Keep in mind, though, that companies may reduce or eliminate dividends at any time.)

• No one can say for sure what 2010 will bring to the investment world. But by preparing your investment strategy for a range of possibilities, and by making changes as needed, you can make this a year of progress toward your important financial goals.

Finding 'Glee' in a state's televised image

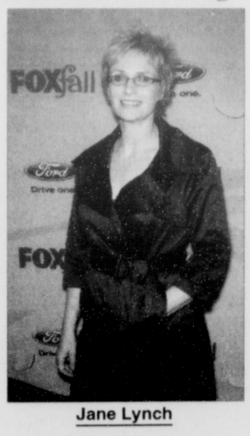
By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Q: Can you tell me why it seems that almost every television show we watch references the name of our state, Ohio? It is very disconcerting to see that all these (fictional) criminals have come from our beloved state. We are getting a bad rap, don't you think? –Marlene Walker-Hanna, Columbus, Ohio

A: Well, since you've asked, we must point out the opposite view by mentioning the positive connotation your state gets weekly – when the series is on, anyway – from Fox's "Glee," which is set in Lima, Ohio. One could pick nits and point to Jane Lynch's scheming Sue Sylvester as being not the most upstanding character, but generally, the show represents Ohio quite well ... and to a very loyal audience that is sure to come back, and potentially grow, when the program returns to a post-"American Idol" slot in April.

Q: I am wondering what happened to "The Closer," which is shown Mondays on TNT. I haven't seen it scheduled in recent weeks. –Renate Haberpointner, Edmonds, Wash.

A: This is the customary winter confusion that the network's scheduling of the show always fosters. Three new episodes ran in December to conclude the police drama's season that started last June, then took a break before wrapping up. Expect the next new "Closer" episodes this summer, though they may start a little later than usual, since co-star Jon



Jane Lynch

Tenney recently told us that the cast and crew don't go back to work until April.

Q: A number of years ago, I saw a Christmas movie starring Roma Downey, and I haven't seen it since. Can you tell me its name, and if it is on DVD or tape? –Carol Guetzke, Thiensville, Wis.

A: It's likely "Borrowed Hearts: A Holiday Romance," first shown on CBS in 1997 and on Lifetime and Lifetime Movie Network since. Also starring Eric McCormack ("Will & Grace") as the love interest, it did get releases in both the VHS and DVD formats by a company called Feature Films for Families; copies for sale, of both versions, can be found through an Internet search.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Maryland Department of The Environment, Abandoned Mine Land Division will be submitting an application for approval of funds to the U.S. Department of the Interior, Office of Surface Mining for the reclamation of fourteen (14) abandoned coal mining sites throughout Garrett and Allegany Counties. All funding will be obtained in accordance with Title IV, Section 405 of Public Law 95-87, Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977.

An agency must have an approved State Surface Coal Mining Regulatory Program and a State Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation Plan to qualify for funding under Title IV. Maryland has had approval of both programs since February 17, 1982. Funding for each project will originate from the Abandoned Mine Reclamation Fund, which is administered by the Office of Surface Mining.

It is the goal of the Maryland Abandoned Mine Land Division to promote the reclamation of abandoned coal mine areas in Maryland that are inadequately reclaimed or pose a public health and safety concern, degrade the quality of the environment, and/or diminish the beneficial use of land and water resources.

The Abandoned Mine Land Division would like to gather comments on the following listed projects and/or any other abandoned mine problems in the Maryland Coal Region.

A public informational meeting concerning the proposed projects will be held as follows:

Thursday, February 18, 2010
7:00 P.M.
Maryland Department of the Environment

   Location: 2.25 miles East, Southeast of Frostburg in Allegany County, MD.
   Problem: Steep subsidence slopes and high volume of deep mine discharge pose a threat to public safety. 7. Wolfden Run Stream Restoration Project

8. Pee Wee Hill Water Supply Project
   Location: 1 mile North of Kitzmiller in Garrett County, MD.
   Problem: Private water supplies along Pee Wee Hill Road are being impacted by abandoned deep mining operations making it unfit for usage.
9. Tasker's Corner Deep Mine and Gob Pile Project
   Location: 5 ½ miles North, Northeast of Gorman in Garrett County, MD.
   Problem: Abandoned deep mine entries, equipment and coal waste along Laurel Run pose a health and safety hazard to local residents and degrade the quality of Laurel Run.
10. Frostburg Area Deep Mine Closure Project
    Location: Multiple deep mine openings within a 2.5 mile radius of Frostburg in Allegany County, MD.

Nelson Studios, Oakland, celebrates one year of business and exposure of local parents and children to musical education through Kindermusik. Classes are held in the lower level of the Third Street Center building, Oakland, with the new semester beginning this month. Third Street Center building is located at the intersection of Oak Street and Third Street, across from Oakland's Veteran Memorial Park.

The establishment also offers private voice instruction for those 8 years and older throughout the year. Preston County native Elizabeth Wotring-Nelson heads the operation, which is currently affiliated with several local programs, including Theatre On The Lake (TOTL) and Miss Lizzie & Friends, sponsored by Landon's Library.

Kindermusik is the world's leading musical education curriculum for children ages newborn to 7 years and their parents, using music and movement to help with parenting and to further a child's development. Through the program, parent's learn more about their child's developmental process, and children learn to associate learning with fun, musical play. Parents are encouraged to continue the process at home, guided by using specially designed books, CDs, and games.

Nelson is a licensed Kindermusik educator, as well as a private voice instructor. She received her master's in music from the Boston Conservatory, Boston, Mass., and received her bachelor of arts degree in church music from Greenville College, Greenville, Ill. She is an experienced performer and teacher, performing in theatres and ensembles across the country, including TOTL in McHenry, where she has performed the past three summers and helped co-found TOTL's School of Theatrical Arts.

The school offers performance and intensive theatrical arts education for ages 8 through 18. The school offers classes and performing experience specializing in Broadway-style dance, acting, and voice training presented by performing artists with TOTL Theatre Company. Students take intensive classes during the school year and are then given the opportunity to perform with the company in summer productions, through the theatre's apprenticeship program. The program is held in late June/early July, with evening and weekend classes held during the year.

Nelson's teaching experience includes private voice lessons at the Boston Academy High School for the Arts, a private voice studio in the greater Twin Cities, Minn., area, and is currently private voice instructor for theatre students at Fairmont State University in West Virginia. She was the founder of Children's Performing Arts and co-director of Youth Performing Arts in Forest Lake, Minn., and has been a master teacher and co-director for several years at the Preston County Summer Camp of the Arts.

"Nelson Studios' private voice instruction is unique in its approach," noted Nelson. "Each singer has a unique voice, and each lesson is as unique as its singer." Whatever a singer's chosen style may be – classical, choral, jazz, musical theatre, pop/rock, country, or Christian – Nelson teaches vocal techniques that allow the singer to sing to the best of his/her potential. As a performer herself, she also can help with performance anxiety and performance coaching. Private voice instruction is encouraged for any student planning to study music or theater in college, as well as anyone interested in simply learning more about vocal control and music education.

"Whether you have a baby or toddler and want to use music to help your child reach his/her developmental milestones or you're a student or adult interested in performance opportunities, Nelson Studios has a place for you to find your voice."

"The Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department is committed to providing not only the highest quality of fire protection for our citizens, but also ensuring that standards are met to keep us in compliance and provide our members with equipment and training designed to keep them as safe as possible," he stated. "We will continue to find ways to reduce the risk of loss or injury."

WHO SAYS WINTER ISN'T FUN? "When Old Man Winter gives you snow, go make a snow castle," could be Shelby Fultz's motto. She and her family didn't let three feet of snow coop them up inside. Instead, they worked all last weekend constructing this colorful structure in front of Shelby's E Street home in Mtn. Lake Park. Their creation includes a front and back door and a large room in the center. It was decorated with blue, green, and orange liquid food coloring, applied airbrush style with a pressurized sprayer. With all the snow we've gotten since Super Bowl Sunday, the family has probably added another room or two to their castle. Pictured, left to right, are Michael Keener with baby Leah Keener, Mitchell Jenkins, Dan Beachy (in the doorway with the sprayer), Dayrle Lambert, and Shelby. Photo by John McEwen.

BOE Exploring Possible Ways To Cut Its Budget

The Board of Education recently held its regular monthly meeting, at which members discussed several ways of cutting back on budget needs. The board's financial director, Irvin Fink, and school superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets are in the process of finalizing the FY2011 budget.

One of the proposed ideas to help cut costs is the renovation of some area elementary schools, and the possible closing of others. There are currently seven elementary schools – Broad Ford, Yough Glades, Dennett Road, Bloomington, Rt. 40, Crellin, and Accident. It was decided at the meeting that there will be a committee formed to study all seven schools, with the committee made up of members of the public as well as school officials.

"We need to take a hard look at our budget, enrollment, and facility capacities and make some decisions on the most effective use of our resources," said Dr. Teets. "The study committee will take an objective look at what's happening and make recommendations." He also noted that any changes suggested will then be studied by committees at each individual school.

A second recommendation to cut costs was to stop school transportation between Garrett and Allegany counties. Approximately 40

Towns Reeling After 90% Slash In State Highway Users Revenue

by Don Sincell

While local residents are accustomed to coping with severe winter weather conditions, the two recent storms that have pushed the county's total snowfall for the winter of 2009-10 to over 180 inches could not have come at a worse time, particularly for Garrett County's eight incorporated municipalities.

Attempting to remove nearly two feet of snow from municipal roadways is expensive under the best of circumstances, and even more so when storms strike on weekends, which generally necessitates overtime for town crews. That hardship became much worse this winter because of recent major cuts in state aid to the towns.

For the past couple of budget years, state money known as the Highway User Funds that are allocated to counties and towns have been reduced, but this past fall the state hacked the remaining HUF monies by a staggering 90%, a cut that has literally put several of Garrett County's smaller towns on the brink of bankruptcy.

Because the most recent cut came well after the towns had adopted their fiscal year budgets, the results have included the laying off of town employees, cutting benefits, eliminating overtime, and either canceling or putting most town-improvement projects and events on hold.

There are insufficient funds for things such as snow removal, equipment maintenance, road repairs, and culvert projects.

Some of the towns are even having to go so far as to lower thermostats in town halls to less than comfortable levels, freezing the purchase of new office supplies, and removing every other street light in town to save a few dollars on electricity costs.

The worst-case scenario would be municipal bankruptcy, in which case the town would have to surrender its charter to the state of Maryland, and all of the expenses involved in maintaining the community would by law become the responsibility of county government.

The Garrett County Mayors Association, which consists of the mayors of all eight municipalities, recently sent a packet of letters to the governor's office in which each of the mayors explained the impact of the HUF cuts on their individual town budgets. Information and excerpts from each of those letters are as follows:

LOCH LYNN

Mayor Carolyn S. Corley

The Highway User Funds makes up approximately 21% of Loch Lynn's operating budget.

The town received notice before preparing its FY

School Personnel Explain Two-Day School Closing

It was decided this week that Garrett County schools would be closed today and tomorrow because of weather conditions. Transportation director Ed Wildesen explained the reasoning behind Wednesday's decision to close for both days.

According to Wildesen, the decision was made by an entire team of individuals representing various agencies, including county and state roads departments, local police agencies, and emergency management organizations.

The State Highway Administration at Keyser's Ridge recorded approximately 34 inches of snow-fall during this past weekend's storm, and another 15 to 20 inches over the past two days. A total of 26 Garrett County roads remain closed and inaccessible, according to Garrett County Roads general superintendent Jay Moyer.

"We want kids to be in

Third Annual Winter Fest Set In Oakland; Ice Carving In Progress

The third annual Winter Fest in Oakland, hosted by the town's Main Street program, will take place Feb. 19-21 and will feature the ice art of Bill Sandusky, owner and operator of Frozen Assets of Colorado.

Sandusky is currently in town and is creating several of the approximately 35 ice sculptures at the Oakland pavilion. Persons are invited to go watch as he works any day from now until the festival. (See photos on page A-3.) The sculptures will be placed around town and will be lighted. He will create at least five of the carvings during the day on Saturday, and tentatively will produce another on Sunday.

There will be a number of events and activities throughout the three-day festival, including an ice sliding board, frozen bowling, a snowman building contest, snowmobile races, and a pancake breakfast at the Oakland fire hall on Sunday morning.

The schedule of events is listed below, and persons may also obtain a detailed brochure about all activities as well as a map of the sculptures and activities by e-mailing gobamainstreet@hotmail.com or calling Jim Johnson, Winter Fest committee chairman, at 301-616-4008, or Arlene Murray, Oakland Main Street manager, at 301616-2411.

GC Commissioners Commend Efforts Of County Road Crews

The Garrett County commissioners commended county employees for their efforts in keeping roadways open and safe this winter, especially during last weekend's snowstorm. According to the State Highway Administration at Keyser's Ridge, the county received 33.5 inches during that weather event.

"Please convey to your workforce that we're very pleased with the work they've done," commission chair Ernie Gregg told Roads Department superintendent Jay Moyer on Tuesday morning.

Moyer met with the commissioners to present a departmental update and to get a preview of this week's snow storm. Rich Kane of the National Weather Service in Pittsburgh, Pa., met with Moyer, the commissioners, and Director Brad Frantz, Garrett County Department of Public Safety and Emergency Management, via an Internet conference call.

Kane showed radar model projections for this week's storm. He predicted the county would receive between 14 and 20 inches of the white stuff between Tuesday morning and Fri-

Funding Plans For Garrett County Scholarship Program To Continue

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners continues to receive commentary that the Garrett County Scholarship Program will not be funded for future years.

"Statements related to a termination of this program are untrue and unsubstantiated," a press release from the commissioners stated. "The board strongly believes that funding of this program that allows all Garrett County public school seniors to attend Garrett College at no cost will have many constructive and positive long-term consequences for not only the students who participate in the program but all of Garrett County."

Plans are to continue appropriating funds for this purpose, and the commissioners are encouraging all 2010 seniors to consider attending Garrett College after graduation.

"It will be a rewarding and beneficial experience and will provide a very high return on the investment of funds approved," the press release stated.

Named Two-Time Maryland State Hip-Hop Champ

Regina Crosco recently placed first in the hip-hop division during the Maryland Cup State Championships on Jan. 31 in Upper Marlboro. This is the second consecutive year that Regina has won the division, making her a two-time Maryland state solo hip-hop champion.

The Southern High School junior trains at Jessica's Dance Creations in Loch Lynn under the instruction of her sister, Jessica Crosco. Regina is the daughter of Kim and Roger Crosco, Oakland.

Regina is also a part of the Toxic Twist dance crew and Xtreme Cheerleading Team, and does dance and gymnastics at JDC. She also helps instruct classes at Jessica's.

"This is a wonderful title to hold," Jessica said about Regina's champion status. "She just keeps blowing us away with all her talent, and I hope she just keeps getting better."

Regina now has a chance to vie for the national champion title in May. In the mean time, she will continue to compete and will perform her winning routine during Southern High School's upcoming talent show.

GC ARTIST COMMUNITY GIVING BACK – A landscape print by Ron Skidmore, above, and a watercolor by Chinese artist Fugi Yuan, below, will be two of many pieces by local artists on sale this Sunday during the Garrett College Art Gallery's special Valentine's Day event to benefit the victims of Haiti. This fundraiser is intended to be "an expression of love" for the earthquake victims in Haiti, and to show the generosity of the Garrett County community to help those in need. NAMED STATE ENVIRONMENTAL TEACHER OF THE YEAR – Crellin Elementary School teacher Rebecca Sanders was recently named the 2010 Maryland Environmental Teacher of the Year by the Chesapeake Bay Trust. Each year, the trust recognizes an educator and a student for their work to support the environment and the Chesapeake Bay. Students and teachers from across the state submit applications for the $5,000 awards. Sanders was instrumental in the development and maintenance of Crellin's environmental education laboratory. Accompanied by principal Dana McCauley, fellow teacher Linda Stephens, and director of elementary education Barbara Baker, she was recognized at this month's Board of Education meeting. "We're so proud to have such a humble, dedicated teacher on our staff," commented superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets. "What a wonderful choice." Sanders is described by an award spokesperson as one who demonstrates a core principal of the Chesapeake Bay Trust, developing students into lifelong environmental stewards and extending their stewardship outside the classroom to their homes and communities. "In an elementary school, any award is a shared award," said Sanders. "We all work very hard – teachers, parents, and students." She stated how proud she is to be a part of such a supportive school and community. From left are BOE president Dr. Don Forrester, McCauley, Sanders, and superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets. Happy Birthday, Timmy

2-16-82 – 9-15-02

Sometimes
By Kiersten Hansen

Sometimes something clicks
And with a tear
Remembrance of the pain
And the loneliness
Flood the heart

Sometimes something clicks
And with a smile
Remembrance of the love
And the laughter
Flood the senses

And there are times
When nothing clicks at all
And a voice echoes
Through the emptiness
And numbness
Never finding the person
Who used to fill that space

And sometimes
The most special times of all
A feeling ripples through your Body, heart and soul
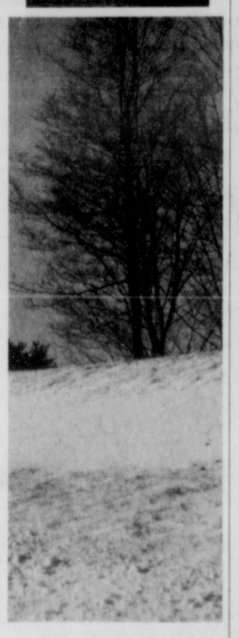
That tells you
That person never left you
And he s right here with you
Through it all



Love, Mom, Dad, Dawn, Dart, Chrissy, Stephen and all your family
We miss you very much, especially that happy smile.

Senator Cardin Pushes North-South Corridor

U.S. Senator Benjamin L. Cardin (D-MD), a member of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, this week called on President Obama's nominee to co-chair the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) to make completion of the North-South Appalachian Highway a priority.

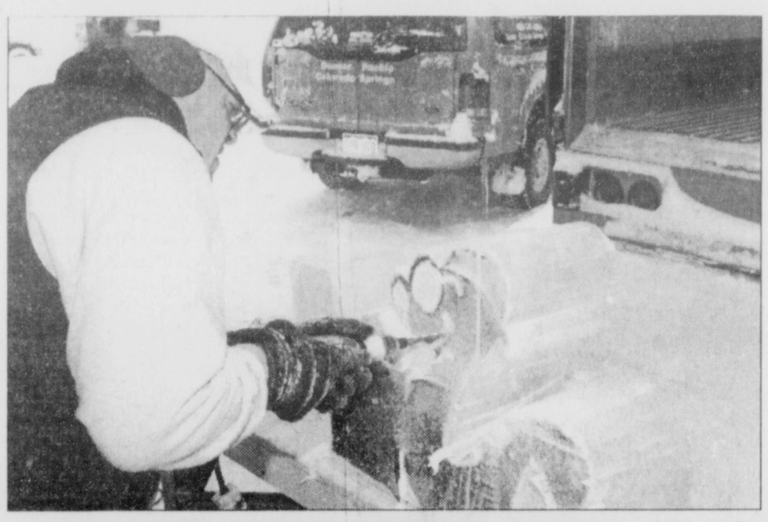
Speaking at a nomination hearing for Earl Gohl Jr., Cardin also asked for support for removing the prohibition on the state's use of toll credits as matching funds for the Appalachian Highway project and encouraged Mr. Gohl to support maintaining ARC's tradition of working closely with local partners like the Tri-County Council of Western Maryland.

"One of the most important projects to western Maryland and the region is the completion of the North-South Appalachian Highway," Carding said. "Along with dozens of companies, public officials, civic and public organizations in western Maryland, I have made this project a top priority for the region. The alignment and improvements to Routes 219 and 220 are critical infrastructure projects for improving and sustaining economic development in the region. ARC is an important facilitator of this project, and I encourage Mr. Gohl and the ARC leadership to make this project a priority for the commission.

"Improvements to these two roads are estimated to create upwards of 12,000 new permanent jobs and 20,000 construction jobs in the three affected states. Our economy is still hurting, and these jobs are more important than ever to the region. I am working hard to see that the remaining portions of the project in Maryland are realized.

"Western Maryland has benefited from several ARC projects, including worker training programs, transportation improvement projects, and expanded access to broadband communications services," Cardin continued. "For that I am grateful, and it is one of the reasons I worked very hard to help increase planning grants funding for my state and all economic development districts."

The ARC is a federal-state partnership that works with the people of 13 Appalachian states to create opportunities for self-sustaining economic development and improved quality of life. Each year ARC provides funding for numerous projects in areas such as business development, education, job training, telecommunications, infrastructure, community development, housing, and transportation.



HARD AT WORK AT THE OAKLAND PAVILION – Persons may want to make the snowy trek to the Oakland pavilion sometime this week to watch ice sculptor Bill Sandusky, owner and operator of Frozen Assets, as he creates the nearly 35 ice sculptures for next weekend's Winter Fest in Oakland. Sandusky, originally of Erie, Pa., and now of Florence, Colo., has been an ice sculptor for 20 years. Last year he was on the team that took third place in the BP World Ice Art Competition in Alaska, which involves multiple ice carving teams from all over the world. After his stint in Oakland, he is headed back to Alaska for this year's competition. He has been a member of the National Ice Carvers Association since 1999, and has been the lead sculptor for Oakland's Winter Fest for all three years of its existence. He is pictured above as he works on a book worm sculpture. Several of his other nearly completed works are shown below in the back of a trailer provided by Larry Wagner. Sandusky will be creating five more sculptures during the actual Winter Fest on Saturday, Feb. 20, and tentatively another on Sunday, Feb. 21. (See story on page A-1 for full schedule and locations.) Stacked behind him in the photo below are about 100 ice blocks, transported to the county from Glacier Block, an ice company in Middlefield, Ohio. Persons are invited to come watch him work over the next week at the pavilion. Photos (above and below) by John McEwen.

Parking Policies Implemented By Oakland Officials

New parking regulations have been implemented in Oakland, by authority of the mayor, town council, and police department. The policies will be enforced in order to aid snow removal.

Residents and visitors are advised that parking will be permitted on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays between the hours of 5 p.m. and 7 a.m. on the north and east sides of streets.

Parking will be permitted on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays between the hours of 5 p.m. and 7 a.m. on the west and south sides of streets.

These regulations apply only during times of heavy snowfall (four inches or more) and only between the hours of 5 p.m. and 7 a.m. The policies apply to all streets that are plowed by the town of Oakland and will remain in effect during the winter season.

In addition, there will be no parking at meters from midnight until 6 a.m. on either side of streets to allow snow removal and street cleaning.

Violators will be fined $25 for each offense.

Two Arrested By Task Force On CDS Charges

The Garrett County Narcotics Task Force made two controlled dangerous substance (CDS) arrests in the past week. The following cases are unrelated.

Garrett County sheriff Gary Berkebile, spokesperson for NTF, announced the arrest of a Loch Lynn man following the execution of a search and seizure warrant at his residence. Craig Steven Hensley, 33, is charged with possession of marijuana, possession with intent to distribute Percocet, possession of Percocet, and possession of CDS paraphernalia. He was released from the Garrett County Jail after posting a $1,000 bond set by the District Court commissioner.

In a separate incident, Garrett County state's attorney Lisa Welch, NTF spokesperson, announced the arrest of a Virginia man following a warranted search and seizure in McHenry. Andrew John Portare, 23, Fairfax, is charged with possession of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia. He was released on his own recognizance following an appearance before a District Court commissioner.

Three Charged By Deputies For Driving Violations

Three drivers were arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies for driving violations. The following incidents are unrelated.

Quovone Deangelo Davis, 20, Norfolk, Va., was stopped on Mosser Road Friday for an inoperable headlight. Investigation revealed him to be driving on an out-of-state license. He was taken into custody to await a bond hearing.

A vehicle was stopped Monday on Garrett Highway for displaying expired tags. Linford Oberholzer was discovered to be driving uninsured. He signed his citations and was released at the scene.

Deputies responded to Cranesville Road for a motor vehicle accident Tuesday evening involving a Peterbilt truck that overturned on an embankment. Driver Russel W. Slagle, 36, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., is charged with driving without a license, operating an unregistered motor vehicle, and driving an uninsured vehicle.

Not only is Ludwig van Beethoven considered to be among the foremost musical geniuses that the world has ever known, but he was also hearing impaired. He began to lose his hearing at age 31, and he was totally deaf at age 42. So, how was he able to write his musical masterpieces without being able to hear a note? Using the same principle that makes a bone conduction hearing instrument work, Beethoven held a baton between his teeth and placed one end against a musical instrument. In this way, he was able to conduct sound vibrations through the stick to his teeth and on to the bones of his skull and into his inner ear.

The human ear is an amazing instrument. When its parts break down or fail to function properly, however, today's remarkable technology is doing its best to keep pace to help the hearing impaired once again enjoy the sounds of the world around them. If you have concerns about your hearing, or a parent or other family member's hearing abilities, we hope you'll feel comfortable discussing today's options for better hearing with a hearing specialist at AUDIBEL.

P.S. Bone conduction hearing aids collect sounds from the outside world and transmit the signals to an oscillator, which vibrates against the skull, enabling the inner ear to pick up the vibrations and interpret them as sound.

Taking a Toll...

Even though we who reside in Garrett County are accustomed to harsh winter weather, the relentlessness of the current conditions is beginning to take a great toll on all of us in terms of energy, spirit, and money. The shoveling of snow is becoming more difficult each day, as there is no place left to heave it. The numerous cancellations, continued frigid temperatures, lack of sunlight, extra concern for elderly loved ones, and general difficulty in getting from point A to point B all tend to get us down emotionally. And from the financial standpoint, most businesses are suffering because of a lack of customers, and the cost of trying to keep our roadways clear or at least passable is staggering.

While we are all negatively affected in a variety of ways by the weather, we are indebted to those folks who are working around the clock to keep the roads as open as possible, and to all involved in emergency services who are going the extra mile to try to keep everyone safe. The guys driving the snowplows on the state, county, and municipal roadways are doing an amazing job under extremely difficult circumstances, and doing it with very little rest. Rescue squad and fire department personnel continue to respond, day and night, regardless of the conditions. All should be commended.

It is hoped that financial assistance to the state, county, and municipalities is forthcoming from the federal government. These extreme weather conditions could not have come at a worse time, just months after the state of Maryland slashed highway user revenue to the county and towns by 90%. Of all things to cut, this should have been a last resort, because it is precisely this revenue that is earmarked for taking care of our roadways, including clearing them of snow and ice. Before the snow even started falling, some of our smaller towns were on the brink of bankruptcy because of this loss of funding, and now – obviously, the situation is considerably more grim unless the governor or the federal government come up with some financial assistance. (See front-page article.)

It is hoped that the Garrett County commissioners are doing all they can to get assistance for the towns, because if there is none forthcoming it could mean the surrendering of some town charters to the state. In that event, the county will be required by law to take on the services and maintenance of those defunct towns, adding a huge new item on the county budget.

All county residents then, and not just those in distressed towns, should contact our elected officials and strongly request that they find a way to restore the funds that were seized. Contact information appears at the end of the aforementioned article.

Too many countries are knocking on the door to be #1 for anyone to endanger our democracy. Corporations are not people and should not have the right to speak out in the same way as individual citizens do.

We have seen in many ways how much corporations care about the people of this country. Has sending our jobs overseas served us well, depressing our wages and the amount of money that the government has to spend on the needs of the people? And, not paying their share of taxes through the use of overseas accounts.

Maybe the Constitution could be interpreted to be in favor of property rather than people. After all, it was written by gentlemen who were interested in preserving the rights of the landowners and their properties. Perhaps these privileged men did not intend to have equality for all. They did not give the vote to women or consider blacks to be fully human.

Some of us are still busy working on that pursuit of happiness idea. God help us.

Letters to the Editor

Writers of letters to the editor are reminded that letters will not be published if they exceed 400 words, do not include contact information, and/or are deemed to be libelous.

To the Editor:

Those who faithfully read the "letters to the editor" in this newspaper every week but did not see the "Letters to the Editor" performance at Our Town Theatre missed out on a masterpiece. The creative way in which the letters, dating back to the 1800s, were entwined with songs, jokes, and props was amazing. The actors did an excellent job in presenting the letters, whether they were funny, sad, or just touching.

Congratulations to all of you who were involved in this presentation. It was fantastic!

Sandy Bell

To the Editor:

As we all know, it has been a long, hard winter so far, with snow totals over 170 inches. The road crews have worked hard for the past several months, often around the clock. The Maryland State Highway Administration, Garrett County Roads Department, and all of the town crews and contract trucks for the SHA have been working up to 16 hours per shift this past week to keep the roads safe for residents and visitors.

If you see any of these people, thank them for a job well done so far this winter. I would like to personally thank all of these people for their outstanding work.

Larry Rodeheaver

To the Editor:

In the wake of the major snowstorm that buried much of the Mid-Atlantic region under two or more feet of snow and left thousands of people without power, People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA) urges emergency shelters to allow people who are seeking warmth to bring their animal companions with them. As the brave people who chose to stay behind after Hurricane Katrina rather than evacuate without their beloved animal family members showed, many people would rather risk their lives than leave their animals to face uncertain fates.

Animals aren't any better equipped to survive a disaster than humans are, and domesticated animals that are left behind in an emergency may be stranded in dangerous conditions for days or weeks without food or water if conditions prevent their guardians from returning to care for them.

Our animals depend on us for survival. Please visit www.HelpingAnimals.com for tips on how to keep your animal companions safe during emergencies.

Sincerely,
Lindsay Pollard-Post

To the Editor:

It seems to me that a couple of letters to the editor verified and underlined the correctness of your opinion of a few weeks ago (Supreme Court ruling on corporate donations to campaigns).

I have heard that there are very few independent news organizations left in this country, and it is my understanding that The Republican is one. But, the point that corporate wealth should not be part of our election activities is well evidenced by the current problem with the corporate-owned media in this country.

As with all corporations, the bottom line is sacred. And, it is the focus of radio and television coverage. The intention of serving a well-informed audience or electorate is not part of this monetary goal. Sound bites and sensationalism are the order of the day, causing more distrust in many minds. When grabbing for the big bucks from advertising, the idea is to attract an audience – not to inform them.

It is only right that corporations make money. But there is also the issue of responsibility. In a democracy, when their profits are put ahead of their responsibility to the people of this country and our way of governing, we all are done a disservice. This selfish activity of greed resembles the oil spill of the Exxon Valdez and other cost-cutting ways of corporate activity that ignore the welfare of all.

Towns Reeling

2010 budget that incoming HUF monies would be $51,592; however, at the end of August it was learned that 90% of that amount was slashed, leaving the town with only $5,159. The town uses HUF money for maintenance salaries, street lights, truck payments, vehicle and street maintenance, and the purchase of abrasives, truck insurance, gas, oil, and materials and supplies.

Operation and maintenance of street lights alone costs approximately $8,000, meaning that the amount received in HUF for this year wasn't even enough to cover this single expense.

"It's a daily struggle to make ends meet without funding cuts," wrote Mayor Corley. "We are short $46,433, which is a huge amount in our budget."

The town charter calls for the mayor to be paid $30 per month and for council members to receive $20 per month, but for many years they have all donated that money back, which enabled the town to provide health insurance for town employees. But that insurance had to be cut.

"We were devastated to have to begin our budget cuts by taking away the health insurance," she said, adding that the town clerk's hours have been slashed from 40 to a mere 10 hours per week, with the remaining time being provided as more volunteer hours by Corley.

"Some of our outdoor lighting has been turned off, heat in Town Hall has been lowered, community events have been canceled, all overtime hours are eliminated, and an engineering project already completed for a parking lot to serve hundreds of youth from southern Garrett County has been put on hold indefinitely," she said, adding that furloughing maintenance staff is "looming in the very near future."

"We are also hearing that local [income] tax revenue back to the towns may be the next cut [by the state]," she said. "We surely will be unable to continue if more funding is lost."

KITZMILLER
Mayor Jim Browning

The HUF cut amounts to a whopping 44% of Kitzmiller's budget, causing cuts similar to those imposed by Loch Lynn.

"The reduction forced us to reduce employee hours and totally eliminate employee insurance benefits," said Mayor Browning. "The reduction was announced more than a month after the 2009 fiscal year started. We had already completed three capital improvement projects by that time, which forced us to use $50,000 in cash reserves to compensate for the reduction.

"We are going to have to dig further into the town's cash reserves just to balance our budget," he continued. "We have to consider actions to reduce costs in essential community service areas, such as street lighting, garbage collection, mowing, and snow removal. Conditions will, of course, become even more serious if the reduction in Highway User revenue continues into the next fiscal year, as we will not have sufficient case reserves to balance the budget. This will result in total loss of some or all of the services provided to town residents."

Browning added that Kitzmiller's annual Homecoming celebration will also have to be "scaled back."

DEER PARK
Mayor Donald Dawson

The loss of HUF monies reduced the budget of the town of Deer Park by 47%, which Mayor Dawson describes as "an enormous strain."

"The reduction has cost a part-time employee his job, meaning that our one full-time maintenance employee is now responsible for doing his job, plus the job of the prior 24-hour per week employee," he said. "He must do this without working any overtime, and even his job is in jeopardy of being cut to part-time status in the near future."

He added that the town clerk's hours have been cut from 40 to 30 hours per month, and that the town has had to simply discontinue some of its road maintenance.

"Deer Park is composed of 200 households of mainly older and elderly residents who are on fixed incomes," Dawson said. "These residents cannot afford to pay higher taxes.

"We are in desperate need of some relief. How do we continue to run a town with these cuts?"

ACCIDENT
Mayor Richard Carlson

A detailed list of actions taken or discussed by the mayor and town council of Accident was shared by Ruth Ann Hahn, town clerk.

These included everything from replacing rental rugs at Town Hall bi-weekly instead of weekly (saving $336) to using the wood-burning stove in town hall instead of turning up the LP furnace to eliminating the prize money for the annual Christmas decorating contest (saving ($80).

The one full-time employee has been asked to keep his comp time to a minimum because of the overtime being acquired now during the winter months.

Also discussed was the possibility of raising resident garbage fees, as the town is currently subsidizing 63% of that monthly fee.

Mayor Richard Carlson offered to donate back to the town his salary of $30 per month, which will save $270 (Oct. 2009 through June 2010).

FRIENDSVILLE
Mayor Spencer Schlosnagle

In response to the HUF cuts, Mayor Schlosnagle said, "We need to eliminate approximately $14,500 just to balance the budget,"

The town's two maintenance employees were asked to take six furlough days, and the part-time clerk has had her hours cut. Maintenance on municipal properties has been curtailed by 50%, with maintenance of streets and walks reduced by 80%, and trees and shrubs by 50%.

Air conditioning, heat, and lighting at Town Hall have all been reduced, and funds for advertising, office supplies, and printing were reduced. Property insurance coverage was reduced by 10%.

The Friendsville branch of the Ruth Enlow Library has been closed on selected Saturdays this winter, helping to save money on heating and for abrasives on the sidewalks.

"Our operating income was $181,500, but has been decreased to $145,000. This averages about $12,000 per month to operate the town, which makes it very difficult," Schlosnagle said.

GRANTSVILLE
Mayor Paul Edwards

In Grantsville, Highway User Funds were slashed over $51,000, from $57,441 to $5,742.

Among the actions taken by the mayor and town council were eliminating the position of town administrator, imposing two furlough days for all employees, and reducing Christmas bonuses to employees.

Rental fees for the park pavilion and lights will be increased, and all planned donations, with the exception of one to the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department, were eliminated for the current fiscal year.

The town also disposed of telephone service at the wastewater treatment plant.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK
Mayor Leo Martin

The loss of HUF money to Mountain Lake Park amounted to just under $178,000, and counting the reduction for the previous year, the loss is approximately $236,000.

Among the major expenses that Mayor Martin and the town council cut in order to balance the budget were: $60,000 from capital projects reserve/sewer, $40,000 from paving, $20,000 from equipment replacement, $15,000 from storm drain capital outlay, and nearly $24,000 from contingency funds. There were additional cuts to repair and maintenance of town buildings, the town security system, and wetlands acquisition.

All overtime for town employees was eliminated, except during emergency situations such as this past weekend's major snowstorm, and a wide variety of other cuts are being considered while preparing the budget for the coming fiscal year.

"Since 2008 the state has reduced Mtn. Lake Park's share of the gas tax (HUF) by over $236,000," said Mayor Martin. "The latest theft occurred in August 2009 when this revenue was cut by 90%. The governor's explanation is that he has to balance the budget. And we all thought the gas tax was for streets and highways. Without this revenue we can't pave streets or replace equipment.

"We are doing everything possible to avoid raising property taxes," he continued. "I encourage every taxpayer to contact Senator George Edwards, Delegate Wendell Beitzel, and Governor Martin O'Malley. Please ask all to stop this nonsense and support Garrett County's municipalities."

Contact information for the above appears at the end of this article.

OAKLAND
Mayor Peggy Jamison

"Because of the cuts to Highway User revenue, as well as cuts to Police Protection funds, the town of Oakland is looking at approximately $240,000 in budget cuts," wrote Mayor Jamison. "This amounts to approximately 18% of our general budget."

Jamison said that, because of the sluggish economy, the town was "very conservative" when it adopted its current budget just a few months prior to the governor's HUF reduction.

"We had already trimmed the budget and cut all capital outlay (with the exception of grant projects)," she wrote. "Then in early fall, we received notice that the governor was making this cut."

Among the major impacts of the reduction are a 25% cut in operating expenses, a 1% salary cut to all employees, elimination of two employee positions, elimination of the town recycling program, and a reduction of training by 50%.

"Our concern is the timing and the magnitude of the cuts," Jamison wrote. "It is very difficult to tell employees that we are cutting positions, cutting salaries, cutting benefits, and cutting services. And unfortunately, we are not yet finished making cuts to the budget."

"SHHH" TRIPLES DONATION GOAL FOR HAITI – Southern High School students in Dave Bender's contemporary problems class recently headed a one-week campaign to raise money for the Haiti relief effort. Students planned and executed the informational campaign under the name "SHHH" (Southern High Helping Haiti). It was decided that $1 would be collected from every person who walked in the front door of the school for five days. SHHH had a goal of raising $1,500, and nearly tripled it with a grand total of $4,061.19 collected. That total included money from students, parents, staff, Northern and Southern sports fans, and an anonymous donor who gave $1,500. Pictured in the front row are Catherine Baker, Bryan Wilkinson, Jasper Tasker, Drew Miller, Corinne Weaver, Kristen Yant, Christina Cortez, and assistant principal Kent Huber. Back row: Colin Gooding, Hunter Metcalf, Josh Viar, Josh Nesselrodt, Elizabeth Sines, William Taylor, Erin Coutermarsh, Glen Lavin, and Bender. Not pictured: Emily Huxford. See story for details.

ACCIDENT ELEM. AND RUSH SERVICES TEAM UP FOR HAITI – Accident Elementary School students and staff recently participated in the Maryland Kids Care Campaign–Operation Haiti, through which $2,025 was collected. Students and staff collected mainly pennies and more for the Haiti earthquake victims, and Rush Services added $1,000 to the school's donation. All of the funds collected went to the American Red Cross for humanitarian aid. In the front row, from left, are Savannah Poli, Justin Gallucci, Raelyn Bowser, Jacob Rush, Kayleigh Tomlin, and Gracie Groves. Southern High Students Raise Over $4,000 For Haiti Relief Fund

Southern High School students from Dave Bender's contemporary problems class raised a total of $4,061.19 over the course of a five-day campaign to collect money to help the survivors of the earthquake that struck Port-au-Prince Haiti, on Jan. 12. Students planned and executed an informational campaign under the name of "SHHH" (Southern High Helping Haiti). The theme focused on the goal of collecting $1 from every person who entered the school between Thursday, Jan. 21, and Monday, Jan. 25.

Students under the leadership of sophomores Kristen Yant, Christina Cortez, and Elizabeth Sines helped produce a motivational video that was played across the school's closed circuit television. They also created and distributed posters throughout the school, coordinated the collection of donation envelopes from first period teachers, and provided collection canisters for high traffic areas of the school, i.e., the main office and guidance office.

The students organized and carried out collections at the Northern vs. Southern girls' and boys' basketball games, as well as the Southern Matt Club youth wrestling tournament that Saturday morning. The total amount raised was also aided by several large donations made by a few area residents who wish to remain anonymous.

Students from the SHHH fundraising committee were also able to log more than 114 hours of service learning in the course of the five days.

"It is heartwarming to see young people in this community work together for such an unselfish cause," said Bender. "The entire school community at Southern graciously gave money toward this effort and realized the importance of this endeavor."

The money raised will be sent to the American Red Cross's 2010 Haiti Relief and Development Fund. The total raised by Southern will be reported and combined with donations raised by school students throughout the state of Maryland as part of the Maryland State Department of Education's Maryland Kids Care Campaign: Operation Haiti.

"I was blown away by the generosity of our community and school," commented student Corinne Weaver. "The students, the teachers, and even the parents got involved to help us with our goal. This event fostered a sense of compassion in the community and brought everyone together for one cause."

Haiti Earthquake Relief Collection Slated On Feb. 20

Volunteers from the Garrett County area will rally next Saturday, Feb. 20, to collect donations of clothing, medical supplies, and other urgently needed items to support a Haiti earthquake victim relief effort. Donations will be accepted at the Oakland Wal-Mart Supercenter from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"This is a totally volunteer effort in conjunction with Dale and Pam Hipp, two missionaries to Haiti based in the Burlington, W.Va., area," explained volunteer Paul Durham. "The Hipp family have lived and worked in Haiti for 20 years and found themselves in the West Virginia area when the earthquake struck."

According to Durham, the donated items will be packed and shipped directly by sea container to thousands of distressed people in Haiti. The Hipp family works closely with local organizations in that country and will personally coordinate with more than 40 schools, orphanages, churches, and medical centers. Many of these facilities were destroyed in the earthquake.

"The supplies will be escorted personally by the Hipp family and their on-the-ground partners to ensure that they are delivered directly to the sites," Durham said.

He is encouraging the public go to the relief mission web site at haitihope.net for more details and a list of needed items. Donated supplies should be packed with like-kind items in sturdy cardboard boxes, secured, and boldly labeled on the outside.

Durham noted that clothing, food, bedding items, medical supplies, and other basic necessities of living are currently in short supply or nonexistent in Haiti. Hundreds of thousands of people are without the essentials of survival. Relief organizations estimate that at least 100,000 tents are needed before the rainy season later this spring.

"Garrett county has a long tradition of reaching out to the poor and homeless in times of need," Durham said. "Our goal is to fill at least one sea container on our first collection day. Monetary donations are also being accepted to help defray the costs of shipping containers to Haiti."

In 30 minutes, Suzanne changed her fate.

Before I opened my own Curves, I was a member and it changed my life. I finally found an exercise program that I could stick with. It allowed me to work out on my schedule; a trainer was always available to help, encourage, and answer questions; and I did not feel like I had to lose weight before I walked in the door. There were women there just like me - some struggling to meet their goals, some who were there to maintain their success, and some who were there to help stay healthy. I lost over 60 pounds and more than 36 inches - and have been able to keep it off for more than 4 years! Curves works.

First United Partners With Local Businesses; Recognized By MBA

RECOGNIZED BY MBA – First United Bank & Trust was recently recognized by the Maryland Bankers Association (MBA) as a winner of the 2009 Financial Education Award in two categories. The bank was recognized for its outstanding contributions toward enhancing financial literacy among Maryland's school-age children (middle school level) and was recognized again in the Young Adult category (high school level). Recipients of the award and two members of the Garrett County Board of Education pictured above, from left to right, are Lynne Crehan, retail banking specialist; Josh Bosley, commercial loan officer; Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of Garrett County schools; Phil Rodeheaver, First United market president; Dawn Lewis, audit manager; Preston Sharps, investment officer; and Kurt Lear, supervisor of career technology education. See story for more details.

First United Bank & Trust was recently recognized by the Maryland Bankers Association (MBA) as a winner of the 2009 Financial Education Award in two categories. The bank was recognized for its outstanding contributions toward enhancing financial literacy among Maryland's school-age children (middle school level) and was recognized again in the Young Adult category (high school level).

First United has partnered for a number of years with the Garrett County Board of Education to sponsor the "Real Deal" financial literacy program for 8th graders and 11th graders at Northern and Southern schools. This program provides a real-world simulation of budgeting and financial planning through an interactive event.

The bank and other business partners from the community occupy stations where they interact with the students who are given an allotment of money and asked to make decisions which include buying a home and a vehicle, obtaining amenities, securing insurance and even dealing with local law enforcement. Their goal is to complete the session with money left over and also to gain an understanding of the importance of an education, choosing a career path and budgeting.

First United expressed its thanks to the following business partners: First United Insurance Group, Yoder-Hershberger Insurance Agency, Team One Auto Mall, Art Butler Auto Sales, Coldwell Banker Deep Creek Realty, Garrett College, Mountain Top Travel, Bill's Marine Service, Perfection Plus Salon, Garrett County Sheriff's Office, and Maryland State Police. Their commitment to this program is deemed valuable in the success of this progrm.

"The bank is thrilled to sponsor such a worthwhile event developed by our Board of Education," said Phil Rodeheaver, market president at First United. "The interaction with the students is terrific, and it's exciting to see them learn through the process. First United is honored to be acknowledged by our peers at the Maryland Bankers Association with these two financial education awards."

First United Corporation operates one full-service commercial bank, First United Bank & Trust. The bank has a network of community offices in Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties in Maryland, as well as Mineral, Hardy, Berkeley, and Monongalia counties in West Virginia. First United's web site can be found at www.mybank-4.com. As of Sept. 30, 2009, the corporation posted assets of $1.68 billion.

Ash Wednesday Service Scheduled At Paradise Chapel

The Deep Creek United Methodist Ministries of Hoyes and Paradise Church will hold a contemporary worship service on Ash Wednesday, Feb.17, beginning at 6:30 p.m. This service will be held at Paradise Chapel, located along Sand Flat Road.

"We invite you to join us as we begin the holy season of Lent," said Pastor Amy Chesla.

The service will include singing, a Bible message, Holy Communion, and the imposition of ashes.

Ash Wednesday Service Set At St. Mark's Luth.

St. Mark's Lutheran Church of Oakland will hold its traditional Ash Wednesday worship service on Wednesday, Feb. 17, at 7 p.m.

The service will include the optional imposition of ashes, as well as Holy Communion. The public is invited to attend.

St. Mark's choir will provide special music and lead congregational singing for the service.

"Ash Wednesday marks the beginning of Lent, and is traditionally seen as a solemn day of repentance," said Rev. C. Scott Robinson, pastor of St. Mark's. "Dusting oneself with ashes was a sign of mourning in ancient practice. Receiving ashes at the beginning of Lent is a symbolic way of expressing sorrow for sins and faults. Ash Wednesday has been in the church calendar for more than a thousand years."

St. Mark's is located at the corner of Second and Center streets across from the Ruth Enlow Library. For more information, persons may call the church office at 301-334-2668.

SNOW CORNICES
by Dr. Tom Sheahen

Editor's note: The following column appeared about two years ago, but seems appropriate to republish, given the current weather conditions.

Q. Wind blown snow can make some fantastic snow structures. Why do these structures build up? What holds them together?

A. The elaborate patterns of wind-driven snow are actually because of changes in wind direction and the flows adjacent to them, not just to the strength of the wind itself. Whenever a snowdrift has a sharp corner, it's usually a sign that the wind changed in that vicinity.

What is known as a snow cornice is a situation where snow takes on a sculptured "shelf" shape. The largest such formations occur along sharp ridges in high mountains, but the same basic principles determine the shape of snow cornices overhanging from a roof over a porch or veranda. Along the roof of a whole series of townhouses, the snow will merely blow "away." But if there is a gap or a vacant spot where the wind leaves the roof, then the wind below the edge can recirculate, and snow can deposit and build up into a cornice.

On a high mountain ridge, where wind blows snow upward toward the edge of the ridge, the wind leaves the edge like a ski jumper going off a jump. Beyond the ridge, the jetting snow-laden wind continues, but it can expand, turn downward, and slow down. Of course, it doesn't just make a 90-degree turn; the wind curves around as it gradually turns downward. As it blows beyond the edge, it tends to draft up the adjacent air behind the edge and beneath the ridge. Therefore, in this void space, a recirculation zone forms, right below the wind jetting from the edge. The wind circling around within that zone moves at a lower speed than the main prevailing wind above. The interaction between the wind blowing off such edges and the recirculation zone below is what creates snow cornices.

The same thing can occur at the edge of a roof over a porch or veranda of a house. At the edge, the wind becomes free to change direction, and so a recirculation zone can form. People with porches covered by a roof often find, after a windy snow storm, that there is a lot of snow on their porch. This is the snow that had been whipped around in the recirculation zone and deposited on the porch.

Cornices can sometimes overhang roofs or mountain ridges for significant distances. At the edge of a house roof, it is surprising but not impossible to find a cornice hanging out two or more feet into the air. You wonder why the snow just stays there, instead of falling off to the ground below. On mountains, a snow cornice might stick out 50 or 100 feet. The reason has to do with the wind in the recirculation zone.

There is a general principle about flowing fluids (including moving air) called Bernoulli's principle, which says that as the velocity increases, the pressure drops. And conversely, where the velocity is lower, the pressure is higher. If the wind stops entirely, the pressure just returns to normal atmospheric pressure. But with a strong wind (say, 25 miles/hour) blowing over a surface, the pressure above the surface will be reduced considerably.

Snowflakes tend to stick together, so snow can accumulate at edges where the wind suddenly blows over the edge with a void space below it. Next, suppose just a little snow starts to protrude out over the edge – a snow cornice begins to form. There will be a recirculating wind underneath that snow formation, but that wind will tend to have lower velocity and hence a pressure that will be higher, by Bernoulli's principle. This higher pressure underneath the cornice (pushing upward on the snow above) provides the necessary upward force to keep the snow from falling down. In this way, the overhanging snow is supported, and acts like a continuation of the roof. Consequently, the cornice can grow and extend farther. The differential pressure above and below the cornice also gives a slight "packing" effect and helps hold the snow together.

This mechanism keeps on acting until the cornice gets to be surprisingly large – a foot or so in the case of a house roof; many yards in the case of a mountain ridge. Seen from above, a cornice looks exactly the same as if the roof beneath were extended.

Later on, when the wind stops, the packed snow usually stays in place – the same way that a snowman of packed snow doesn't just blow away.

Danger comes when someone walks out on an overhanging snow cornice, not realizing that there is nothing but congealed snow beneath his feet. Double-black-diamond skiers who hike into the back country to start a run off high mountain ridges are at risk of having that snow collapse (before they can ski off the ridge) if they walk too close to the edge. Collapsing cornices can also produce avalanches.

FROM GARRETT COUNTY TO ECUADOR – A gift from Garrett County traveled to Ecuador this week with Oakland resident Debbie Welch. As the local area coordinator for Operation Christmas Child (OCC), Welch was invited to go on a shoe box distribution. "Each year, OCC takes area coordinator volunteers to experience firsthand how these gifts, Gospel literature, and fun children's programs impact the lives of children in over 100 countries," she said. National Collection Week is in November each year, but most of the boxes are distributed after Christmas to 105 countries. Welch offered to hand-deliver a shoe box filled with gifts from The Republican to a child on her trip. She plans to take pictures of the recipient, which will appear soon along with a feature article. Welch is pictured above on the right accepting the box of goodies such as candy, socks, and markers from Brenda Ruggiero, who writes for The Republican.

ON A PERSONAL NOTE
by Lucretia Sines

Well, the topic is the weather. Imagine that! I am loving the snow this winter. It reminds me of when I was a kid. Others my age seem to agree. We have not had a winter like this in a very long time.

Even with the aggravation of the white stuff, you have to admit it is better than the mud and is very beautiful on those big old pines.

Just a reminder to check on your neighbors always and help each other out. This kind of weather can bring out the tempers in everyone, but can also serve as a good time to take care of each other.

Special Events

The births of three babies were announced this week, all boys.

A son, Wallace Benson, was born to Jason and Natalie (Sanders) Grose, Morgantown, W.Va., on Feb. 3 at Monongalia General Hospital, Morgantown.

A son, Derek Allen, was born to Jamie and Brenda (Glotfelty) Cosner, McHenry, on Feb. 2 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. The maternal grandparents are Butch and Susan Glotfelty, Friendsville, and the paternal grandparents are Roger and Toni Cosner, Bayard, W.Va.

A son, Isaiah Edmund, was born to Scott and Shawny (Werdebaugh) Marley, Deer Park, on Feb. 2 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Adorable Adoptables

No Adorable Adoptable photos were available this week from the Garrett County Animal Shelter, but there are cats and dogs in need of homes.

"Because of the bad weather, call the shelter to make sure it is open and/or to ask what kind of pets are there," said a Garrett County Humane Society spokesperson. "The GCHS has had several reports of dogs that have frozen to death in this cold weather, so please make sure you bring in your dogs, or at least that they have adequate shelter and bedding to keep them warm in these frigid temperatures. Also, make sure to provide water twice a day."

Residents are also reminded to cover rabbit hutches with tarps to protect them from the wind, and provide three-sided shelters for horses.

"If you see any animals without shelter, contact the Animal Shelter or Sheriff's Office and they will contact the GCHS officer," the spokesperson said.

For more information, persons may call the shelter at 301-334-3553.

Gallentine Named Hospital Auxiliary's Volunteer Of Month

Carol Gallentine is being honored by Garrett County Memorial Hospital's Loar Auxiliary as Volunteer of the Month for February.

Gallentine works a regular shift every week in the Gift Shop and often accepts extra shifts. She also manages and coordinates the auxiliary's quarterly bake sales.

"Carol can always be found when we have our special sales in the hospital lobby and is part of the cleaning crew to ensure a customer-ready shop," said Denise Shay, gift shop manager.

In addition, Gallentine is very active in numerous community service organizations and her church, according to Shay.

Anyone interested in volunteering for the Loar Auxiliary or the hospital's Volunteers In Various Areas program is asked to call the Volunteer Services Department at 301-533-4041.

The Arts

Gospel Music Web Site Names Hummel Artist Of The Month

Local musician Loretta Hummel is the featured artist for the month of February on the Country Gospel Radio web site, which can be found at www.-countrygospelradio.webs.-com/artistspotlight.htm.

Hummel's song "Many Blessings" is number five on the Top 20 February Chart posted by the Country Gospel Radio station.

The online station's mission is to promote country gospel music, bluegrass gospel, and southern gospel with a country twang.

The top 20 list denotes the voting from the past month's Live 365's track rating system. The country Gospel Radio can be heard online at www.live365.-com/stations/country-gospelradio?play.

The Live365 radio network reaches millions of listeners worldwide. It features over 260 genres of music produced by over 5,000 broadcasters from over 15 countries.

Art Sale Set To Benefit Haitian Quake Victims

A special one-day-only art show and sale will be hosted at the Garrett College Art Gallery this Sunday, Feb. 14, Valentine's Day, from 1 to 4 p.m. According to Lorie Skidmore, event organizer, this fundraiser is intended to be "an expression of love" for the earthquake victims in Haiti, and to show the generosity of the Garrett County community to help those in need.

All proceeds raised at this event will be donated to Hope For Haiti Now, an organization that donates to nonprofit associations such as the Clinton/Bush Haiti Fund, United Nations World Food Program, Oxfam America, Partners in Health, the Red Cross, UNICEF, and the Yele Haiti Foundation, formed by Grammy-Award winning musician and producer Wyclef Jean.

Skidmore said more than 30 artists have donated nearly 200 pieces of art from a wide variety of artistic disciplines, and more artists are joining this effort since the deadline for this article.

This local event is part of "Help-Portrait: Love for Haiti Art Show," which is a worldwide event, and stems from the Help-Portrait organization. Founded by celebrity photographer Jeremy Cowart, Help-Portrait is a community of photographers coming together across the world to use their photography skills to "give back" to their local community.

The mission of the organization is "to find someone in need, take their portrait, print their portrait, and deliver them." Help for Haiti was set into motion with the same idea of giving back, but is open to all artists in every community, not just photographers, Skidmore said.

"So far the social media community has been responding to this devastation, as well as celebrities, churches, and relief organizations. We believe it's our time as the art community to respond," stated Cowart on his web site, www.help-portrait.com. "We've heard about many individual artists doing what they can to give to Haiti, but we believe in the strength of numbers and that if we all join in this together, the impact will be far greater."

Among the artists who have donated to the Garrett County effort are photographers Jim Lawrence, Roger Lueck, Kathleen Gibbs, Chip Lee, Angela Sincell, and Janis Afable. Some of the painters include Fred Peacock, Julia Hoffman,

MR. SHIVERS

by Robert Jackson Bennett

C. 2010, Orbit, $19.99, 336 pages

Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer

You swore you'd never do it. But you did.

In your mind, there was a line you'd never cross; something you wouldn't or couldn't do. An act. A purchase. A relationship, or something you couldn't abide. It wasn't for you and you weren't doing it, so there.

Then you did it, and you ended up eating those famous last words.

What does it take for a person to do something he never imagined himself doing? In the new book Mr. Shivers by Robert Jackson Bennett, it took the loss of his child for Marcus Connelly to chase evil.

Word was that nobody was going West, yet jalopies headed that way all the time, filled with people in search of a job or a new start. Walking was slow, jumping a train was dangerous, but it was always possible to hitch a ride with a friendly stranger. It was the Great Depression, and it seemed like everybody was going somewhere.

Marcus Connelly was going after the gray man.

Not long ago, Connelly was a husband, a father, and happy. Then the gray man killed his little girl, his Molly, and Connelly could hardly stand to live. He vowed that the gray man with the tattered coat and the stench, the one they called Shiver-Man, would pay.

But it wasn't going to be easy. No matter where Connelly went, Mr. Shivers was two steps ahead. In hobo camps and Hoovervilles, people said they'd seen him, but he vanished like smoke. Even when Connelly hooked up with other men seeking the mysterious killer, the Shiver-Man was elusive.

But Mr. Shivers had friends, and some of them snatched Connelly and his comrades, imprisoned them and hurt them badly. Escaping from a horrifying jail, Connelly realized two things: Shiver-Man was afraid of Connelly, and Mr. Shivers wasn't going to go down without a fight. The hunter was suddenly the hunted.

As Connelly passed from Oklahoma to New Mexico (or was he in Colorado?), he knew that the Shiver-Man was watching, but there was no way Connelly stop his mission. Because the question remained: Can someone kill Death?

Set in the Dust Bowl years (yet slightly futuristic), Mr. Shivers lives up to its name – if, that is, you can keep your focus on the novel and ignore the near-Shakespearean prose that overpopulates its pages.

Author Robert Jackson Bennett makes readers of this thriller uneasy almost from the outset, so squirmy are the situations in which his characters must pass. I liked how Connelly, a decent man before his daughter's death, becomes a monster despite himself, and it's hard waiting for the inevitable nastiness to happen to him.

But wait you must, as you slog through monologues that are in stout need of an axe. I truly enjoyed this story, but I could have withstood way less verbosity.

Still, for a debut novel, Mr. Shivers ain't bad. If you want to read an unsettling (albeit wordy) tale that will have you checking behind doors and avoiding dark rooms, do it with this one.

An Eye For Art

Valentine's Day – A Different Meaning This Year

I've never been the biggest fan of Valentine's Day, mainly because of how commercialized it has become. It wasn't always like this, however. History says that the day was inspired by a priest (St. Valentine), who was allegedly arrested because of going against authority. While in jail, he fell in love with a girl – possibly the jailer's daughter – who came to see him often. Apparently before he died, he wrote this girl a letter and signed it, "From your Valentine." How simply he showed his love, through a letter, and that same form of affection is widely used today. But I think the emotion of the day has gotten lost in the candies, flowers, and gifts.

Despite my objections to the materialistic traditions of this day, I am a huge supporter of what the day stands for – love! Love for our families, love for our significant others, love for our friends, and love for ourselves. And this year... oh my, this year I'm actually excited for it! Because I'll be doing something different this year to celebrate it. It has a different meaning for me this year, and I won't be the only one experiencing this.

As some of you may have read by now, the Art Gallery at Garrett College, and namely Lorie and Ron Skidmore, will be hosting an exhibition and art sale on this day of love, to raise funds to support Haiti. What a time for artists to come together! It's a time when painters, sculptors, photographers, woodworkers, and others are given the opportunity to join forces in an attempt to make a difference for those who are less fortunate.

We artists do not seek credit for this endeavor. We simply want to give back that which has been given to us. We use our talents as a way to reach out to people, to express ourselves, and to glorify our gifts. We do not hide it away, and on the day that is proclaimed a day of "love"; we want to show our community, and especially Haiti, just how much love we have to give.

Every single cent raised at this exhibit will be sent to "Hope For Haiti Now," an association that donates funds to other organizations such as UNICEF, Red Cross, United Nations World Food Program, Oxfam America, and Partners in Health, to name a few.

I know we are all feeling the pressure of the economy, and I'm sure many of us have already donated what we could. But when you really compare what you have to what the Haitians have, we are blessed beyond measure.

I heard on the radio the other day that $100 equals about 500 pounds in Haiti, and that it costs 318 pounds to move a ton of supplies. With a donation of $100, you will have helped move over a ton of supplies! There will be pieces at this exhibit worth less than that, so why not buy a unique piece of art and donate to this cause at the same time?

This is a day that the people of the Garrett County community, not just the artists, may come to show their support.. to show their heart for a nation that needs more love now than ever.

So please, in the spirit of love and humanity, come join us on Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m.

Happy Valentine's Day!

Five GC Girl Soccer Players Named To Times All-Area, All-AMAC Teams

Three members of the Northern High School girls' soccer team and two members of the Southern High School girls' soccer team have been named to the Cumberland Times All-Area Soccer first team. Claiming spots are Adria Graham, Kaitlynn Fratz, and Sydney McFarland of Northern High School, and Claire Wilkinson and Kelsey Lear of Southern High School. Graham, Fratz, and Wilkinson were also named to the All-AMAC first team, while McFarland was named to the All-AMAC second team.

With 36 goals, 24 assists and 96 points, Northern's Graham led the area with a 6.00 scoring average, breaking her own area record of 5.37 set during her junior year. Graham was chosen as a captain of the All-Area team along with Mtn. Ridge's Stephanie Fazenbaker and Quincy Hegeman. The four-time All-Area and all-conference star won this year's AMAC crown by scoring 23 goals and assisting on 17 others in just eight games for 63 points and a whopping 7.87 average.

All but one of the area's major scoring records belong to Graham, who has made a verbal commitment to continue her career at Frostburg State. She is No. 1 in career goals (112), career assists (68), career points (292) and career scoring average (4.49).

This year, Graham set the single-season records for assists (24), points (96), and average (6.00). She scored on five free kicks, had one header goal, a header assist and two corner kick assists. Eight of her goals came on shots from outside the penalty area.

Fratz, a junior striker for the Huskies, put up numbers that on any other year would have made her the area scoring champion. She finished second, to teammate Graham, with 33 goals and seven assists in 16 games for a 4.56 average. Her 33 goals were the third-best single season total in area history.

In the Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference, Fratz was second in the conference in scoring with 21 goals and six assists in eight games for a whopping 6.00 average.

"She is a pure goal scorer who has the will to find the back of the net," said Northern's head coach Jeff Graham. "She's an excellent student-athlete and has the speed, agility, and strength necessary to be a premier player."

Finishing sixth in the area in scoring was Northern's McFarland, a sophomore, with her 19 goals and eight assists in 16 games for a 2.87 average. She was fifth in the AMAC in scoring with 11 goals and four assists in eight games for a 3.25 average.

According to Coach Graham, McFarland is a quick, left-footed player who proved to be dangerous from anywhere in the scoring zone. "Sydney is extremely aggressive near the goal. She will continue to be a scoring force for our team over the next two years."

Southern's Wilkinson finished with a 3.13 per-game average to gain a spot on the All-Area and All-AMAC teams. She led the Rams in scoring and finished fourth in the area with 20 goals and seven assists in 15 games. She is a three-year varsity player and was voted the team's most valuable player.

"Claire works hard in practice and has a never, ever give-up attitude on the field," said Southern head coach Sara Shaffer. "At midfield, she makes good decisions in distributing the ball, but she is so accurate on goal we love to use her up front as a striker."

This year, Wilkinson was fourth in the conference in scoring with 13 goals and three assists in seven games for a 4.14 average. She joins the first teams for the second year in a row.

Joining Wilkinson is teammate Lear, a senior captain and midfield. She was key to both the Rams' offense and defense from her midfield position, finishing 21st in the area in scoring with three goals and six assists.

"Kelsey's a lefty, but we used her on both sides as a wing midfielder, and we also used her in the center, too," said Coach Shaffer. "She was our highest-scoring midfielder. Kelsey's always been a natural leader for us. She stays calm in pressure situations and always plays with great intensity."

Other members of the team were also chosen for All-Area second team and honorable mention placement. Receiving second team spots were Nikki Diehl of Northern and Abby Wildesen of Southern.

Northern's Kaitlyn Walker and Southern's Alli Shaffer were named to the honorable mention team. Walker and Wildesen were also named to the All-AMAC second team, while Diehl and Southern's Katlyn McDade were given honorable mention placements.

Coach Gibson Notes Updated Laker Schedule

Winter weather has played havoc with local sports schedules, with those of the Garrett College basketball teams being no exception.

The Lakers are slated to host Harford this Friday, with the men scheduled to play at 5 p.m., and the women at 7 p.m.

An earlier game that was to be played against Anne Arundel CC was cancelled and has not been rescheduled.

The men's team is scheduled to entertain Cecil CC on Saturday, a team that is ranked nationally in Division II and has only one loss in 14 Maryland JUCO games.

It will be sophomore night for Doma Ibrahim, Howard Ferguson, Shawn Greenfield, and Marko Agbaba.

"This is a great group of young men, and I hope fans get out to see them play," said Dennis Gibson, men's head coach.

The Lakers will host their first JUCO tournament game next Tuesday. League officials have decided to proceed with the tourney and seed the teams based on a percentage of wins/losses in league play.

"We are 8-4 and in fourth place, and will probably play only two more conference games before the tournament," Gibson said. "Even if we play all three games (including Anne Arundel) and lose them, we should still have a home game on Tuesday, but it will depend on the other teams' makeup schedules."

Northern High Sports Schedule Changes Noted

Northern High School has announced changes to the sports schedules for girls' and boys' basketball teams, which have been affected by the weather this past week.

The schedule is as follows:

Girls' Basketball

The Huskies remain scheduled to travel to Bishop Walsh on Saturday, to Mtn. Ridge on Monday, and to Fort Hill on Wednesday.

Boys' Basketball

The Friday, Feb. 5, away game against Mtn. Ridge was postponed and has been rescheduled for Monday, Feb. 22, with the junior varsity game beginning at 6 p.m., and tip-off for the varsity at 7:30 p.m.

Northern remains scheduled to host Hampshire on Friday, and to travel to Frankfort on Monday and to Salisbury on Wednesday.

Holtschneider Named To Cumberland Times All-Area, All-AMAC First Teams

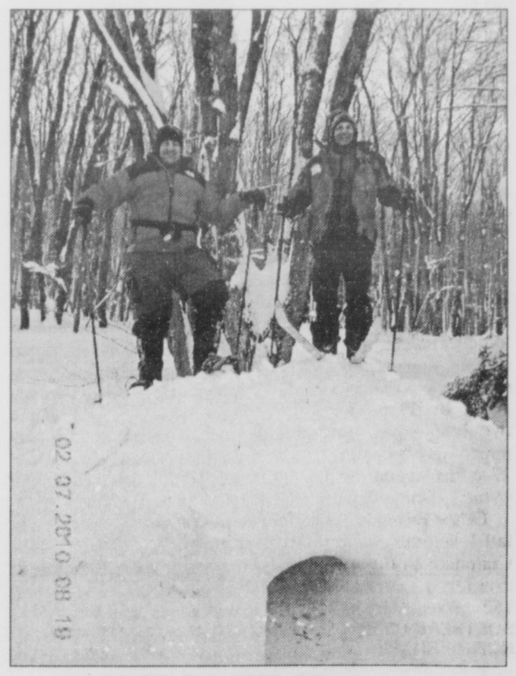
Steven Holtschneider of Northern High School has been chosen as a member of the Cumberland Times All-Area and All-AMAC boys' soccer first teams for the 2009 season, among many other area athletes. He will be led by Fort Hill's Daniel Johnson, Mtn. Ridge's Chris Ranker, and Bishop Walsh's Dylan Dunn.

Holtschneider, a junior midfielder, finished his second year as a starter for the Huskies, and was also the team's leading scorer. He was among the area's top 25 scorers with six goals, two assists, and a 1.00 average. He was key in Northern's defense, which was one of the area's best, having allowed only 17 goals in 14 games.

"Steven has great soccer sense and could play anywhere on the field and be effective," said Northern head coach Lynn Lais. "He took our free kicks in the attacking third for us, and can score from 20 to 25 yards out. His vision and technical ability are better than average, and he has a tremendous work rate. Steven has consistently gotten better with every game the last two seasons, and we look forward to next year, when he is a senior."

Northern's Ryan Beiler, Cody Brenneman, and Carson Kamp were chosen for the All-Area and All-AMAC second teams, and Taylor Nicklin was chosen for placement on the All-Area and All-AMAC honorable mention teams.

A.J. Storck of Southern High School claimed spots on both the All-Area and All-AMAC second teams. Teammates Conor Forrester and Seth Ingram were both chosen as members of the All-Area and All-AMAC honorable mention teams.



SKI PATROLERS TEST SKILLS – National Ski Patrol Mountain Travel and Rescue training participants Andrew Scott, left, and John Dyke demonstrate the strength of their self-made quinzee, a snow structure constructed from packed snow and hollowed to provide emergency shelter in harsh winter conditions. Area Ski Patrol Training Becomes Memorable Event For Participants

When National Ski Patrol (NSP) Mountain Travel and Rescue (MTR) instructors Jerry Timcik and Mike Logsdon met their group of 10 ski patroller students last week at Kooser State Park, Pa., the National Weather Center had forecast between 1 to 3 inches of snow for Friday night, ending Saturday with perhaps 6 to 8 additional inches.

The site was thought to be just on the northern edge of an oncoming storm. But by the time the weekend training course had ended on Sunday, more than 36 inches of snow had blanketed the training site and left the group with the memory of a most challenging yet enjoyable learning experience.

The training participants represented patrols from various ski areas in the

Rams Record 49-18 Victory On The Mats Over Huskies

While a final score of 49-18 in wrestling would indicate domination by the winning team, last Thursday's match between Southern and Northern high schools was actually closer, as several of the individual matches between the Rams and Huskies were close.

Five Rams recorded pins to help keep Southern undefeated in regular-season matches.

Junior Bubba Scheffel, a two-time state champion, upped his personal record to 27-0 this season with a pin in the 171-pound class.

Other Rams to gain pinfall victories were Sean Chapman in the 112-pound division, Louis Hardester at 152, Dale Marple at 189, and Ryan Bennett in the 215-pound bout.

Senior Brutus Scheffel, a three-time Maryland champ, improved his personal mark for the season to 28-1 by recording a 12-2 major decision in the 160-pound division.

Reigning state champions Lex Ozias of Southern and Adam Moranduzzo of Northern met each other in the 145-pound division, with Ozias emerging as the victor, earning a hard-fought 4-2 decision in overtime. Ozias also upped his personal mark to 28-1, while Moranduzzo dropped to 23-3.

Also winning on points for the Rams were Gavin Murphy in the 125-pound division, and Dakota Workman at 135 pounds. Dakota Pritt was awarded a victory by injury default.

Getting pins for the Huskies were Scott Warnick in the 103-pound bout and heavyweight Justin Meyers.

Adam Finzel edged Southern's Nick Stewart, 12-10, in overtime in the 119-pound clash, and Kameron Kamp was a decision winner in the 140-pound class.

The Rams were slated to host the regional dual championships last night, but weather conditions forced postponement. The state dual tournament is tentatively set for this Saturday.

The Huskies will not return to action until the Bi-County meet, scheduled for Feb. 20 at Mountain Ridge.

ALL-STARS BRING HOME MEDALS/THROPHIES – The Western Maryland Xtreme All-Stars traveled to Upper Marlboro to compete in the Maryland Cup State Championships on Jan. 30. The teams are coached by Jessica Crosco, Shasta Spiker, and Kim Crosco at Jessica's Dance Creations in Loch Lynn. "This is our second time competing in the Maryland Cup," said Jessica. "This competition is huge, with over 250 teams that enter. I'm proud of all the girls and their hard work." Kailee Brandon, daughter Kellee and James Brandon, won first place in the individual cheer category. Kailee also won second place for her jumps in the jump-off competition. For the second year in a row, Regina Crosco won first place in hip-hop, making her a two-time state hip-hop champion. Keele Flanigan and Lindsay Thomas both placed second in their solo dance division. Lindsay also placed third for her jumps in the junior division. Sabryn Schoolcraft won first place in the tumbling competition and second in the jump-off. Angel Folk won first place in tumbling. This is Angel's second first-place win this year for her tumbling skills. Sydney Spaulding placed second in the tumbling and second in the jump-off junior division. Olivia Gaither won second place in the senior jump division. The mini cheer team placed second. The senior hip-hop and cheer teams placed third. western Maryland and western Pennsylvania areas.

An MTR course provides training to NSP members and non-members in order to prepare them to assist in a lost skier search and rescue mission in mountainous, cold weather, snowy conditions.

The seven days of training culminates in a two-night overnight session, situated in a relatively remote location. The location for this particular MTR course was on Laurel Mountain in Pennsylvania's Laurel Highlands.

"Typically, patrollers ski or snowshoe about 1 mile into the back county for the first night's experience," said Logsdon, who is an alpine patroller at Wisp Ski Area and director of adventure sports at Garrett College. "This gives everyone a chance to get a feeling for the weather conditions, nature of the terrain, and provides a sort of warm-up for the next day's journey of from 5 to 10 miles farther into the back country."

However, as Friday night's snowfall began to accumulate, and with what the patrollers discovered Saturday morning, it became apparent that further journey on unbroken trail would be a highly risky venture.

Timcik, a Nordic (cross-country) patroller with vast experience in winter back country travel and rescue and who serves on the Kooser State Park trail system, made the official call:

"We're staying put. Since we're already set up, it would be unwise for us to expend such an incredible amount of energy to trek to another campsite, set up camp, and try to instruct the various required lessons. With West Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania all declaring a state of emergency, I feel we are as safe and protected as we can be here in these mountains, at this location."

But unfortunately, not everyone was "set up" anymore. At about 3 a.m. Saturday morning, one patroller's tent had collapsed and buried him. Having difficulty breathing and pushing himself free from the heavy snow, he had to evacuate himself by slitting open the roof of his tent.

The patroller then rapidly constructed a makeshift emergency tarp shelter to protect himself from the elements, good practice that MTR participants normally do in a "controlled" setting.

As a normal part of the training, but now with more relevance than ever, MTR participants construct snow shelters known as quinzees, then sleep in them the second night.

As Timcik explained, "A quinzee, when made properly, is incredibly strong, and insulates well from the outside elements. It is essentially a 12-foot diameter domed pile of packed snow, hollowed out until the wall thickness is approximately one foot."

As a test of a quinzee's strength, patrollers walk across the roof of the finished quinzee. And as far as insulating properties is concerned, when the outside temperature dropped to 5°F Saturday night, temperatures inside the quinzees were about 30°F.

By noon on Sunday, the park officials had opened the road to the participants' vehicles.

"After breaking camp and hiking out, the group proceeded to the park office for a well-deserved MTR graduation ceremony," Logsdon said.

The graduates were Fred Fargotstein, Laurel Highland's Nordic Patrol; Andrew Scott, Laurel Hill Nordic Patrol; John and Angelina LaForge, Wisp Alpine Ski Patrol; Eleonore Randolph, Laurel Highlands Nordic and Wisp Alpine patrols; John Majhan, Laurel Mountain Alpine Patrol; John Dyke, Seven Springs Alpine Patrol; and Stephan Kaltwasser and Catherine Patterson, NSP non-member enrollees and students at Garrett College's Adventure Sports program.

"Looking back on the event made me think of my old Boy Scout motto: 'Be Prepared,'" said one graduate.

Logsdon quickly added, "And judging from the safe return, great amount of learning, and abundant enjoyment shared by these participants, they were"

TO HELP OUT AT DAYTONA – Garrett County will be represented in a special way at the 2010 Dayton 500 NASCAR race this Sunday, as Buddy and Todd Tasker of Buddy's Towing, Deep Creek Lake, will be at the Daytona (Fla.) Speedway to assist with towing during the event. The Taskers (father and son) completed their training and safety course last week at the racetrack. Live coverage of the event will be broadcast locally over Fox Channel 53.

Anglers Advised Of Poor Savage River Conditions

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Fisheries Service announced that it is closely monitoring the fish population at the Savage River Reservoir during the repair of the outlet gates, which currently present a serious public safety concern. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) reported draining of the reservoir on January 31 to give contractors for the Upper Potomac River Commission (UPRC) access to the large gates, which are urgently in need of repair.

"The drawdown of the reservoir and disruptions to the system were unavoidable," said assistant fisheries director Don Cosden. "The DNR Fisheries Service is committed to restoring over time the reservoir fishery and the excellent tailwater trout fishery that anglers have enjoyed in the Savage River system over the years."

As anticipated, the draining process has substantially impaired river conditions with the flow of accumulated sediment from the dam. During the drawdown process, fisheries personnel observed accumulations of organic and inorganic materials downstream.

Fish-kill surveys in the Savage River tailwater area have revealed "a handful" of dead shiners, sculpin, yellow perch, and blue gills from the reservoir. While no dead trout have been observed at this time, it is expected that the high turbidity conditions will impact the trout population and the aquatic insects that are the base of the trout food chain.

DNR biologists will continue to assess these impacts as the weather and water conditions allow. Restoration plans in coordination with UPRC will follow and will likely include the use of high flows from the reservoir to clear sediment from gravel and cobble bottoms, where trout spawn and invertebrate food sources hide. The agency may also restock brook trout and invertebrates from unimpacted areas upstream, and plans to restock the reservoir as the appropriate fish become available from the state hatcheries.

The requirement to repair the gates came as a result of inspections in 2007, which uncovered the problems with the aging gates. A $3.92 million grant under President Barack Obama's American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) was awarded for the project.

The removal of the old gates and installation of new ones will occur throughout February and early March. Refilling of the reservoir is expected to start by mid-March after repairs are inspected and approved.

"While the impacts to the fisheries are extremely unfortunate, the broken gates presented a serious public safety concern," said a DNR spokesperson. The Maryland Department of the Environment's Dam Safety Program ensures all dams in Maryland are designed, constructed, operated, and maintained safely to prevent dam failures and the consequences of failure.

In June of last year the Environmental Protection Agency awarded the Maryland Department of the Environment $121.6 million to fund Maryland water quality and drinking water projects under the ARRA. This funding will enable construction of water infrastructure projects that are estimated to create hundreds of jobs, and that will protect public health, improve the environment, and help clean up the Chesapeake Bay and Maryland waterways, according to the DNR.

The meteorologist noted that though the county will receive fewer inches this week than it did last weekend, blowing and drifting snow will create major problems. He added that temperatures will be in the teens and lower 20s.

Kane said the cold temperatures will remain throughout February. He indicated that this was actually good, in that all that snow would not be melting quickly, creating flooding problems.

Moyer reported that last weekend's storm cost about $50,000 a day, including fuel, equipment, antiskid, and overtime expenses.

"It's expensive," he said.

The superintendent noted that all of his $300,000 budget for winter overtime has been spent. But he stressed that everything was "OK" budgetwise. Moyer said $1.5 million previously earmarked for paving projects had been set aside to cover any overruns.

"We're basically in good shape and ready for the next storm," Moyer said.

He reported that three department trucks were being repaired and a fourth was completely out of commission.

"But, really, for what this equipment has been through, that's good," Moyer said about the truck damage.

Frantz noted that if this week's storm is declared a natural disaster, the county may be able to recoup some cleanup costs.

Gregg said there likely will be significant power outages in the county, given the amount of snow that the county has and will receive. He asked Frantz about arrangements for emergency shelters.

The director said the winter rescue teams and American Red Cross are on standby. In addition, Grantsville, Deer Park, and Oakland volunteer fire departments, and Southern Rescue Squad have agreed to provide shelters. Frantz indicated that arrangements for additional shelters can be made if needed.

The director stressed the importance of residents keeping their flue vents open, monitoring snow levels on roofs, and checking on elderly neighbors during winter storms.

The county officials also asked that four-wheelers and snowmobile drivers stay off roadways. In addition to it being illegal, it is dangerous for them to be on public roads, especially when visibility is diminished.

Moyer also requested that motorists stay home as much as possible during winter storms and cleanup.

"We don't want anymore people out on these roads than necessary," he said, noting that it is hard for plow drivers to see other vehicles in whiteout conditions.

The superintendent noted that his crews will not plow a private driveway unless they get an emergency call from Frantz's office deeming it necessary.

In addition, Moyer stressed, county crews cannot plow cemetery lanes, even for pending funerals. He acknowledged that it may be a financial hardship for some families to hire a contractor to plow the lanes, but the county cannot be liable for damages.

"Hopefully, everyone remains calm and works with us, and we'll do the best we can," Moyer said about this week's storm.

Crellin Elem. Teacher Awarded State Environmental Educator Of The Year

Crellin Elementary School teacher Rebecca Sanders was recently named the Chesapeake Bay Trust's 2010 Environmental Educator of the Year. This award is given to honor outstanding environmental stewards who have made exceptional contributions to improve the health of the environment and the Chesapeake Bay.

"Our work is supported by over 400,000 Marylanders who contribute annually to the trust's work as a grant -maker either by making donations through the "Treasure the Chesapeake" license plate program and the state's income tax check-off program for the bay, or by participating in a funded project," said Allen Hance, executive director of the Chesapeake Bay Trust.

Each year, the trust recognizes an educator and a student for their work to support the environment and the Chesapeake Bay. Students and teachers from across the state submit applications for the $5,000 awards.

The trust was joined by Lt. Governor Anthony Brown earlier this month to announce Sanders as the winner of its 2010 award. "Selected from a talented pool of nominees, this educator teaches about the bay and the broader watershed through science classes and other parts of the curriculum; uses school grounds and local natural areas to enrich classroom experiences; and motivates and inspires students by promoting environmental awareness throughout the school and the broader community," noted Hance.

The $5,000 award was presented to Sanders at an awards ceremony earlier this month attended by members of the Maryland General Assembly, superintendents, educators, bay leaders, and members of Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE).

"Mrs. Sanders is a dedicated, innovative educator, committed to environmental stewardship," said Hance. "Promoting behavior change through instruction, Sanders has created a culture where the natural environment is a catalyst for learning. Students realize their responsibility for the environment because they are involved in positive environmental practices as part of their daily routines."

Marylanders can participate in the trust's grant making mission by purchasing the Treasure the Chesapeake license plate (www.bayplate.org), contributing to the Chesapeake Bay and Endangered Species Fund on the Maryland state income tax form, and making individual donations to the trust. The trust brings in additional funds for its grant programs through partnerships with private foundations, corporations, and state and federal agencies. Last year alone, the trust's grants helped to educate over 86,000 students on bay related issues, plant over 220,000 trees and native plants, remove 429 tons of trash, and engage over 36,000 volunteers.

The Chesapeake Bay Trust is an independent, nonprofit foundation. Funding provided by the trust sparks on-the-ground change in communities throughout Maryland and works to cultivate a new generation of bay stewards. A full 90% of the trust's expenditures are directed to its Chesapeake Bay restoration and education programs. For more information on the Chesapeake Bay Trust, persons should visit www.cbtrust.org.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

My two daughters who are students at WVU were able to pay a quick visit with me last weekend before they traveled to their Sussman grandparents' place in Silver Spring. It was wonderful to have them home. When they arrived, they frolicked in the deep snow like little children, slid down the big piles along my lane, and made snow angels. And thank goodness they cleared my deck and ramp.

Caitlin cooked up a storm. She was very pleased to see her name on the out-of-state dean's list in Morgantown's Dominion Post newspaper, following another young lady from Accident, Becky Berkebile.

Their visit was too short, because they had serious business in the snow-clogged suburbs of Washington, D.C. They went because their much-beloved grandfather Alan Sussman passed away.

He was a wonderful grandfather for them, and a great father-in-law for me. His sense of humor was legendary. He enjoyed dressing up in costumes, including as Miss Piggy, in spite of the fact that he wasn't built very much like a piggy.

When he was younger, his tall, slim build led to playing basketball. He had long success as a salesman at Laurel Dodge-Chrysler because of his outgoing, friendly, warm personality. He won many awards for his sales performance regionally. Both "Big Al" and his wife of about 60 years, Ruthe Chrystal, descended from 20th century Jewish immigrants from Russia.

Al achieved the American dream and enjoyed a somewhat upscale lifestyle in Silver Spring and Rockville until they sold their home and moved into Leisure World. Their generous natures made our holiday visits with them a high point of the year for my daughters.

The biggest highlight for both Al and Ruthe and my daughters was our annual trip to Ocean City, where Al rented a condominium. We enjoyed going out for dinner to classy restaurants and especially eating fresh crabs at the condominium.

Back in the very early 1980s when I first met Al and Ruthe as a bride for their son Lloyd, I felt very welcome and a real part of their family, even though I was a gentile girl.

Although my daughters were brought up as Lutheran, we still often celebrated Jewish holidays, too, like Hanukkah and the seder, a special dinner for Passover. One year, we included Emmanuel's pastor, Louise Knotts, and Al and Sue Arnson at our seder.

Ruthe and Al also loved to celebrate Christmas. For a Jewish suburban boy, Lloyd really embraced the farm lifestyle, especially making hay.

I am feeling very out of things by not being there for Al's funeral. It possibly will be held on Tuesday, weather permitting.

It certainly is a real winter wonderland outside. The snow is sparkling like diamonds, and I have several crazy icicles on my window sills. The bright sunshine makes many strangely shaped shadows on the drifts and piles of snow.

Another snow event is due here tomorrow – Tuesday. But this is early afternoon, and the sky is a bright pale blue with lots of sunshine. It is still pretty cold, but my icicles are dripping. It is perfect for going out cross-country skiing.

Bittinger and the rest of Garrett County fared very well, compared to the D.C. area, where they got three feet of snow. They do not have an adequate number of snow trucks.

It's hard to believe that even in the very upscale neighborhood where my cousin Keith Buckel lives, they lost their power for several days. Thank goodness we didn't have to deal with that (knock on wood).

I think we got about two feet of snow, or maybe a little less than that, which is very lucky, because I heard some thunder during the snowfall, and that usually means a really big snowfall. We did get plenty, just not a totally crazy amount like we did the couple of times we experienced "thunder snow."

It seems that almost every Super Bowl Sunday, the Maryland Terrapins have a big basketball game. Today, it was with the North Carolina Tar Heals. Maryland played a great game and beat the Tar Heels by a margin of over 20 points, so they have become a real force in the Atlantic Coast Conference. And the students in Comcast Center were yelling, "We want Duke!"

Maryland's star player is from Latin America. I hate to think that he is a senior. But that is college sports: Your best player suddenly graduates. Over the decades since I was still a student at the University of Maryland, lots of Super Bowl days have come and gone. One of the last years I was still a student, Maryland lost to North Carolina State, a crushing defeat.

The Steelers were not in the Super Bowl that year, so I joined my college boyfriend Flip and his family in Silver Spring to root for the Redskins (their team). But

FIRST Teams To Demonstrate Season Robots

FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) teams will be demonstrating their robots on Sunday, Feb. 21, from 2 to 6 p.m. at GEARS, located in Accident. Representatives from local FIRST LEGO League teams, FIRST Tech Challenge (FTC) Team 2818 and FIRST Robotics Challenge (FRC) Team 1629, will be on hand to show their solutions for this season's challenges.

There are seven FIRST LEGO League (FLL) teams from Garrett County and neighboring Springs, Pa. These teams are among the 14,725 teams participating in 56 countries in this year's "Smart Move" challenge. FLL teams use LEGO components to build robots on a 4 ft. x 8 ft. playing field. Teams are also challenged to develop research-based solutions to real life problems and develop a five-minute presentation that shares the solution. The FLL program targets students ages 9 to 14.

Also demonstrating will be Team 2818 and Team 1629. These programs target high school age students. FTC teams build robots to compete on a 12 ft. x 12 ft. playing field in a 2 vs. 2 game situation, in which FRC teams build robots to compete on a 27 ft. x 54 ft. playing field in a 3 vs. 3 game situation. Both FTC and FRC robots are built to compete in both autonomous and tele-operated modes.

FTC Team 2818 is in its second season and is sponsored by 4-H, GEARS, Phenix Technologies, and Craig & Associates. FRC Team 1629 is in its sixth year of competition and is partnered with the Garrett County Public School System, Beitzel Corporation Inc., Pillar Innovations, and Garrett Container Systems Inc.

More information about FIRST, directions to GEARS, and weather related announcement concerning the open house can be found at sites.google.-com/site/firstingarrett-county or by calling 301-334-8926.

they lost. And for a couple of years, it seemed that whatever the Terps did in their game, that was the same fate of whatever team I was rooting for.

So I have high hopes for the New Orleans Saints. No doubt they are big underdogs. But go Saints! Their city and region looked so beaten down in the last several years.

I know that our president is for the Saints. I guess he is hosting both houses of Congress for a Super Bowl party.

It is a shame that Democratic Congress people do not embrace "change you can believe in." They are more concerned about not being called Socialists than bringing access to health care to millions of American citizens. And access to reasonably priced insurance would give a big boost to both small and large businesses unable to afford adding more workers.

I have several special birthdays during the month of February. My brother Barry's birthday already came and went (Feb. 5). So I tortured him by singing "Happy Birthday" to him on the phone. Then my older brother Rodney will have his birthday at the end of a very big week for birthdays of people close to me.

The 20th is Cindy Beachy Stanton's birthday, and my first love's birthday is Feb. 23. It's funny what little details I remember about a person I have not seen since very early in the '70s while I was ending my career at Northern High School.

That relationship never had a chance to gain much steam because of distance. He lived about 40 miles away, and neither of us had a car or did much driving.

Even though we never had many chances to get together, I still have some pleasant memories of him, a handful of old letters, and a picture of us taken in one of those photo booths in the Five and Ten store in downtown Cumberland.

The next birthday in that week is that of my very close friend from first grade all the way through college days; Linda Bowman, now Newberg, who lives in the Romney, W.Va., area. I still often see her when she comes up to visit her parents in McHenry. I think she shares a birthday with Liz Taylor and George Harrison of the Beatles. She introduced me to skiing.

The final February birthday is that of my Aunt Helen Englar of Westminster, who was a leap-year baby. Her birthday is the 29th, so technically she has a birthday only once every four years.

Hooray! The Saints handily defeated the Colts. So let the celebration in New Orleans begin! The result was in doubt the whole game.

I rarely doubted when the Steelers were in the Super Bowl. I believed it would end the way I wanted.

Can you believe Vancouver doesn't have enough snow for some of the events in the Winter Olympics? They could remove tons of the white stuff from Washington, D.C., where they have so much that there is nowhere to put it. I do love the Olympics, both winter and summer.

Unfortunately, the world's eyes turn in a different direction toward Iran, ready to celebrate the 75th anniversary of its Islam revolution. And the threat of nuclear weapons in their hands is still sadly growing. President Obama realizes that Iran poses the greatest danger, and he tried many strategies to control the situation. Iran is the home of radical Islam, and no doubt it played some role in the rise of terrorists such as al-Qaeda.

I personally knew a family from Tehran that embodied the culture conflict in Iran in the 1970s. Among the crowd I hung out with in Garrett Hall at the University of Maryland where Steve Schlossnagle lived was a guy named Aaron, whose mother was American and father was Iranian. He was the top painter in Iran. He wasn't traditional Islam, but his art revealed some sympathy with the Islam revolution. His favorite subject in his paintings was a large angry red bull.

Aaron invited Steve and me to spend a month in their rented villa on the Spanish Mediterranean Sea. We spent lots of time on a lovely beach, where we met many people from many European countries who invited us to visit them. So that was a major factor in where we would go during the rest of the summer. So we visited a family in Belgium and parents of a friend in Zurich, Switzerland. And we met some GIs in Madrid who invited us to their barrack in Germany.

But Aaron's father didn't like me because he said I was a good example of what was wrong about America.

Anyway, Iran is a very different nation. I think our president is aware of that, and he certainly is very concerned about their nuclear program. No one can deny that he does do his homework for whatever problem America is facing.

Pieces From The Past

Antiques
Primitive Collections

The grand opening for Garrett County's newest antiques store, Pieces From the Past, is scheduled for next Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 20 and 21, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Located at 4150 Garrett Highway, between Oakland and Red House, the shop specializes in "country look" antiques, as seen in Country Home, Country Living, and other home decorating magazines.

"Our family has been collecting antiques and primitive pieces since 2003," explained owner Keri Lucas. "In the summer of 2009, we purchased our family farm near Red House and decided to turn our passion for collecting into a profession."

She noted the store offers something for both primitive and "not-so-primitive" homes, plus a wide selection of affordable country, and rustic home décor.

"We have great new homemade exclusives that will help make your house a home," Keri added. "Discover our unique collections of year-round home decorations and season accessories for your entire home."

She has many decorating themes to accent a home owner's personal style, including quilts, floor cloths, primitive décor, custom furniture, candles, primitive lighting, country reproductions, punched tin, curtains, and wreaths,"

Pieces From the Past will be open Wednesday through Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. For more information, persons may call 301-334-3220 or e-mail piecesfromthepast@live.-com.

DRIVING HAS BEEN HAZARDOUS THIS WEEK, so some local residents have opted for a different form of transportation, such as retired assistant superintendent of Garrett County schools Brenda McCartney, pictured here on Second Street in Oakland. Such travel also saves a lot in gasoline expenditures; however, skis require a different kind of "fuel" for the operator, which may be why Dr. McCartney is pictured just outside the door to Dottie's Grill. "Power Of One" Event Reset, To Be Held Feb. 27

The "power of one" special meeting at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland has been rescheduled, having been canceled on Jan. 26 because of inclement weather. The event, which will feature short talks by several community leaders of non-profit and service organizations, will take place on Saturday, Feb. 27, beginning at 10:30 a.m. The church's women's group is hosting the gathering. Members of the public are encouraged to attend.

The theme of the event is how one person can significantly improve the world, according to Ginny Grove, coordinator of the event. Persons looking for local volunteering opportunities are especially invited to attend.

There will be 17 organizations represented, with a representative of each speaking for about three minutes, Grove said.

There will be a voluntary admission charge. Persons may bring non-perishable foods for the House of Hope or gasoline cards of any monetary denomination for the clients of the Dove Center.

Organizations to be represented include: the Dove Center, Head Start/Early Head Start, Girl Scouts in Garrett County, Boy Scouts, the Lighthouse, VIVA (hospital volunteers), Habitat for Humanity, Garrett Mentors, Hospice of Garrett County, House of Hope, Landon's Library, Our Town Theatre, Southern Garrett Rescue Squad, Christian Crossing, Warm the Children, and the Amer-ican Red Cross.

St. Matthew's Episcopal Church's program, "It's In the Bag," will also be discussed. It is a program that provides food for students in the county who are in need.

Volunteer opportunities in all groups will be discussed. Refreshments will be served. The meeting is to end at approximately noon.

"FLORDIA," HERE I COME! Alaska and Florida can be found in the Rand McNalley atlas, but where the heck is "Flordia." Robert Liller snapped this "road sign," possibly created by a dyslectic graffiti artist, along Smouse Road in Pleasant Valley. Too bad snow banks don't come with spell check, but the sign's underlying message is still understandable: "Head south, more snow is on its way!"

Backhoe Hits Passenger Car On Garrett Hwy.

Garrett County sheriff's deputies investigated a two-vehicle accident involving a backhoe tractor and a motor vehicle. There were no injuries reported in the Tuesday afternoon accident.

It was determined that Arnold Gay Feather had been traveling south on Garrett Highway on a backhoe, when he attempted to cross the roadway. The backhoe struck an oncoming vehicle driven by Jessica Christine Beachy. Feather was found to be at fault. Charges are still pending.

Several Arrested By GCSO For Drunk Driving

Several drunk driving arrests were made by Garrett County sheriff's deputies this past week. The following cases are unrelated.

Deputies responded to a motor vehicle accident with no injuries on Garrett Highway near Paul Friend Road last Thursday. It was determined that driver Timothy Lee Meadows had been traveling north when he drove off the road and struck an embankment. Investigation revealed Meadows to be driving under the influence of alcohol. He is charged with DUI, DUI per se, and driving while impaired.

Deputies responded to a vehicle stuck in a ditch on A Street, Mtn. Lake Park, on Friday evening. The driver was identified as Barry Ray Livengood, Loch Lynn, and investigation revealed him to be intoxicated. He is charged with DUI, DUI per se, and DWI. He was taken into custody and later released pending trial.

A disabled vehicle was found by deputies on Nest Lick Acres Road early Saturday morning. The driver was identified as Matthew Scott Rounds, 22, Oakland, who was reportedly driving under the influence. He is charged with DUI and DWI. He was transported to the GCSO, where he was later released pending trial.

A vehicle was stopped by deputies on Third Street, Oakland, on Tuesday evening in relation to a disturbance investigation. Driver Larry Dean Wilt, 51, Grantsville, was reportedly intoxicated. He is charged with DWI. There were no charges related to the disturbance complaint. He was taken into custody to await a bond hearing.

students who live in Garrett County attend Allegany schools because of the location of their homes in relation to the nearest school. Most of these students live on or near the county line, and travel less to go to Allegany schools than it would take to attend Northern Garrett County schools. This is being considered because of the declining enrollment and several other factors that will lead to reduction in the school system's state funding.

"We pay tuition and provide transportation for those students to go to Allegany schools," said Dr. Teets. "Ultimately, by changing this policy, we would eliminate the busing expenses and payments to Allegany schools and gain state aid by keeping those students in Garrett schools."

A meeting has been set for March 2 at 7 p.m. at Northern Middle School for the board to hear input from the public on this possible change.

Arrested For Violating Active Peace Order

Garrett County sheriff's deputies arrested a man following a traffic stop on Maple Ave., Loch Lynn. John Russell Ross is charged with violating a peace order by having the petitioner in the vehicle with him. He is charged with failure to comply with peace order. He was taken into custody to await a bond hearing.

school," said Wildesen. "But our main concern is student safety."

After a lengthy discussion and thorough observation of the current weather and pending forecast, it was decided that it is just too difficult to have school with roads closed and roads departments stretched thin maintaining road accessibility.

Garrett County schools have been closed a total of 10 days thus far. School has been scheduled for this coming Monday, Presidents' Day. Easter Monday will likely be set as a make-up day as well.

GC Students Go Mountaineering In High Peaks Of Adirondack Mountains

by Andy Hershey

Six Garrett College adventure sports management students took part in two winter intersession courses in early January: Eastern Mountaineering and Cold Weather Outdoor Living Skills. These classes weren't held in the everyday classroom setting though. Instead, the group used the great outdoors as its backdrop – the frigid High Peaks of the Adirondack Mountains in New York.

The courses introduced winter-living skills and included an ascent of the Trap Dyke route of Mount Colden, which has an altitude of 4,714 feet.

The group of students who made the trip consisted of Lisa Robinson, Conner Whitaker, Matthew Davey-Karlson, Stephen Kaltwasser, Katherine Patterson, and Robert Peter. The students were led by Adventuresports Institute (ASI) assistant professor Andy Hershey; ASI graduate and current Seneca Rocks mountain guide Chad Cochran; and volunteer instructor Garrett Werner, also an ASI graduate.

Adirondack Park was established by the state of New York in 1892 in an attempt to protect the region from unrestrained forestry practices. Included within the 6-million-acre park is a patchwork of state and private lands, making it the largest park in the lower 48 states.

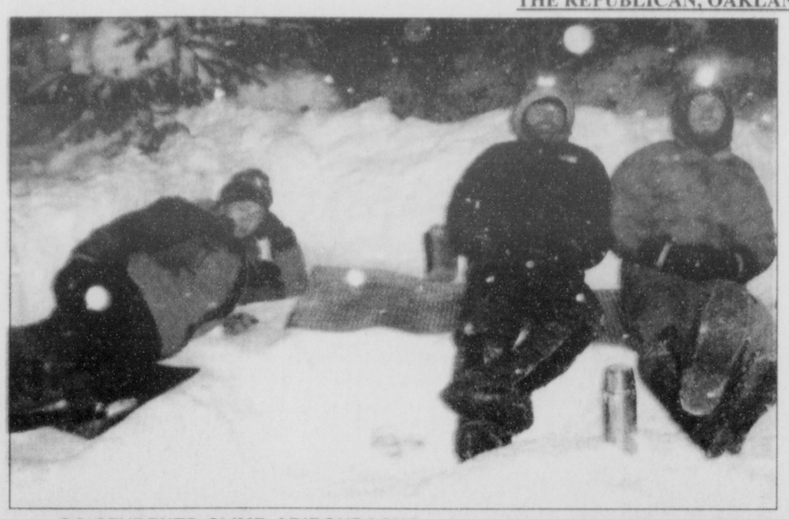
Within these boundaries, the state of New York manages more than two million acres of earth; the rest of the land within the park boundary is privately owned. The park includes 43 peaks higher than 4,000 feet, 33 of which are within the roughly 300,000-acre High Peaks Wilderness Complex.

Before they could make their way to the Adirondacks, the students began the course with a December meeting to inform them of the course itinerary, introduce them to the risks involved and conditions that they would face, and to ensure that they were aware of the specific equipment requirements. On January 1, the group met again to prepare equipment provided by the Adventuresports Institute and to make certain that students had all acquired the proper clothing. All their preparation led to the morning of January 2, when the vans were loaded and the group left Garrett College in typical Garrett County wintery conditions.

Late that evening, the GC vans arrived at the State University of New York's Adirondack Ecological Center (AEC), again in snowy conditions, where the group would stay for two days while preparing for their expedition into the backcountry of the High Peaks. During their time at the AEC, the group was introduced to ice climbing techniques at the Pitchoff Quarry, including crampon and ice tool techniques.

The following day, the group took advantage of the deep snow and cold temperatures at the AEC to practice other skills that would prove necessary on their climbing expedition, such as snowshoeing, Quinzhee (snow shelter) building, and cold-weather cooking.

Early the next morning, the ASI students packed up their pulks (mountaineering sleds), drove to the trailhead, and began the five-mile trek to their base camp at the appropriately named Avalanche Lake.



GC STUDENTS CLIMB ADIRONDACKS – Adventure sports majors at Garrett College recently took a rigorous field trip, as they spent a couple of days climbing in the High Peaks of the Adirondack Mountains in New York. In the photo above, Conner Whitaker, Andy Hershey, and Garrett Werner relax in the "kitchen." Below, Catherine Patterson and Matthew Davey-Karlson showshoe through the Adirondack backcountry pulling their sleds of gear known as pulks.

The hike in was essentially uneventful, with the group members adjusting to their packs and pulks, as well as dialing in their clothing layering systems for maximum efficiency and warmth. As they crossed the frozen lake to their campsite, they were able to view the first few pitches (rope lengths) of their intended route: the well known Trap Dyke.

Upon their arrival at camp, the group went to work to establish a functional winter campsite in the deep snow. After initially "work hardening" the camp and kitchen area by spending a few minutes packing the area down with their snowshoes, the crew split into two groups. One group set about pitching the four-season tents in the camping area, while the other worked on building a proper winter kitchen from snow, complete with a table for their four cooking stoves, a coffee table, and a 10-foot-long couch, which also served as a wind block.

After completing the table, part of the group began working on the never-ending winter task of melting snow for drinking and cooking water. Then they set to work cooking dinner – pizza baked in an outback oven – and preparing hot water bottles for use in their sleeping bags.

At 5 a.m. the following morning, the alarm sounded, rousing the backpackers from their warm sleeping bags into the 5-degree dawn for the early start to their climbing day. The intended route for the day was the technical 2,000-foot Trap Dyke route that ascends from Avalanche Lake to the summit of Mount Colden, the 11th highest peak in the Adirondacks.

Despite a late start, the first of the two climbing teams left camp at approximately 7:30 a.m., missing the intended start time by an hour, and began climbing after a short hike across Avalanche Lake to the base of the climb. Because of the length of the climb and descent, as well as the size and makeup of the group, the cutoff time for beginning the climb was set for 8 a.m. This meant that the climb would have been called off if the group was not ready by the appointed time, which was set in an attempt to reach the summit during daylight hours.

The two groups climbed throughout the day, tackling the technical crux of the route at around 10 a.m. This section included a 30-foot wall of ice standing at slightly less than vertical. The students were able to utilize the techniques that they had practiced two days earlier to negotiate this intimidating feature in good time. However, at this point in the climb, 75% of the route remained for the groups to conquer.

The weather was still good at 4 p.m., and the summit was almost within sight, but shortly thereafter, the winds increased to approximately 30 miles per hour and it began to snow heavily, dramatically decreasing visibility and slowing the climbing progress to a virtual crawl.

At approximately 6 p.m., with all headlamps glowing, the last climber staggered onto the windblown summit, and the groups hastily made their way to a grove of trees that provided protection from the wind.

The leaders scouted ahead to decipher the safest way to negotiate the semi-technical, and very exposed, initial section of the descent, while the rest of the group fueled up with their remaining food and water.

Finally, the climbers roped up once again and began their descent. After negotiating the technical sections of the descent, they slowly made their way 2,000 vertical feet down the trail that led to the valley harboring their camp.

After an unfortunate navigational error across a frozen lake in whiteout conditions added almost a mile to the return to camp, the hikers finally made their way into camp, tired and dehydrated, but also safe and elated from the day's significant climb and incredible physical effort. After brewing up some drinks and eating dinner, the weary participants staggered off to their tents for some much needed sleep.

The next morning, the last of their trip, the students and leaders rose relatively early, melted snow for drinks, cooked breakfast, packed their pulks, and headed down the trail. After arriving at the trailhead in early afternoon, they were met by a welcoming shower room.

The vans were then loaded with the equipment, and the travelers embarked on the final leg of their journey – a 10-hour drive back to Garrett College in wintery conditions (of course).

Historical Business Directory Available On Library Site

Whilbr, the historical web site of the Western Maryland Regional Library, has added a new collection: Boyd's 1875 Business Directory for Maryland. This resource is available at whilbr.org/CumberlandHagerstownDirectory1875/index.aspx.

"Although city directories traditionally list the inhabitants of large towns, the value of this collection lies in its listing of occupations and businesses in the cities and towns of Maryland," said a Whilbr spokesperson. "Such tidbits as Henry Kahl as proprietor of the Queen Hotel in Accident, W.A. Brydon as a railroad agent in Bloomington, and F.P. Fallon as a seller of sewing machines in Swanton can be found here."

In effect, most of the employed population is listed, with the exception of farmers and those who worked for others, such as railway workers and clerks. Because of the fact that many of the citizens were self-employed, the list tends to contain individuals rather than corporate entities. The exception is newspapers and hotels.

The Whilbr web site features images of original source documents from the collections of public libraries, historical societies, and individuals in western Maryland. Its purpose is to display western Maryland-related historical documents, images, audio, and video.

Western Maryland Regional Library is an organization that provides support and materials for the continued enhancement of recourses available through the Washington County Free Library System, the Allegany Public Library System, and the Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County.

Many electronics, like televisions and computers, continue to draw power even when they are switched off. In the average home, even when electronics and appliances are not being used, they continue to draw up to 75% of the electricity they need to run. But by using a power strip to turn them off, you can save as much as $200 a year.

Love in Bloom

Poets have long compared love to flowers blooming. In Song of Songs 2:12, we read, "Flowers appear on the earth; the season of singing has come...."

In a garden, a seed is planted... perhaps the first date. If the relationship is well matched... the seed grows in fertile soil. A new couple discovers each other's interests... the "garden" is tended and watered. Weeds may try to push through, but they are uprooted and discarded... the couple learns to negotiate their differences. The relationship flowers... delicate buds give way to fragrant petals and mature love is born.

Around Valentine's Day, know that true love is strong and enduring. When weeds try to encroach keep in mind that God is the Master Gardener. With Him, love will blossom and flourish. Hold up that love in worship this week.

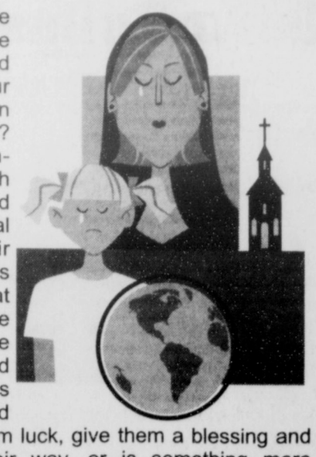
Widows, Orphans and Aliens



It is a sad fact of life that there are widows, orphans and aliens living in our midst. What nation does not have them? Natural and man-made disasters such as war, famine and economic upheaval contribute to their seemingly endless numbers. So what should our attitude be to these unfortunate and vulnerable ones among us? Should we simply wish them luck, give them a blessing and send them on their way, or is something more required? God's word is clear on this: we are called to help the widows, orphans and aliens among us in so many passages of the Bible that it is virtually a theme of both the Old and New Testament. The Israelites were painfully aware of the trials and tribulations of being foreigners in a strange land, given their captivities in Egypt and Babylon. Furthermore, their experience in warring with their neighbors, then as now, has a tendency to create even more widows, orphans and refugees. The commandment to help the unfortunate among us comes with a blessing and a curse. That is, we are told that we will be blessed if we help them and cursed if we don't. We should help the vulnerable, whether these are widows and orphans, or the homeless or jobless in our community.

And do no wrong or violence to the alien, the fatherless, and the widow, nor shed innocent blood in this place.... But if you will not heed these words, I swear by myself, says the Lord, that this house shall become a desolation.

Aspirin for Peripheral Arterial Disease

Peripheral arterial disease (PAD) is a condition characterized by narrowing of the arteries in the legs. A buildup of fatty deposits leads to such narrowing, which impairs normal blood flow. Men are more commonly affected by PAD. Persons with high blood pressure, high cholesterol, and diabetes are at an increased risk of developing PAD. Those who smoke or are obese are also at an increased risk of developing this condition. Intermittent claudication, a condition that commonly occurs in persons affected by PAD, is an uncomfortable or tired feeling in the legs during walking. This happens because there is not enough blood flowing to the muscles.

Persons with PAD who smoke are encouraged to quit. Other conditions, such as hypertension and diabetes, should be treated. Exercise, such as walking several times per week, is also recommended. A healthy diet is usually recommended. Persons with PAD may be prescribed an antiplatelet medication, such as aspirin, aspirin plus dipyridamole, or clopidogrel. Persons who experience claudication may be prescribed pentoxifylline or cilostazol. These medications work to improve blood flow. An angioplasty, which works to open up the arteries, may be necessary for severely blocked arteries.

Sacred Meadow Montessori Children's House

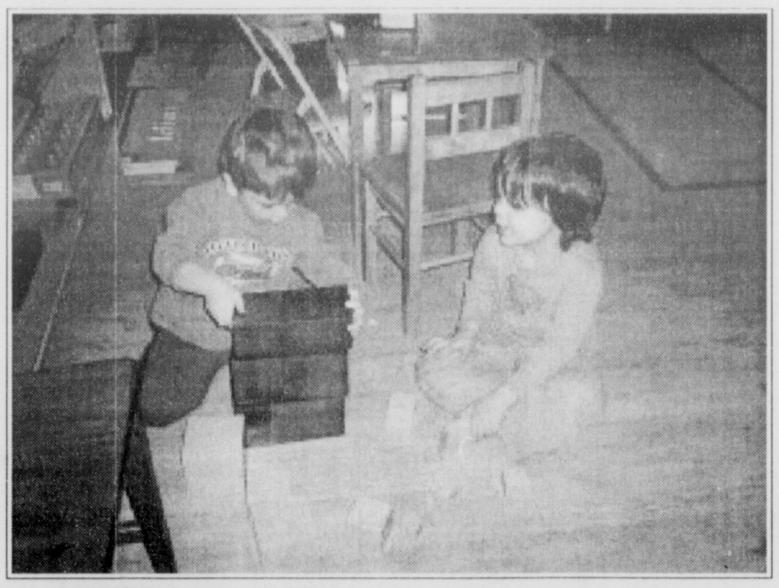
After a process that took almost a year to complete, Sacred Meadow Montessori Children's House has received approval from the Maryland State Department of Education to operate a Montessori nursery school program.

Director/owner Carolyne Stolzenfels expanded her Sacred Meadow program last year to a new facility located at 111 N. South Street, Accident, after operating in her home for four years.

Upon expansion, Stolzenfels applied for Sacred Meadow to be a licensed learning center with the state Department of Education.

First, a program must successfully operate as a learning center before it can be approved as an educational preschool. After successfully running the program and filling the capacity of the preschool, Stolzenfels applied for the Montessori nursery school approval, which Sacred Meadow received last month.

Sacred Meadow Montessori Children's House is the first and only Montessori program available to children in Garrett County, Stolzenfels noted.



SACRED MEADOW STUDENTS Tanner Garlitz and Cooper Taylor, both 3, build towers using the most famous Montessori materials, the "Pink Tower" and "Brown Stair," both sensorial activities in a prepared Montessori environment. Sacred Meadow Montessori Children's House, the first Montessori program in Garrett County, recently received approval from the Maryland State Department of Education. See story.

"Montessori programs are unique in that they provide children with a prepared environment that includes specially designed learning activities for children to choose," she said. "Materials in the program are made out of real materials, not plastic."

The director added that the children use real materials as much as possible: porcelain plates, cloth napkins, and child-size hammers. In addition, all the furniture used by the children is made of wood.

"Areas in the program are practical life skills, language, mathematics, sensorial, science, geography, art, and music," Stolzenfels said. "Children that experience this type of program learn through intrinsic motivation rather than teacher-driven instruction."

Anyone who has questions about the program or who would like to be put on the waiting list may call Stolzenfels at 301-746-8989. Persons may also visit the preschool's blog at sacredmeadow.blogspot.com.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It was American writer Cullen Hightower who made the following sage observation: "Laughing at our mistakes can lengthen our own life. Laughing at someone else's can shorten it."

• If you were asked to name the northernmost of the United States, I'm sure you'd have no trouble naming Alaska. And you probably also know that Alaska is the westernmost state of the union. You might be surprised, however, to learn that Alaska is also the easternmost state. Yep. The Aleutian Island chain crosses the International Dateline, placing a few of the islands in the Far East.

• Thanks to the fact that their eyes are placed on the sides of their heads, rabbits can see behind themselves without turning their heads.

• In the town of Arcadia, Calif., there is a law on the books that grants peacocks the legal right of way when crossing any street or driveway.

• Those who study such things claim that there are 293 different ways to make change for a dollar.

• In 2002, a research firm conducted a poll on Americans' beliefs about the existence of alien life in the universe. It seems that a whopping 68 percent of us feel that the U.S. government knows about alien life but refuses to publicize that knowledge.

• The Russian Space Agency has a full-fledged space tourism program — and a popular one, at that. Despite the $20 million price tag, all the available trips were fully booked by (wealthy) civilians in 2009.

• If you and your spouse are like the average modern married couple, you spent more than $2,500 on photos and videos of your wedding.

Thought for the Day: "I look to the future because that's where I'm going to spend the rest of my life." — George Burns

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Feb. 20, 1792, President George Washington signs legislation creating the U.S. Postal Service. The federally funded postal services included 75 regional post offices and 2,400 miles of postal routes. The cost of sending a letter ranged from 6 cents to 12 cents.

• On Feb. 18, 1885, Mark Twain publishes his novel "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn." Twain (the pen name of Samuel Clemens) first introduced Huck Finn as the best friend of Tom Sawyer, hero of his tremendously successful novel "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" (1876).

• On Feb. 17, 1915, after encountering a severe snowstorm, the German Zeppelin L-4 crash-lands in the North Sea near the Danish coastal town of Varde. One month earlier, the huge airship had taken part in the first-ever air bombing raid on Britain.

• On Feb. 15, 1933, in Miami, Giuseppe Zangara shoots and fatally wounds Anton Cermak, the mayor of Chicago. Zangara pled guilty to the murder and died in Florida's electric chair on March 20. Today, such a swift outcome would be practically unheard of, particularly where the death penalty is concerned.

• On Feb. 19, 1954, the Ford Thunderbird prototype is born. The T-Bird was a scaled-down Ford built for two. It came with a removable fiberglass hardtop and a convertible canvas roof. With its V-8 and sporty looks, the T-Bird was an image car costing $2,944.

• On Feb. 21, 1965, black nationalist leader Malcolm X is assassinated while giving a speech at the Audubon Ballroom in Harlem in New York City. Malcolm X, born Malcolm Little, had split from the Nation of Islam almost a year before and had escaped several other attempts on his life.

• On Feb. 16, 1979, the Bee Gees receive the Grammy for Best Album of 1978 for "Saturday Night Fever" and also win the Best Pop Group award. The group had dominated the charts in late 1977 and 1978 with three consecutive No. 1 hits from the "Saturday Night Fever" album.

Collecting

by Larry Cox

Q. I recently inherited a Walker & Company tilting breech carbine that was produced by a Virginia gunmaker for the Confederate Army. I would like to talk to an expert so that if it is valuable, I can get it insured and included on my household policy. — Carl, Fort Myers, Fla.

A. Jeff Albiniak has been a dealer specializing in Civil War memorabilia for several decades and is considered an expert in the field. His contact information is cwbuffster @aol.com; and 520-514-2195.

Q. I have a pair of salt and pepper shakers in the Punty Band pattern with ruby flash that were souvenirs of the Kansas State Fair in 1910. I have been offered $25 for them, and I wonder if I should hold out for more. — Sue, Hayes, Kan.

A. I spoke to two serious S&P collectors, and both agreed that your souvenir shakers should be worth at least twice what you're being offered.

Cho must go on: The 411 on 'Mentalist' cohort

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Q: One of my favorite shows is "The Mentalist," and I would like to know anything about the actor who plays Cho. –Louise Everett, Marysville, Wash.

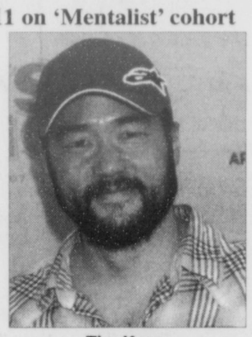
A: San Francisco native Tim Kang is the performer in question on the CBS show. "The Mentalist" is the longest series gig he's had to date, though he appeared in multiple episodes of "Third Watch" and also made one-shot appearances on such programs as "Law & Order: Criminal Intent," "Ghost Whisperer," "Monk" and "The Office."

A graduate of Harvard University and the University of California at Berkeley, Kang – who studied at the Moscow Art Theatre School as well – also had notable roles in the feature films "Rambo," "The Forgotten" and "Two Weeks Notice." Additionally, he's been featured in a number of commercials that received national play.

Q: What happened to "Rules of Engagement" with David Spade, which was on Mondays after "Two and a Half Men"? Will it be coming back? –Jenifer Glenn, Plano, Texas

A: It will. Typically a midseason starter for CBS, the sitcom begins its fourth round March 1. Instead of following "Two and a Half Men" on Mondays, it will now precede the Charlie Sheen-Jon Cryer hit – displacing Jenna Elfman's "Accidentally on Purpose" from the Monday lineup. That show then will be seen on Wednesdays starting March 31.

Q: I'm sure the new series "White Collar" is a remake of "It Takes a Thief," which starred Robert Wagner as the thief, though I can't remember who played the FBI man. Am I right? –Mary Stemper,



Tim Kang

A: Clearly, there are similarities between the two series, but USA Network's "White Collar" is not cited as being a direct and intentional remake of "It Takes a Thief." The federal agent in the latter show – who actually worked for an organization called the SIA – originally was played by Malachi Throne, and later by Edward Binns when the character was changed.

Q: What has happened to "Three Rivers," which aired on Sunday nights? I really hope that it hasn't been canceled. –Shirley Cline, Reading, Pa.

A: At the point when we addressed this in an earlier column, it hadn't been. However, to the certain chagrin of Alex O'Loughlin fans everywhere, CBS programming chief Nina Tassler later announced that the medical drama indeed had been canceled. "On hiatus" had been the term used for it, but in a wryly candid moment, Tassler admitted that the phrase typically means "something else." As in, "You won't be seeing any new episodes of the show."

AREA RESIDENTS PACK SHOEBOXES – Members of the Keyser Area Operation Christmas Child team recently traveled by bus to the processing center in Charlotte, N.C., to help pack shoeboxes with small gifts for children around the world who possibly have never received Christmas gifts. The Keyser team includes residents from Garrett County and six West Virginia counties. The total number of boxes packed this year by teams from around the world was 8,157,904. Of that number, 5,198,657 boxes were provided by people in the United States. Great Lakes Region teams, of which the Keyser is a part, packed 571,501. Garrett County people provided approximately 3,500 boxes. "It was awesome," said Keyser team member about the Charlotte trip. People from throughout the United States and some from foreign countries assisted in this humanitarian/evangelistic outreach, which is lead by Dr. Franklin Graham, president of Samaritan's Purse. "The boxes are a tool that can be used to show the love of God that is found in having a relationship with Jesus Christ," said a local spokesperson. "Many of the children, because of this shoebox outreach, come to know Jesus Christ as their personal savior." This year's shoebox collection week is scheduled for Nov. 15–22. Another trip to Charlotte is planned for Nov. 28–Dec. 3. Persons interested in participating are asked to call area coordinator Debbie Welch at 301-334-9648. "Remember, God's love wrapped in a shoebox will produce miracles around the world, and now is the time to start gathering things for your shoeboxes," the spokesperson said. Pictured, left to right, in the front row kneeling are Jane Cline, Maria Upperman, Kathy Tucker, Janice Martin, Leighanne Upperman, Katie Welch, Heidi Holleger, Debbie Welch, Jodi Willmon, Dottie Arbogast, and Glen Arbogast. WHEN PUSH COMES TO SHOVE

If you're under pressure to sell your home quickly in a challenging market, you may have to swallow a large dose of reality and take some radical steps to increase your home's visibility. While making concessions can seem difficult, please consider the following proven suggestions to produce a quick sale.

Remember that there are myriad possibilities for exposure in today's internet-driven society. In addition to your agent's traditional print and online marketing tools, use social networking sites like facebook and Twitter to promote your listing to younger first-time buyers.

When setting your price, place it ten to fifteen percent below your competition. All other things being equal, your home will readily appear as the best value.

Also consider the price "range" your home will fall into, and make sure you're on the lower end of that range. For example, a $199,000 home falls into the upper end of the $150,000 to $200,000 range, but that same home priced at $201,000 is in the lower end of the $200,000 to $250,000 range. Buyers tend to look in ranges of prices, so again, make yours look like the best value.

Your best bet is to call a REALTOR® who does it all for you and gives you professional advice. Some agents are more savvy than others at using electronic media top market your home. Ask the right questions and choose accordingly.

The Property and the Personal Property will be sold as an entirety only.

NOTES

All information contained herein as to the nature, description, use, dimensions and quantifications of the Property and the Personal Property have been obtained from sources deemed reliable and believed to be accurate. The Substitute Trustees, the Noteholder and their respective agents make no representations or warranties with respect to such information, however, and each bidder is responsible for independently determining the validity and accuracy of any information provided herein or any other information or materials upon which each bidder relies in submitting a bid.

TERMS OF SALE

A $50,000.00 deposit, payable by cashier's or certified check, will be required of the purchaser at time and place of sale. The deposit must be increased to 10% of the purchase price before 3:00 pm on March 10, 2010 in the office of the auctioneer in the form of a cashier's check or certified check. The deposit will not earn interest in the hands of the Substitute Trustees. The Noteholder or its affiliate, if a bidder, shall not be required to post a deposit. Immediately after the sale, the successful bidder shall execute and deliver a contract of sale with the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder, copies of which shall be available for inspection immediately before the sale. The balance of the purchase price shall be paid by a cashier's or certified check, or such other form as the Substitute Trustees may determine acceptable, in their sole discretion, at settlement, which must occur within twenty (20) days following final ratification of the sale of the Property by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, unless such period is extended by the Substitute Trustees, time being of the essence. If payment of the balance of the purchase price does not take place within such period of time aforesaid, in addition to any other legal or equitable remedies available to them, the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder may declare the entire deposit forfeited and resell the Property and the Personal Property at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser. In such event, the defaulting purchaser shall be liable for the payment of any deficiency in the purchase price, all costs and expenses of both sales, attorneys' fees and all other charges incurred by the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder. Purchaser waives personal service of any paper filed in connection with a motion to resell the Property on the purchaser and/or any principal or corporate designee, and expressly agrees to accept service of any such paper by regular mail directed to the address provided by the bidder at the time of the sale. If the Property and the Personal Property are purchased by someone other than the Noteholder, interest shall be paid on the unpaid purchase price at the rate of ten percent (10%) per annum from date of sale to the date of settlement, or such date that funds are received by the Substitute Trustees. There will be no abatement of interest due from the purchaser if additional funds are tendered before settlement or if settlement is delayed for any reason. Taxes, water bills, and all other municipal liens and charges and all other public charges and assessments payable on an annual basis, if any, shall be adjusted to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. Any condominium association fees, assessments or capital contributions payable with respect to the Property shall be adjusted to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser shall pay all settlement costs, including title examination charges, title insurance premiums, county and state recordation and transfer taxes (including all sums payable as a result of the Deed of Trust's status as an indemnity deed of trust) and recording costs. The purchaser shall pay all costs incidental to the conveyance of the Property and the Personal Property. Purchaser shall pay at settlement reasonable attorneys' fees and disbursements incurred in the preparation of the deed of conveyance, the bill of sale and other settlement documentation, including $295.00 to the seller's attorney for review of the settlement documents and an additional fee of $295.00 for review of any motion which may be subsequently filed with the court to substitute a purchaser herein. The purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the Property and the Personal Property. Additional terms may be announced at the time of sale. If the Noteholder or its affiliate is the purchaser of the Property and the Personal Property at the sale, the amount bid at the sale by the Noteholder or its affiliate shall be a credit against the indebtedness secured by the Deed of Trust.

The Property and the Personal Property will be sold and conveyed subject to all encumbrances, rights, reservations, covenants, conditions, restrictions, rights of redemption, rights of entry, easements, agreements of record, notifications and statutory liens, if any, having priority over the Deed of Trust as they may lawfully affect the Property and the Personal Property and subject to all applicable building and zoning code violations, subject to all environmental problems and violations which may exist on or with respect to the Property, and subject to all matters that an accurate survey or physical inspection of the Property might disclose. The Property and the Personal Property will be sold subject to the right of redemption of the United States of America, if such right exists.

The Property is sold specifically subject to the operation and effect of (i) the Declaration of Condominium of Alpine Village Condominium dated December 31, 2002 and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on January 8, 2003 at Liber No. 941, page 249, (ii) Declaration of Reciprocal Easements, Covenants and Restrictions dated December 31, 2002 and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on January 8, 2003 at Liber No. 941, page 294, and (iii) the Amended and Restated Declaration of Condominium of Alpine Village Condominium recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on March 15, 2007 at Liber No. 1294, page 136, as may be amended from time to time.

The Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder reserve the right: (1) to accept or reject any or all bids, (2) to modify or waive the requirements for bidder's deposits and terms of sale and/or settlement; (3) to approve the creditworthiness of any bidder or final purchaser; (4) to withdraw the Property and/or Personal Property from the sale prior to acceptance of the final bid(s); (5) to keep the bidding open for any length of time and (6) to cancel or postpone the sale.

The Property and the Personal Property are sold and conveyed in "AS IS, WHERE IS" condition. Neither the Substitute Trustees, the Noteholder nor any other party make any warranty or representation, either express or implied, of any kind or nature regarding the Property or the Personal Property, including, without limitation, the description, use, physical condition, subdivision, zoning, environmental condition, compliance with applicable laws, ordinances, or regulations, structural integrity, physical condition, condition of the soil, workmanship, habitability, merchantability, or fitness for a particular purpose. The purchaser shall assume the risk of loss for the Property and the Personal Property immediately after the sale.

If the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder are unable to convey the Property and/or the Personal Property as described above, by reason of any defect in the title or otherwise, the sole remedy of the purchaser at law or in equity shall be limited to the refund of the aforementioned deposit. Upon refund of the deposit to the purchaser, the sale shall be void and of no effect, and the purchaser shall have no further claims against the Substitute Trustees or the Noteholder. The conveyance of the Property by the Substitute Trustees to the Purchaser at settlement shall be by deed without covenant or warranty of any kind whatsoever.

Morningstar's Back Office Services team seeks an entry-level Data Management Analyst to provide an efficient back-office solution for our licensed users. In this position, you will expand your knowledge of Morningstar products and electronic data population processes. As a Data Management Analyst, you'll join a group of friendly, dedicated individuals who focus on delivering database updates in a timely manner while maintaining accuracy. This position is based in our Oakland, Maryland office.

The Data Management Analyst updates, corrects, and maintains active databases of multiple clients and their accounts. This takes place through an electronic process that retrieves data from entities such as mutual fund companies, financial institutions, broker/dealers, and data transfer agencies, then transfers this data into our software. You will monitor this process for errors, which may require research and correction. You will communicate with clients to explain or clarify data and, at all times, preserve the confidentiality of client data. Manual input may be required for clients and accounts that are not electronically processed. The Data Management Analyst also maintains quantitative and qualitative records of any actions taken.

We're looking for candidates with excellent written, verbal, and analytical skills. The ideal candidate will have an interest in the investment industry and an in-depth understanding of computers. Knowledge of Windows-based applications is required. A college degree is preferred but not mandatory.

Please apply on line at http://global.morningstar.com/US/Careers

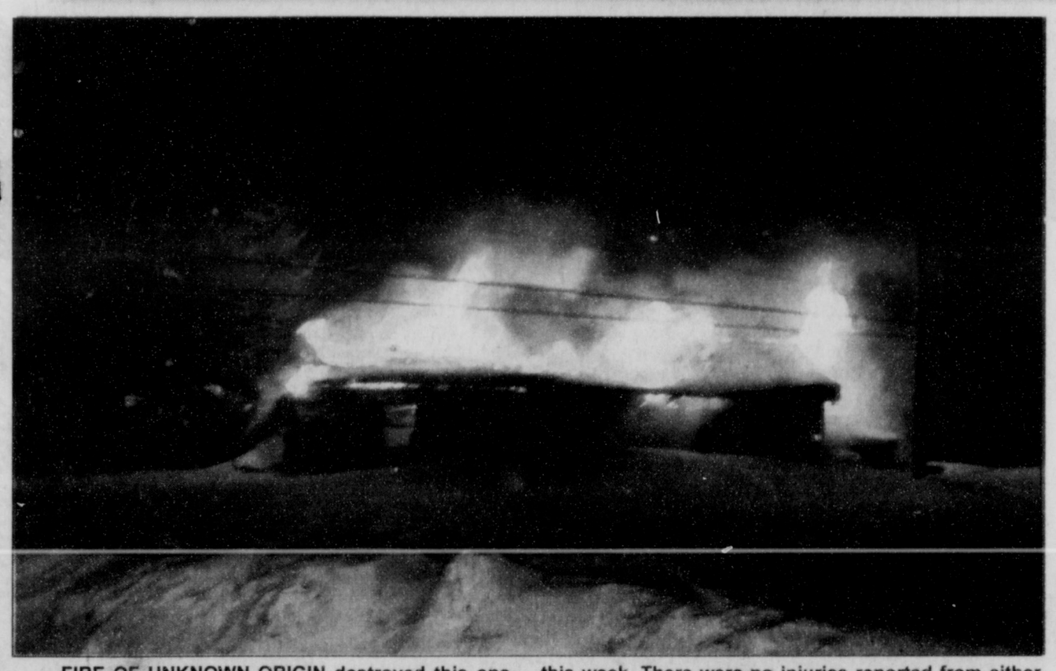
THE SIGN SAYS IT ALL – There's really no need to comment further on the sentiment of this sign, located at the Deep Creek Baptist Church and photographed by the pastor there, Dr. Ben Lahay. Garrett County has received more than 230 inches of snow this season, and more is on the way. The public schools have been closed every day since Feb. 8, and the forecast for next week is looking bleak even still. So yes, whoever is doing all that praying, we'd all love it if you'd quit now.



FIRE OF UNKNOWN ORIGIN destroyed this one-story, unoccupied house along Pysell Crosscut Road near Deer park early yesterday morning. Firefighters from six area departments were summoned to the 2:58 a.m. blaze, and were met with difficulty in attacking the fire because of extreme winter-weather conditions. A Friendsville house was also heavily damaged by fire this week. There were no injuries reported from either incident. Persons are strongly encouraged to make sure that the exits from their homes are free of snow and ice buildup so that egress in emergency situations is possible. Service Releases Deep Creek Lake Safety Warning

The Maryland Park Service reminds all snowmobilers of the potential for unseen safety hazards on Deep Creek Lake, particularly at night. As of this Saturday, Feb. 20, an area of ice will be removed near Uno Chicago Grill along Garrett Highway to create open water for the annual Special Olympics Deep Creek Dunk. This area will remain unsafe for quite some time and will be marked with reflective traffic cones, said a park service spokesperson.

He added that persons should be aware that lake surface conditions under bridges where road salt and abrasives are plowed from the pavement are often particularly hazardous.

"Other conditions that may cause unpleasant situations are unseen snowdrifts or pressure ridges that can act as ramps and cause sleds to become airborne, leading to a loss of control and accidents," he added.

Deep Creek Lake is a part of the designated ORV trail system, permitting use by registered snowmobiles only. Permits are available by mail or at any of the local state park offices during normal business hours. Snowmobiles may operate at night if equipped with working head and taillights.

Access to the lake may be made at Deep Creek Lake State Park or with permission from a private landowner with a permit site adjacent to the lake.

Ice fishermen, hikers, and cross-country skiers traveling on the lake should also exercise caution. The wearing of or having readily accessible life preservers could prevent a tragedy, said the spokesperson.

"Anyone who encounters people, pets, or wildlife that have fallen through the ice is asked to call either 911 or the toll-free DNR Communications number (1-800-628-9944) for assistance," he added.

For further information on ice conditions at Deep Creek Lake, persons may telephone a ranger at the park headquarters office, 301-387-5563, or the Discovery Center on weekends at 301-387-7067.

Education Story Correction Noted

A front-page article in last week's issue about the Garrett County Board of Education's proposed plan to cut budget costs contained an error.

There are 11 elementary schools in Garrett County (rather than 7, as reported), and those that will be reviewed for possible renovation and/or closure are only those on the southern end of the county: Bloomington, Broad Ford, Crellin, Dennett Road, Kitzmiller, Swan Meadow, and Yough Glades. Northern area elementary schools, Accident, Friendsville, Grantsville, and Route 40, are not to be included.

Public Hearing Rescheduled For Land Ordinances

The Garrett County Planning Commission's public hearing on proposed revisions to three principal land development ordinances has been rescheduled for Saturday, March 6, at 10 a.m. in the Garrett College auditorium.

In the event of inclement weather, the alternative hearing date is Thursday, March 11, at 7 p.m. at Garrett College.

The proposed revisions would affect the Deep Creek Watershed Zoning,

Howard County Healthiest, Balt. City Least Healthy, Garrett Near Middle

Howard County has the healthiest residents in Maryland and Baltimore City has the least healthy in the state, according to a new report released Tuesday by the University of Wisconsin Population Health Institute and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. The project is the first of its kind to rank the overall health of the counties in all 50 states – more than 3,000 total – by using a standard formula to measure how healthy people are and how long they live.

Garrett County's residents fall near the middle of the list of Maryland's 23 counties and Baltimore City, ranking 14th in health outcomes and 13th in health factors.

Maryland's 10 healthiest counties, starting with most healthy, are Howard, Montgomery, Frederick, Queen Anne's, Carroll, Talbot, Calvert, St. Mary's, Harford, and Worcester. The 10 counties/city in the poorest health, starting with least healthy, are Baltimore City, Somerset, Dorchester, Allegany, Caroline, Wicomico, Cecil, Prince George's, Kent, and Baltimore.

The healthiest of Maryland's 24 counties are clustered in the north-central region of the state; the least healthy are sprinkled primarily in the southeast and northwest regions of the state.

"This report shows us that there are big differences in overall health across Maryland's counties, because of many factors, ranging from individual behavior to quality of health care, to education and jobs, to access to healthy foods, and to quality of the air," said Patrick Remington, M.D., associate dean for public health, University of Wisconsin School of Medicine and Public Health. "For the first time, every person can compare the overall health of his or her county to the health of other counties in Maryland, and also see where the state needs to improve."

The online report, available at www.countyhealthrankings.org, includes a snapshot of each county in Maryland, with a color-coded map comparing each county's overall health ranking. Researchers used five measures to assess the level of overall health or "health

Honi-Honi Bar To Host DunkFest! On February 26

The Honi-Honi Bar, located next to Deep Creek Uno's Restaurant, will be hosting DunkFest! on Friday, Feb. 26, from 6 to 10 p.m. to kick off the 12th annual Deep Creek Dunk, a fundraiser event for Special Olympics Maryland.

This event will feature carnival games, a bonfire on the Honi-Honi lawn, and live music by Remedy Lite from 8 to 11 p.m. All proceeds from the event will benefit Special Olympics Maryland.

Special Olympics Maryland provides year-round sports training and athletic competition in a variety of Olympic-type sports for persons 8 years of age and older with intellectual disabilities. The athletes are given continuing opportunities to develop physical fitness, demonstrate courage, experience joy, and participate in a sharing of gifts, skills, and friendship with their families, other Special Olympics athletes, and the community.

USDA Gives Maryland Salem Children's Trust $27,400 Grant

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Rural Development state director Jack Tarburton recently announced a $27,400 grant to the Maryland Salem Children's Trust Inc. The grant will allow the faith-based, non-profit organization to install solar panels and a wind turbine at the Salem School, which was built in 2006. The funding is provided through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (Recovery Act).

"President Obama's Recovery Act has helped create jobs and lay a new foundation for economic growth during the greatest economic crisis since the Great Depression," said Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack. "USDA has used Recovery Act funding to create badly needed jobs and stimulate local economies, help farmers and rural businesses make it through tough times, ensure that struggling families can put food on the table, and build and revitalize critical infrastructure in rural communities across America."

The Maryland Salem Children's Trust is a multi-service, non-profit faith-based organization that provides a home, family, counseling, and education to children who have been abused, neglected, and/or abandoned. The purchase and installation of solar panels and a wind turbine will enable the organization to be the first school in Maryland to utilize the combination of wind and solar energy. In addition, it will provide education studies for not only the high school students of Salem, but also the graduate students of neighboring Frostburg State University. The improvements will provide the school with cost savings of their everyday operation expenses and allow those funds to be utilized towards the needs of the children in their care.

Salem School has in place several other cost-saving factors. It was designed to be as energy independent as possible by using skylights overlapping instructional areas to decrease the need for artificial lighting. A geothermal heating system was also installed in 2006 to use the ground's temperature to help heat and cool the building.

The total cost of the solar and wind project is approxi-

Structure Fires Take Major Toll On Houses In Friendsville, Deer Park

Separate structure fires, one in Friendsville and one near Deer Park, resulted in significant damage to the first and total destruction of the second.

Friendsville, Deep Creek, and Addison (Pa.) volunteers were summoned to the 300 block of Chestnut Street in Friendsville at 3:40 p.m. on Monday, where they were met by a working fire in a two-story wood-frame house.

According to Josh Sines, a member of the Friendsville VFD, the fire caused major damage to the first and second floors, and it appeared to be accidental in nature, having started on the first floor.

Also responding was the Northern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Fire units remained on the scene for about two hours. No additional information, including the name(s) of the owners, was received.

Then early yesterday, volunteers from six area departments were summoned to 3229 Pysell Crosscut Road near Deer Park.

Responding to the 2:58 a.m. alarm were units from the Deer Park, Oakland, Bittinger, Kitzmiller, Deep Creek, and Elk Garden fire departments.

The one-story, single-family structure was fully engulfed in flames upon arrival of the first units, according to Deer Park chief Ken Collins, who was first on the scene. The fire was discovered and reported by a passing motorist.

The property is owned by Raymond and Debra Bennett, but was unoccupied. According to a report from the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office, the cause of the fire remains under investigation.

Investigators estimated the loss to be $75,000 to the

"Keep All Exits Clear Of Snow And Ice," Says Maryland Fire Marshal

The Department of the Maryland State Fire Marshal reminds building officials and occupants to be sure to keep all exit doors to buildings free of snow and ice buildup. The back-to-back snow storms which recently hit Maryland with several feet of snow have created a potential safety hazard, noted William E. Barnard, state fire marshal.

The need to clear snow from main entrances so occupants can access buildings have caused secondary and/or other emergency exits to be forgotten. Additionally, the unusually large snowfalls have overwhelmed normally open space, creating the added burden of where to put snow so it will not be in the way, Barnard added.

He recommends making it a priority to keep all exits clear to protect all who work, live, or visit any building.

"Please take a few minutes to ensure all of your exits are clear of ice and snow," Barnard said.

Exits should be cleared at least the width of each exit door and the exit path should lead to the nearest public way. Anyone finding blocked exits should notify building management immediately.

THIS HANDSOME FELLOW was one of two pileated woodpeckers that were observed and recorded during the recent Christmas Bird County in Garrett County. Extreme winter-weather conditions reduced the count overall, as well as the number of counters. This photo was taken by Caroline Blizzard. See story on Page A-2 for count details.

THERE'S A LIBRARY BEHIND ALL THAT SNOW, somewhere. The Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland (pictured) and its Accident, Grantsville, Friendsville, and Kitzmiller branches offer great solutions to those of us suffering from cabin fever: plenty of books, DVDs, music CDs, and computers. But with more than 230 inches of snow so far this winter season in Garrett County, getting to and into the libraries is becoming a problem. Photo by John McEwen.

Numbers Of Birds, Counters Reduced By Big Snowstorm

The December 19, 2009, Christmas Bird Count (CBC) will be remembered as "the big snowstorm," according to Connie Skipper, count coordinator.

The severe weather conditions that day resulted in a low species count (55) and a low number of individuals for most species seen.

At midnight there was no snow on the ground, Skipper said, but by 7 a.m., snow had accumulated to a depth of 12 inches. Waterfowl that congregated in the few open areas of water were difficult to see because of the constant heavy snow. Most birds remained inactive except at feeders.

In terms of actual numbers, the following are the top 10 species sighted: American crow, 3,461; Canada goose, 785; mallard, 358; European starling, 264; slate-colored junco, 148; black-capped chickadee, 104; tufted titmouse, 71; mourning dove, 66; northern cardinal, 55; and American coot, 49.

"It was a day for only the most dedicated birders," said Skipper. "Jo Anna and Mikey Lutmerding always canvas the circle for owls. They spent 7.5 hours making a normal 3.75-hour trip, thus arriving at their starting point much later than planned. Six counters canceled because of the snow. For the first time in years, we had planned a 'tally rally.' The few intrepid counters who stuck it out to the end gathered at the establishment, only to find it closed because of the weather. It was a day to remember."

Eleven observers spent 37.5 hours searching for and counting birds as they moved from one place to another (field observers). They traveled a total of 10.25 miles on foot and 269.2 miles by car. These birders were Caroline Blizzard, Kevin Dodge, Courtney Englar, Aaron Holochwost, the aforementioned Lutmerdings, Bill and Fran Pope, Jane Rittenhouse, Connie Skipper, and Becky Wilson. Donald and Harold Hoecker, Kyle and Jessica Klotz, Barbara Skipper and Kathryn Vitek tallied 12.5 hours counting birds at their feeders.

There have been 26 CBCs held in the Oakland count circle. Using these data, the following species were present in above-average numbers: Canada goose, northern shoveler, killdeer, Wilson's snipe, mourning dove, red-headed woodpecker, yellow-bellied sapsucker, American crow, eastern tufted titmouse, Carolina wren, and northern cardinal. Most other species were below average in numbers. Four additional species were seen during count week.

"Although we added no new species in this year's count, we had a number of 'good' birds," said Skipper. "Northern shovelers have been counted on only four previous CBCs. Only three previous counts had red-headed woodpeckers, and two previous counts had yellow-bellied sapsuckers. Killdeer, Wilson's snipe, and American robins are always winter rarities. Several folks commented on the high numbers of tufted titmouse. They must have had a banner year for raising young."

Skipper noted her appreciation to all who participated in the count, the data from which are provided to the National Audubon Society.

G-FORCE TOURS PILLAR INNOVATIONS – The local G-FORCE FIRST Tech Challenge (FTC) robotics team recently toured Pillar Innovations at the Northern Industrial Park. The FTC program encourages the youth to build robots as well as relationships with engineers in their community. Titus Beitzel and Matt Davis gave the team a tour of their facilities and explained their current projects and how an engineer works to make the projects happen. Pictured are team members checking out the Polaris EMU (electric mine utility) vehicles that the business is working on. They are taking out the gas engines and replacing them with electric engines so they can be used in the mines. All of the boys volunteered to help them test drive their EMUs. The team also saw their fire suppression system, the belt vision machine, the atmospheric mine wide monitoring system, the fiberoptics room, and the mine safety chambers. When the tour was complete, the employees gathered in break room and the G-FORCE team members presented their technical talk explaining and demonstrating how their robot works. The team traveled this past weekend to the Ohio FTC Championship at the University of Cincinnati, where they won first place. From left are mentors Stephen Lilly and Phil Malone, and team members Bryan Rippeon, Derrick Maust, Kevin Maust, Kendrick Bender, Levi Lantz, and Aaron Lantz. NeXT GEN PRESENTS SEASON PROJECT AT BOE MEETING – NeXT GEN's FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) LEGO League (FLL) team from Southern Middle School presented their season's research at this month's Garrett County Board of Education meeting. This year's theme was Smart Transportation, and the team chose Garrett County's school bus transportation system to research. NeXT GEN's innovative solution to a local problem was developing an app for the iPhones. Team members proposed that each school bus in the county have an iPhone with a GPS that would send signals back to a central server with the bus location. Parents and students could be notified prior to their bus arrival rather than waiting out in the cold. Board personnel would also know the location of the buses at all times. NeXT GEN had some help with the research from several people, including Frank Shap, Coit Custer, Bill Ewing, and Ed Wildesen. The team's work on the research, teamwork, technical, and robot performance earned them the second place Champions Award at the recent Maryland FLL State Championship in Baltimore. In the front row, from left, are Andrew Hauser, Jian Travis, Devon Jobe, and Annika Naylor. Back row: BOE president Dr. Don Forrester, Rachael Huxford, Rebecca Lee, Arlene Lantz, Tony Orr, and school superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets.

Bill Addresses Health Professionals' Fear Of Telling Patients The Truth

by Rachel Leven
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Two Maryland senators re-introduced a bill Tuesday that would exclude any health professional's apology from medical malpractice trials.

Current law says that no statement of regret or apology by a doctor or other health staff can be used in a civil action. However, if there is an admission of guilt in conjunction with an apology it can be used in court.

The legislation Sens. C. Anthony Muse, D- Prince George's, and James Brochin, D- Baltimore County, sponsored would take out the existing exception.

"If we can encourage (open communication) through legislation and ... let a doctor not be afraid to say, 'I made a mistake. I wish I wouldn't have done this and I did and I'm sorry,'" said Brochin, "then 90 percent of the people may still sue, but maybe that other 10 percent ... will work it out another way than by going to court."

Health professionals are afraid of being taken advantage of, said Joseph Schwartz III, who represented the Maryland State Medical Society in the hearing.

Under current law, if the health professional is actually at fault and admits guilt, a patient can use that admission against them in court.

Medical negligence trial lawyer George Tolley III, said he believes doctors should be honest with patients.

"(Professionals ask) the question 'well then what happens if the family says well what went wrong, what's the doctor supposed to say,'" said Tolley, representing the American Association for Justice. "And I may sound naive when I suggest that the doctor should tell the truth."

Panelists presenting to the Senate Judicial Proceedings committee said statements such as, "I'm really sorry I cut off the wrong leg" would be inadmissible in court if stated to a patient or family member after the bill was passed.

Through medical records and physical evidence, like the missing leg, the doctor could still be held responsible in court without the initial statements, Schwartz said.

"Full and unfettered communication between a doctor and his or her patient results in more satisfaction and less lawsuits and legal fees," the Maryland State Medical Society's written testimony stated.

A medical malpractice attorney agreed that open communication between doctors and patients is important, but said that current law does enough to protect the professional.

"I think there's a good policy in encouraging doctors to apologize for a bad outcome and to encourage them to express regret," said Andrew Slutkin, partner at Silverman Thompson Slutkin & White. "But when you shield from evidence other statements like, 'this is why you're paralyzed' you really are playing a dangerous game."

The bill was introduced by six delegates in 2008 and Muse sponsored the same bill in 2009.

ICE IS A PROBLEM throughout Garrett County, as there has been no warm-up for weeks and the snow keeps piling up. Roofs are being stressed, and many residents are experiencing leaks in their homes. Persons are advised to clear off stressed roofs, but to do so with great caution, or to hire professionals to take care of the problem (see the classified ads for snow removal services). The current forecast shows little break in the harsh conditions, so the condition of structures continues to be a concern. Photo by John McEwen.

Some 25 firefighters responded and brought the blaze under control in about 40 minutes. They remained on the scene for over three hours.

Also responding was the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Failure To Yield Leads to Two-Vehicle Accident

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to a two-vehicle accident on Garrett Highway last week, in the area of Arrowhead Market.

Investigation revealed that Salem Rose Wagner, 21, McHenry, had been traveling south on Garrett Highway, when she attempted a left turn into the business's parking lot. She turned into the path of a northbound vehicle driven by Marcy A. Kalasky, 41, Addison, Pa. The vehicles collided in the northbound lane, causing damage to both.

No injuries were reported. Wagner was determined to be at fault.

Traffic Stop On Interstate 68 Leads to Arrest

A traffic stop conducted by Garrett County sheriff's deputies on I-68 ended in an arrest last week.

Charles Uzor was stopped near Lower New Germany Road for a speeding violation. Investigation revealed him to be driving on a suspended Maryland license. He is charged with driving at a speed greater than reasonable and driving on a suspended license. He was taken into custody to await a bond hearing.

West Virginia Man Found Guilty Of Prescription Fraud

In recent Garrett County District Court, Michael Alan Hamrick, 47, Fairmont, W.Va., was found guilty by Judge Leonard J. Eiswert for a controlled dangerous substance (CDS) prescription obtained by fraud, and was sentenced to 60 days and suspended fines.

Garrett County sheriff's officers and members of the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force responded to Gregg's Pharmacy in May 2007 for a prescription fraud report. The pharmacist on duty reported that earlier in the day, a call was placed from a subject who identified himself as Dr. Savopoulos, and wanted to call in a prescription of hydrocodone for a Michael Hamrick. The pharmacist did not recognize the voice to be the doctor's, and verified that it was not Dr. Savopoulos by calling him. The doctor advised that he had never seen a Michael Hamrick and did not call in a prescription for him.

The next day, officers were called back to the pharmacy because Hamrick was at the drive-thru. Hamrick allegedly left, and officers were able to conduct a traffic stop in the Sheetz's parking lot. Hamrick was placed under arrest, and a search of the vehicle revealed a pill bottle with a prescription label for hydrocodone. He admitted to calling the pharmacy to see if the prescription was going to be filled. He was not prosecuted on a CDS possession not marijuana charge.

In another court hearing, William Edward Boyce, 44, Oakland, was charged with nonsupport of a minor child in July 2009 for failure to pay child support beginning in May 2007. His charge was placed on stet with condition to follow up with Department of Social Services, with a review in six months.

Keith Wayne Fike, 37, Oakland, was not prosecuted on a December 2009 charge of detaining a child as a relative. It was reported that Fike had failed to return a child under 16 years of age to the rightful guardian for more than 48 hours.

G-FORCE GOES UNDEFEATED – G-FORCE FTC (FIRST Tech Challenge) local 4-H robotics team was undefeated throughout the Ohio State Championship held at the University of Cincinnati. The team competed against 21 other teams from Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Michigan, South Carolina, West Virginia, and Wisconsin, with G-FORCE representing Maryland. Several of these teams had already won their local state championships. The team members started the morning with their technical presentation, in which they were judged on their engineering notebook that the team uses to document each practice's progress, their robot design, and their community connection. Then they ran in five qualifying matches, winning all them and won each match in the finals to take first place. Craig & Associates sponsored the trip. "The team's goal for the Ohio Championship was to sharpen their driving and presentation skills for the upcoming FTC World Festival in Atlanta, Ga., in April," said team mentor Arlene Lantz. Those who would like to make a donation to support the team's trip to the World Festival may make a tax-deductible donation to GEARS Inc. at P.O. Box 277, McHenry, MD 21541 (noting Team 2818 on the memo). In the front row, from left, are mentors Josh Frick, Willie and Arlene Lantz, Phil Malone, and Stephen Lilly. Back row: team members Levi and Aaron Lantz, Kevin Haenftling, Derrick Maust, Nathan Tichnell, Mikail Perrine, Zach Frick, and Kendrick Bender. Not pictured: Bryan Rippeon. Friday, March 19, 5:30-7:30 p.m.
Saturday, March 20, 9-11 a.m.

Parents of children ages 3 to 5 are invited to come find out all about this private, Christian-based pre-school that is Maryland state accredited and staffed by a fully certified teacher and two assistants. Not only will this be an opportunity for parents to learn about us and what we have to offer their children, but it will also help us plan for our 2010-11 school year.

Children may be enrolled for two to five days per week, and scholarships are available.

St. Mark's CELC, which is sponsored by St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland, is located along Garrett Highway (U.S. Rt. 219) north of Oakland, just past the entrance to Underwood Rentals. (Look for our sign.)

Parents who are interested in learning about our school, but unable to attend either session of our March Open House, are encouraged to telephone teacher Becky Moyer at the center during regular school hours at 301-334-3084.

Here's Your Chance, Guys...

While the weather is about the only topic of discussion in these parts right now, it seems that this column could be better utilized by addressing a totally unrelated topic. Here's a thought: wind turbines.

Even though the snow currently measures four feet-plus right now, if all goes well for the wind developers only a few months remain before the first of the giant turbines will be erected in Garrett County. Although the topic has been covered almost ad nauseum in this corner, there have been a few recent developments that deserve mention.

Perhaps the most significant one is there has now been a confirmed death of the endangered species Indiana bat from a wind turbine. Yes, it is just one bat, but this confirmed killing conceivably gives the Garrett County commissioners a real opportunity to place a roadblock in front of the wind developers, and save face in the process.

A recent ruling by federal judge Roger Titus (who is a resident of Garrett County) put a stop to a West Virginia wind farm project because of the bat killing, noting in his lengthy opinion that placing the Indiana bat at risk is a violation of Section 9 of the Endangered Species Act (ESA). Our county commissioners could declare a moratorium or seek a court injunction, and basically wash their hands of such action by stating that they have no choice but to follow federal law as it relates to the ESA. They could follow that with enactment of a tall structures ordinance, much like the one proposed by the county development plan, but rejected by the commissioners.

A few other pertinent facts about the wind industry:

Talk about outsourcing, of the $2.1 billion in federal stimulus(?) grants earmarked for wind energy projects, just under 80% of it went to foreign companies. The largest single grant went to Babcock & Brown, a bankrupt Australian company that built a Texas wind farm turbines using Japanese-made turbines. Of the 1,807 turbines erected on 28 wind farms receiving grants, foreign-owned manufacturers built 1,219 of them.

A consortium of American and Chinese companies announced a deal last October to build a $1.5 billion wind farm in Texas, using imported Chinese turbines. Company officials said they planned to collect $450 million in stimulus grants for the project. The deal would create dozens of jobs in the U.S. and thousands in China. While some construction jobs are created when a wind farm is built, they last, on average, nine months.

Going green with wind? There are about 100,000 industrial wind turbines in operation around the world, including about 35,000 in the U.S. There is no empirical evidence that wind has been responsible for offsetting significant (or any) greenhouse gas emissions in the production of electricity, or that it has contributed to any reductions in fossil fuel use.

A case in point: In 1999, Denmark's daily coal consumption was the equivalent of about 94,400 barrels of oil per day. That country produces about 20% of its electricity with wind turbines. But by 2007, despite a 136 percent increase in the amount of electricity produced from wind, Denmark's coal consumption was exactly the same as it was back in 1999. That's because of the inefficiency and unreliability of wind turbines.

Come on, Ernie, Fred, and Denny, here's your chance to be heroes by keeping these things out of our backyards.

Letters to the Editor

Writers of letters to the editor are reminded that letters will not be published if they exceed 400 words, do not include contact information, and/or are deemed to be libelous.

To the Editor,

Every morning, I drive my toddler and infant out to their babysitter in Pleasant Valley, and every morning I get so frustrated to see how many people drive through the white-outs without their headlights on! You turn your lights on so other people can see you, not only when you can't see. Come on, people!

Half of the accidents that happen in this kind of weather are because of poor visibility. Those of us who brave even going to work every day in these conditions are already putting our lives on the line without the extra threat of some idiot you can't see coming until he is beside you. There was even a police vehicle out yesterday without its lights on. Can we maybe lead by example?

Turning your lights on does not use extra gas or energy, so what's the problem? It is also illegal to drive without your lights if your windshield wipers are on. I understand that sometimes people do forget to turn them on, but some people are just plain irresponsible. In this weather, we all need to not only be aware of our own vehicles and safety, but that of our fellow drivers as well.

Unfortunately, half of those drivers will not read this letter, so those of you who do, please take the time to not only turn on your own lights, but encourage those who don't to do so. And if you see a van furiously flashing its lights at you, it's me asking you to please, turn your lights on.

Sincerely,
Rachel Vecchioni
Loch Lynn

To the Editor:

On behalf of our town council and myself, I would like to thank you for putting last week's article in the newspaper concerning the Garrett County municipalities and the problems we are facing with the recent cut to our budgets through the reduction of highway user revenue funding.

We representatives of Friendsville have had to take more drastic cuts since the letter was sent to government officials last year. In the last couple of months we have removed 10% of our streetlights, and at the end of January had to lay off one of our two full-time employees who had worked for us for more than 21 years. This was done to balance our budget, which we are obligated to do by state law. Our loss from Highway User Revenue was in excess of $40,000. This was a drastic cut for a town our size.

The recent snowstorms have put an additional strain on our already tight budget. We do not have the extra funds to hire contractors to help remove the snow piled up along the streets. Recently we were informed that the highway user revenue cuts would continue through the new fiscal year, which begins July 1, 2010.

We thank our citizens and volunteers who have given of their time to help out in this time of need. Their patience and cooperation during this difficult time is greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,
Spencer R. Schlosnagle
Mayor

To the Editor:

I want to share an incredible experience we had with the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad after my husband Michael Hager had an accident at Wisp on January 23. I was in Washington, D.C., with my oldest son when I received a call that they had delivered Michael to the Western Maryland Regional Medical Center in Cumberland. Meredith Vagnetti, who called me, has a calm and reassuring voice.

Michael was able to give them my cell phone number and tell them that our two youngest sons did not know about the accident and were still skiing with the ski team. Since I had to make the three-hour drive from Washington, Meredith offered to drive back to Wisp, meet the boys, and take them back to our weekend house while I made the drive. I called the boys and explained the situation to them. I was able to make the difficult drive knowing that Michael was receiving good hospital care and the boys were safe.

Michael's accident was life threatening – a collapsed lung, five broken ribs, a concussion, and leg contusions. We are extremely thankful that the paramedic with the group, Brian Arnold, made the decision to take Michael to the WMRMC facility, as they have a trauma unit. The new hospital was a real surprise to us with a state-of-the-art facility and top-notch trauma doctors. Michael spent six days in ICU after he caught pneumonia. We are so thankful to have such a great facility just an hour away from Deep Creek Lake.

When I finally got to see Michael he told me about the icy conditions that caused the accident and how difficult it made it for the rescue team to get to him. Meredith held Michael's hand during the rescue to reassure him. Cody Wilt and driver Gary Teats also worked hard as a team to get Michael to safety. Meredith even followed up with me to check on Michael's progress.

This is an exceptional story of dedication. We were stunned to learn later that the NGCRS is a volunteer organization! They take their profession to heart. We will always be so grateful. We encourage everyone in the local community to support the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, as you may need them someday as well.

Warmest regards,
Jennifer Howard
Washington, D.C.

To the Editor:

Once again, Maryland's hospitals and caregivers have led the way ... to shelter, to safety, to confidence that care will be there when people need it. That, of course, is the "norm" every day, 24 hours a day. But the recent historic and abnormally dangerous weather conditions made it evident to all that the real norm for hospitals is their special, caring people, and their willingness to literally brave the storm to take care of their neighbors regardless of the risk.

At a time when the true meaning of the word "hero" has been diluted by being applied to everyone from sports stars to movie stars, let's remember the real definition: "One that shows great courage."

That defines the doctors, nurses, technicians, and so many others who sacrificed sleep, time at home and, in many cases, risked their lives to take care of patients. It defines the volunteers, like drivers of four-wheel-drive vehicles and snowplows, who risked their safety to get patients, nurses, doctors, and other caregivers to their local hospitals and ensure that there was access when they got there. And it defines the hospital leaders who spent countless hours helping to make it all happen.

To all of Maryland's health care heroes: We salute you and we are proud to represent you.

To the Editor:

I want to thank the commissioners for fully funding their scholarships to Garrett College. They could make no better investment with my tax dollars than investing in the kids of Garrett County.

I also want to thank Commissioners Gregg and Holliday for their support of the Community Athletic and Recreation Center at Garrett College.

These decisions underscore the critical contribution that Garrett College makes to this community. The college is the center of academic, recreational, and cultural activities in the county. In addition, the college brings competitive inter-collegiate athletics to Garrett County, reflected right now by the men's and women's basketball teams. These programs provide visibility for the college both within and outside our community. They showcase what a tremendous asset Garrett College is and attract students from within and outside the county to enroll here. While many players are not local, they are effective ambassadors for the college and commu-

Delegates Introduce Bill To Restrict Md. Transportation Fund Transfers

by Brady Holt
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Some legislators are calling for the state to reverse its recent trend of depending on large-scale revenue transfers to balance its budget, proposing a new bill to rein in the practice they describe as fiscally irresponsible.

Delegate Susan Krebs, R-Carroll, has introduced bills for the last several years that would block any non-emergency transfers out of the Transportation Trust Fund — a pot of money originally seen as providing exclusive support to the Department of Transportation.

"This year it has become even more crucial, because after 25 years of raiding the fund, this year is the worst yet," Krebs said at a hearing on the bill at the House Appropriations Committee Tuesday.

The Budget Reconciliation and Financing Act of 2010 calls for transferring $340.3 million from the trust fund into the state's general fund for fiscal year 2011 — a sum that would surpass this year's $321 million record. The money would help the state cover its operating costs as revenues have sagged during the economic recession.

The Department of Legislative Services has further recommended that the state transfer $60 million annually starting in 2013 to "relieve funding pressure on the general fund."

"All of these actions signify that the Transportation Trust Fund is one of the first places people look when they need money for the general fund," Barbara Wilkins, legislative counsel for the Maryland Transportation Builders and Materials Association trade group said at the hearing.

The bill would allow the General Assembly to pass transfers out of the trust fund in an emergency, which Krebs said was a compromise. Her "ultimate goal," she said, is to get the state to leave the transportation funding for transportation projects — no exceptions.

"It's called a trust fund. It's supposed to be set-aside money for transportation projects," Krebs said in an interview. "In this economic environment, my gosh, it's even more reason to keep money in the transportation trust fund. These are the people who we are employing to build our roads."

Krebs' bill would further require that the transferred money be returned to the fund within five years.

But while Krebs limited the "extraordinary circumstances" that might merit use of the fund to an "earthquake, war, or bombing," Delegate Murray Levy, D-Charles, said in a separate interview that the current recession should also apply.

"In economic times like these ... we're struggling to keep very basic programs," Levy said. "We have to make tough choices, and we'll take money away from more long-range projects for our short-term expenses."

Levy, a member of the Appropriations Committee, further disagreed with any bill that would "tie the hands of elected officials" and noted that this bill could easily be undone at any point even if it did pass this year. There is "some justification" for a section of Krebs' proposed bill calling for greater transparency in the fund transfer process, Levy said.

Under the current system, large-scale fund transfers are just one part of a widely varied budget bill - this year a 42-page document that specifies an assortment of items that includes mandated staffing levels in soil conservation districts and a $7.50 fee for motorists convicted in traffic court.

"Instead of bringing these tough issues to the legislature, they're coming through this big omnibus bill," Krebs said. Under her proposed legislation - which she considers a compromise - any Transportation Trust Fund transfer would need to come before the General Assembly as its own bill. So even if her colleagues disagreed with her that the fund should be untouched, Krebs said, "at least it would be transparent."

TO BE GUESTS AT WINTER FEST – The Winter Fest event in downtown Oakland, slated for this weekend, will feature the singing entertainment of the Preston (High School) Madrigal Choir, pictured. The group will perform on Saturday from noon to 2 p.m. in the gazebo area. The group, under the direction of Deborah Westbrook, sings music from various time periods and performs for school and community functions throughout the year. The singers also host the annual Madrigal Dinner at their high school each December. They recently performed in Pittsburgh at the Benedum Theater as part of a pre-show for The Nutcracker. Winter Fest, from Friday through Sunday, will feature a wide variety of events, and is definitely on schedule despite the ongoing snowy weather, according to Arlene Murray, Oakland Main Street manager. There will be live ice carving, frozen bowling, snowmobile races, a snowman building contest, and many other events. To obtain a detailed brochure about all activities as well as a map of the sculptures and activities, persons may e-mail gobamainstreet@hotmail.com or call Jim Johnson, Winter Fest committee chairman, at 301-616-4008, or Murray at 301-616-2411. The choir members pictured are as follows: First row, from left: Nichole Updegraff, Dawn Estep, Mariah Kelley, Cassie Hackbart, and Shelby Nieman. Row two, same order: Mykalah Montgomery, Elizabeth Wolfe, Kyla Host, Bethany Adams, and Chelsea Bishop. Row three: Melissa Cooper, Rachel Shaffer, Ben Schrengost, Jon Spahr, and Joya Dewitt.

February's Snow Costing Maryland Nearly $50 Mil.

by Brady Holt
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — This month's back-to-back blizzards wiped out the tiny remainder of Maryland's snow removal budget that had survived a record December storm, leaving the Department of Transportation facing a fresh budget hole of nearly $50 million, officials said.

The department had budgeted $60 million to clear snow from state highways, ports and airports in the 2010 fiscal year, but had already spent $57 million this winter even before two recent storms dumped several more feet on much of the state starting Feb. 5, said Erin Henson, a spokeswoman. Those two storms alone have cost the state more than $50 million, Henson said.

Even so, the snow that fell as her department was working with the General Assembly to determine its fiscal year 2011 spending plans is unlikely to change next year's snow removal budget, she said.

"It's impractical to budget for more than 40 inches of snow," Henson said. Central Maryland typically receives only two feet of snow in an entire season. This winter, the area has seen five feet or more.

In an interview a few days before the first February snowfall, Transportation Secretary Beverley Swaim-Staley said it's easier to trim budgets in the spring than to redistribute extra snow money into other projects in a year with minimal winter weather.

"Why would I overbudget for snow? Then I wouldn't have money for other things I'd need to do," Swaim-Staley said.

Nonetheless, "the concerns of the snow budget have been brought up by legislators," said Henson, the spokeswoman. Officials said the state is hoping for aid from the Federal Emergency Management Agency to cover some of its unprecedented snow removal costs, but the rest of the tens of millions would need to be cut from the transportation department's budget.

"The only place we will be able to go will be maintenance and capital projects in the spring," Swaim-Staley said.

Henson said she couldn't yet say exactly what will need to be cut.

"Our focus right now is working to clear the highways and keeping them safe," she said.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

This is a very wintery Feb. 10. Since I was pretty sure that Garrett County's schools would be closed in this winter nightmare, I gave a call to Cindy Stanton just to chat about our old days trying to deal with going out in the deep snow and cold weather.

Of course, another storm rolled in and closed my lane again. That caused a major panic attack, because Sunday – Valentine's Day – was the day the college's art gallery scheduled a special Haiti fundraiser.

Last week was just one storm after another. I was afraid I wouldn't be able to send a piece of art for it, and was sick at the thought. No piece was ready to go that would earn big money, because all my best things were used for my last October show. But I was able to find two decent paintings, framed and ready to go. Next, I had to find someone who was not snowed in and had the courage to face one-lane roads.

Another major obstacle was my snow-filled lane, but Ron Beitzel arrived with his Cat machine. He was up at his son's house to open up for them.

Ron was curious about something he saw on television about Tipper Gore and her campaign against unsuitable subject matter in rock music: drugs, sex, disrespect to women, etc. But I'm really not the best person to ask about it, because I have been pretty oblivious about pop music since about 1970 or so.

But I believe it is total nonsense that the classic song by Peter, Paul, and Mary, "Puff the Magic Dragon" is about drug usage. My interpretation of it is that it is about the sad transformation from beloved innocent things as children into adult pursuits, not including drug usage, I think.

A favorite memory of my New York City days is when I was among a large crowd of mostly adults, some with their children, at a free reunion concert of Peter, Paul, and Mary almost 20 years after their heyday. And when they sang "Puff, the Magic Dragon," the whole crowd sang along, their voices filled with emotion, because that song was part of our childhood.

But Ron's appearance was very welcome to me, because after he pushed some snow, Cindy Richardson could make it into my house, with just barely enough time to deliver my art before she was due at a funeral visitation in Grantsville.

I was dying to learn how much the Haiti Relief Art Show earned. I couldn't believe my ears when Lorie Skidmore told me on the phone: $4,000! It is too bad that when this column is in print it won't make much difference, but I hope that some more people go to it and that they reach their $5,000 goal.

If you are part of the Garrett County arts community, you could mail a donation to the Garrett County Art Gallery, McHenry, 21541. You could get some art for your money. I have a good bit of art around, so you could get a piece from me.

That is, if this relentless snow will stop. But today, Monday, another snowstorm is on the way here. The snow is supposed to start falling before noon.

My niece, Blakely Glotfelty, was able to leave one day early for a Presidents' Day weekend because Baltimore city had to call off school again on Friday. She had a little trouble getting out of her neighborhood, but the main roads were okay between Baltimore and her home, where there was another snow problem: Rodney's lane. But she made it. She is really enjoying being a third grade teacher in Baltimore. That one for sure the Stimulus Recovery Program created.

Relying on prayer and one's faith is a good thing, but I think it is wrong to leave everything to faith. It is sad to hear so often that children died because their parents rejected all medical treatment. If prayer alone could cure cancer, then my mother wouldn't have died from it, because there were many people praying hard for her. One last thing she told my daughters was that the most important things to her were two things: her faith and her family.

It took a lot of things to save my life on April 7, 1994, when the aneurism in my brain burst. I was very lucky that I wasn't home alone when it happened. I was in front of a class teaching composition. There were many students in that class who were fond of me, so they sought out the best help on campus that they knew: Ben Sincell, professor of theater, who happened to be down the hall teaching an EMT class, because he is also an EMT with lots of experience. And he happened to have an oxygen tank with him.

He knew my care demanded 911. And a very daring student ran around the halls of the building screaming to whoever parked their car and blocked the door to the building, demanding that they move it immediately so the ambulance crew could get in. I was rushed to Garrett Memorial and the ER ordered a CT scan and saw something very serious.

I remember hearing, "a massive cerebral hemorrhage." They ordered a rescue helicopter to take me to Cumberland. Memorial Hospital happened to have a very talented neurosurgeon on duty who immediately performed emergency brain surgery on me.

But I'm glad my students did not just hold a prayer circle and not call 911. I do believe the many prayers I got helped though. And my beloved intensive care nurse told Lloyd, "If anything can save her life, it will be to live for her children."

Although I love the Winter Olympics, it looks like this year will be the saddest ever. Injury, of course, is a natural part of competition on snow and ice. But this is the first time that an athlete has died. A luger from the nation of Georgia crashed during his practice. At first, I heard that his injuries were so serious that they qualified as life-threatening. Sadly, the worst happened today, Feb. 12, the evening that the opening ceremonies were supposed to be held.

Imagine a poor family in a tiny village in the Republic of Georgia. I am sure they were overjoyed about their 21-year-old son and very proud that he was going to the Olympics, with very little resources for training. I doubt there is a luge run in that poor area, after they were invaded by Russia just a few years ago. They are surely in survival mode.

Just when that family was at the high point of their lives, they learned the dreadful news that their pride and joy had died on a practice run on a questionable track.

I wish the thousands of people in Vancouver would conduct a fundraising effort to benefit that family in Georgia. The most they could do was dedicate the opening ceremonies to him. Of course, it is unlikely that his family even owns a television. And the rest of the Georgian team will continue to compete in his honor. Other lugers expressed some concern about the run. But to have a thick unpadded pole next to the track? That is truly crazy.

And it is still up in the air about Lindsey Vonn of USA. She is called the best female on the American team, and some called her the best woman skier in the world. Most people believed she was in line for five gold medals. But a couple of weeks ago while training in Austria, she suffered a serious injury: a bad shin bruise. It went deep into the bone, and I know personally how painful a bruised bone is.

One day I was riding in the big field between my house and where Rodney's house is now, when a runaway horse belonging to my neighbor kicked out at Joey double barrel; in other words, with both hind legs kicking as hard as possible. It happened that I was wearing my new riding boots, which were pretty tight.

Joey was uninjured, but not I. The runaway mare connected a few inches below my knee. The pain was intense and extreme, so extreme that I couldn't even steer Joey. So I just dropped the reins and screamed like crazy. Luckily, like always, Joey knew what he should do. He walked as carefully as possible to home, where Mother was waiting because she heard my screams.

When we neared our front door, I can't say that I dismounted. I think I passed out from the pain. Maybe Mother half caught me, but in any case, she was there to help me inside. We tried to get the boot off, but couldn't because my leg was already so swollen.

We went to the ER, where they had to cut off my new boot. That added not only physical, but psychological pain, because those boots cost more than my parents could really afford, and replacing them was out of the question.

But it looks like our best skier can ski, whether or not she will be in top form. Maybe it is too much to expect five gold medals from her though.

I am shocked and appalled that Americans don't realize that we do have some obligation to decently treat the people who experienced our stealing their home and pushing them onto a reservation.

Apparently, a large Indian land in South Dakota is in big trouble, buried in snow and dealing with a power grid and infrastructure that are too old. But where is FEMA or funds from the Stimulus Package?

Many Americans don't think that Native Americans are real Americans. They just don't fit the definition of Main Street. But several large Indian tribes are suffering severely, and I never saw a single thing done about their situation.

Unfortunately, this is a big day for Iran. It is celebrating turning from a democracy into a dictatorship. And the dictator was able to announce that Iran is now a real nuclear power. That is not just bad news for Israel and the West, but also the Islamic nations surrounding it are clearly concerned about the future of the region.

I am happy that Bill Clinton got to go home today, and has an excellent chance of recovering 100 percent. While he was in the operating room and his surgery was going on, they had to take away his cell phone.

He has a very important job: jump-starting the efforts to get shelters for thousands of Haitians who are homeless and living outside in horrible filthy conditions. With the rainy season, there is a risk of epidemics of serious diseases, which may kill more people than the earthquake itself.

It is very hard to believe, but a fairly young man was rescued from the rubble of a supermarket one month after he was buried. The one thing that saved his life was a small puddle of muddy water that was close enough that he was able to crawl over and take little drinks. The Haitian people are a testimony of the enormous power of the will to survive, even in the most dreadful conditions.

I urge all to help. All one has to do is send a text message and donate $10. It's not that hard to donate some money, but did you do it?

The greatest possible courage was shown by thousands of people from many nations who went down to hell on Earth to perform rescues or provide medical care while getting nothing in return except the knowledge that they sacrificed their own comfort to help the most wretched of the world. They did life-saving work amid piles of decaying bodies, where the air was filled with the stench of death.

Dave and Nancy Beachy and Lenny and Sally Poholsky returned from a Caribbean cruise on Sunday. I don't know if they could get into their homes. It must have been a big shock to come home to our weather, compared to what they enjoyed on their cruise ship.

Well, the snow arrived right on time. At noon on Monday, it was snowing at a pretty good clip. But I was overjoyed to see a big Cat machine working on my lane. I couldn't see who was driving it, whether it was Ron or Jack Beitzel. But whoever it was, thank you so much!

For my friend Sue Haydel, wife of Walter Haydel of McHenry, everyone remembers her birthday since it falls on Valentine's Day. And her brother was in town for it.

Brenda Ruggiero's sister Diane Lee had a birthday on the 15th. The family met Sunday to celebrate her birthday, and that of her daughter Becca, whose is the 10th.

One piece of advice on how to prevent a heart attack: If you feel that something is really wrong, you should see your doctor as

WHEN THE GOING GETS TOUGH – Milton Proudfoot, Oakland pharmacist, has been very busy, like most Garrett Countians, trying to keep sidewalks and paths open to passers-by. The snow just keeps coming, so Milton keeps shoveling. The snow removal in Garrett County is second to none, from shovel-wielding store owners like Proudfoot to the hard-working roads crews, who are out 24 and 7 trying to keep roadways passable and safe. The ongoing snowy weather does try all souls, but this, too, shall pass, as spring will indeed reach the mountaintop, in time. All residents are asked to pay attention to neighbors, especially the elderly, and help out when needed. Photo by Ed Panther.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Army Reserve Sgt. Wayne D. Jacques has been mobilized and activated at Fort Dix, N.J., in preparation for deployment to serve in either Operation Iraqi Freedom or Enduring Freedom. The soldier is a member of the 304th Transportation Company based at Westover Air Reserve Base, Springfield, Mass.

The soldiers are normally activated from Army Reserve or Army National Guard units from throughout the U.S. They go through a series of in-processing procedures and training classes that prepare them for skills and situations they may face in their deployed environment.

Jacques, a squad leader, has served in the military for more than 14 years. He is the son of Mary Ann Platter of Boswell, Pa., and stepson of Marvin Platter of Grantsville.

His wife Krystal is the daughter of Gary E. and Ida M. O'Brien of Grantsville.

Completes Stay

church introduced her to the Walmer Township community (an all-black area) and she said were key to her acceptance in the township.

One thing she found amusing about some of the South African people was that, as soon as they'd find out she was an American, they'd begin questioning her about Barack Obama, as though he were her next-door neighbor.

She also found watching the news interesting, as well as a bit odd. U.S. news was given just a brief mention.

The last 10 days of her trip were spent in Schoenmakerskop, located on the strip of beach on the Indian Ocean which she frequented throughout her stay in South Africa. A lot of her time there was spent writing an article for a law journal., and observing whales on a daily basis, which she described as "an amazing experience."

In addition to all the culture and experiences she brought back with her, Biser also brought the Child Justice Act to her GC classroom.

"As a document, the Child Justice Act is extraordinary," she said.

Also, all of her classes this semester have a unit built around the history and social aspects of South Africa, as well as how the country functions today.

Although Biser considers herself a "very open person," she said that being in South Africa challenged her way of thinking.

"It bent my mind in ways that were good for me," she explained. "I always give my students a tough time about being ethnocentric, but I found myself having the same tendencies while I was there. I'd find myself saying, 'Why are they doing that? That's really messed up.' But then I'd have to step outside that way of thinking and realize that it's a different culture."

Biser said she also made some larger discoveries.

"During my time there, I felt more like a part of the human race, rather than the American race or the South African race," she said. "It was a very humbling experience. I'm sure I am going to be thinking about this trip for the rest of my life, sorting things out, thinking about the implications of certain things I saw and experienced there."

Biser said that she would make the trip again "in a heartbeat." She doesn't believe she could stay for six months the next time, partly because she doesn't envision another six-month window of that kind of opportunity in her life, and partly because she found herself quite homesick at times. But nonetheless, she would go again.

One way she may someday get to take a follow-up trip is through a study-abroad program. She did make contact with a number of educators from the university who are interested in her coming back with a group of students and participating in a cultural exchange. A formal arrangement between NMMU and Garrett College was initiated during her time there to facilitate future opportunities for cooperative projects between the two schools.

One option Biser would like to further explore is the possibility of taking a mixed group of Garrett College students – majors from natural resources and wildlife technology, adventure sports management, juvenile justice, and business – to South Africa to study with students of like disciplines at the Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University. She believes it would be a great opportunity for "cultural show and tell."

Biser may not get her wish of going back to South Africa anytime in the near future, but the trip is something she'll never forget, calling it "the adventure of a lifetime."

Adorable Adoptables

No Adorable Adoptable photos were available this week from the Garrett County Animal Shelter, but many pets are currently housed at the facility, including several black cats, beagles, and basset hounds.

An Animal Shelter spokesperson noted that rabbit hunting season is now open and hunters may have lost their canines.

"If you have lost a beagle or basset hound, please call the shelter," said a spokesperson.

The Garrett County Humane Society also reminds residents to make sure their outside pets have adequate bedding, shelter, food, and water (twice a day) to keep them safe during these harsh wintery days. Straw is available at the Animal Shelter for residents to use in their dog houses.

Persons who see any animals without shelter are asked to contact the shelter or Sheriff's Office and they will contact the GCHS officer.

Soup Suppers, Lenten Services Set At St. Mark's

St. Mark's Lutheran Church of Oakland will continue its traditional soup suppers and midweek Lenten worship services this year. Soups, salads, rolls, and desserts will be served each Wednesday during Lent, beginning at 5:45 p.m. in the church fellowship hall. A service of vespers (evening prayer) will follow the meal at 7 p.m.

The meals and services will be held on Feb. 24 and March 3, 10, 17 and 24.

The services will include short presentations on "faith in daily living" by members and guests of the congregation. Special music and congregational singing will be led by St. Mark's choir, directed by Susan Peterson.

"These Lenten services are ecumenical in nature," said Pastor C. Scott Robinson. "Non-Christians and Christians of all denominations are invited to join us for food, fellowship, and a contemplative service of worship."

St. Mark's is located at the corner of Second and Center streets, across from the Ruth Enlow Library. Persons may call the church office for more information at 301-334-2668.

The births of three babies were announced this week, two boys and one girl.

A daughter, Kierstyn Leigh, was born to Matthew and Michelle (Schroyer) Bach, Grantsville, on Jan. 19 at Monongalia General Hospital, Morgantown, W.Va. The maternal grandparents are Mark and Judy Schroyer, Bittinger, and the paternal grandparents are Edward and Rhonda Bach, also Grantsville.

A son was born to Michael and Amy (Frazee) Guseman, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., on Feb. 4 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

A son, Robert Aiden, was born to Robert and Michelle (Prohonic) McCrobbie, Oakland, on Feb. 6 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

KEEPING THE ROADS OPEN in Garrett County at this time is not an easy task, but the crews continue to manage it, despite the relentless weather. This is a shot of Sang Run Road in the northern end of Garrett County. A picturesque scene, no doubt about it, but also telling of the challenges set before all those who must travel, and all those who are working so hard to make that possible. The forecast is calling for even more snow over the next week, with another system possibly on its way. Photo by Lisa Broadwater.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

THE WHISTLING TEAKETTLE

Q. My grandma's teakettle whistles to tell us the water is boiling. How exactly does that work?

A. A teakettle is such an everyday thing that we seldom give it any thought. But the principle of how a whistle works is the same in a steam locomotive or a teakettle or a factory whistle.

If water is heated in an open pan, you can tell that it's boiling by the mist of steam rising above it. But if you're in another room doing something else and not looking at it, you won't find out. How can you get the information that boiling has begun?

The idea of a teakettle is to put a lid on the boiling vat that makes it difficult for the steam to escape. Only a small hole is left in the lid to relieve the pressure.

As water begins to heat, it makes the air above it warm up and expand, and that air easily departs through the small hole. When the boiling temperature is reached, and liquid water becomes a gas, the number of gas molecules is suddenly much larger, and so the pressure inside the teakettle goes up much higher. Then a lot of steam (water vapor) wants to escape too, and the only way out is through the small hole. So it has to rush through the hole all at once, and the traffic jam of hurried gas molecules creates turbulence.

Normal air is a jumble of randomly moving molecules, but air moving in some direction is called a fluid. A slow-moving fluid (like the air that warms or cools your house) is nothing special, but when the velocity of fluid motion is high, turbulent flow begins, and lots of vibrations take place. Vibrating air is exactly what makes sound waves, and some of those we can hear.

All whistles work in basically the same way. Whenever a gas under high pressure is offered a small hole to escape through, the air rushing through makes a sound. When you blow into a whistle, the force from your lungs provides the high pressure, and the little hole in the whistle is the escape route. That's where the vibrations of fluid take place. When you let air out of a tire, you hear a hissing sound, again caused by the high-speed exit of air through a small opening.

You could blow a whistle so gently that the air barely moves, and then no one would hear any sound. However, usually you blow it hard enough to be heard some distance away.

A century ago when steam locomotives were everywhere, you could hear the whistle from miles away. Locomotives had a lot of high-pressure steam, and a little bit of it was sent to the whistle, where it flowed out through a hole at high velocity and set up major sound waves. Those waves diminished as they spread out in all directions, but could still be faintly heard far away. There would be little signs alongside the track with just the letter "W," to tell the engineer to blow the whistle there. The engineer would pull the cord to open a valve and sound the whistle, to warn people up ahead that a train was coming. They probably got the idea from teakettles centuries earlier.

SUV Leaves Scene Of Accident; GCSO Seeking Suspect

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to a reported hit and run accident last week at the intersection of Oakland Avenue and I Street, Mtn. Lake Park.

Investigation revealed that Melissa Bittinger, 29, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., had been traveling west through the intersection, when her vehicle was struck by a northbound SUV. The driver of the SUV failed to stop at the accident scene and was sought after by deputies throughout the Mtn. Lake Park area.

Deputies were unsuccessful in locating the suspect vehicle as they searched throughout the night. Anyone with information regarding the owner or location of the SUV is asked to contact the GCSO at 301-334-1911. Charges are pending while the investigation continues into the details of the collision.

Two-Vehicle Wreck Occurs When Driver Loses Control

The 2006 Hyundai Santa Fe she was operating struck a 2000 GMC Sierra waiting to enter Rt. 219 from Mary's Lane. Gary Lee Duff, 54, Corinth, W.Va., was the driver of the Sierra.

soon as possible. That is how my father felt a week before his fatal heart attack, but his doctor wouldn't fit him in ... maybe next week or the next week. Then it was too late.

Sheila Southerly reminded me of what she told me some time ago about the long-range weather forecast: In February you will think it will never end. Well, she got it 100 percent right. Almost every day there is another major snowfall. Then the winds started blowing. If I get my lane open, it closes in a few hours, which means to me that no one can come to see me or bring anything to me.

I expected around noon that Brenda Ruggiero would pick up this column so she can put it on her computer and e-mail it to The Republican. But she could see that it was too deep to drive in. She tried to walk in, but she soon fell down. It was just too much.

This is the sixth day in a row with no school. And the year's total is already 10 days! It is possible that even downstate they have gotten way too much snow. One day the governor decided that it was a statewide state of emergency. So maybe the state will forgive at least some snow days.

The Bittinger Lutheran Parish observed Ash Wednesday with a service on Wednesday evening at St. John's. The next midweek Lenten service will be next Wednesday, Feb. 24, at Emmanuel at 6 p.m. A welcome is extended to everyone to come for the service, and for soup and bread following the service.

All members of the parish are invited to gather in Emmanuel's parish hall at 2 p.m. this Sunday, Feb. 21, to assemble health kits, school kits, and layette kits, and to tie comforters for Lutheran World Relief.

Lists of items needed to assemble these kits were included in the parish newsletter and are posted at each of the churches. After the work is done, there will be an afternoon of fellowship and games, followed by a potluck dinner at 5 p.m. This was postponed from Feb. 14 because of the weather.

The sewing and prayer shawl ministry continues to meet at Emmanuel at 9 a.m. each Tuesday morning. Everyone is invited to come and bring their sewing, knitting, crocheting, or other needlework, or to just come and enjoy the fellowship.

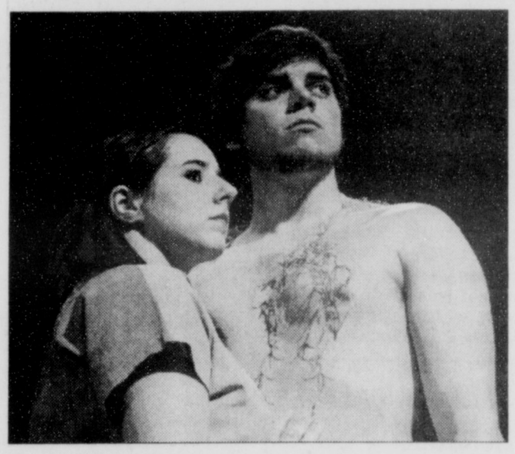
Appalachian Folk Drama Being Staged On FSU's Main Stage



The Department of Theatre and Dance at Frostburg State University will present Howard Richardson and William Berney's Appalachian folk tale Dark of the Moon. Performances will take place in the Performing Arts Center's Drama Theatre Friday, Feb. 26, and Saturday, Feb. 27, and Thursday, March 4, through Saturday, March 6, at 7:30 p.m., with a matinee performance on Feb. 27 at 2 p.m.

"Loosely based on the ancient folk song 'The Ballad of Barbara Allen,' Dark of the Moon is a powerful, mystical folk drama set in the mysterious and mesmerizing Smoky Mountains of Appalachia in the 1920s," a spokesperson said. "A tale of tragic love, reminiscent of Romeo and Juliet, is at the heart of a story that depicts a clash of incongruent worlds – the mountains where witches and other supernatural beings reside, and the valley where the humans live.

"When John, a 'witch boy,' falls in love with the beautiful, lusty mortal Barbara Allen, he makes a pact with a conjurer to gain human status. His wish is granted on the condition that Barbara remain faithful to him for one year. But, myriad characters from both 'worlds' conspire to thwart their happiness through a series of extraordinary, haunting, sometimes frightening plot twists."

For reservations and information, persons may call the theatre box office at 301-687-7462, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 to 4 p.m. Tickets are $6 for students and $12 for the general public.

GCAC Members Attend Md. Arts Day In Annapolis

Members of the Board of Directors of the Garrett County Arts Council along with staff, volunteers, and representatives of several other county arts organizations traveled to Annapolis on Feb. 9 for the 12th annual Maryland Arts Day, hosted by Maryland Citizens for the Arts (MCA) and the MCA Foundation.

This year's theme was "Many Voices, One Song," with the image of hundreds of voices together creating one song of support for the arts across the state, said Karen Reckner, executive director of the Garrett County Arts Council.

While the day was curtailed somewhat because of the inclement weather, Reckner said, a considerable crowd was still in attendance to demonstrate the importance of art in communities.

"Garrett County was the only county west of Frederick to make the trip," she said. "We were recognized for the courageous spirit of the group."

In addition to the county arts council, members of Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) and Our Town Theatre also attended.

"Maryland Arts Day is the most important arts advocacy event of the year, bringing the many, varied voices of the artistic community together in support of state funding for the arts and the Maryland State Arts Council," Reckner said. " In addition, Maryland Arts Day acts as the only statewide annual meeting for the Maryland arts community."

Organized by the MCA, the day's events were held in the Miller Senate Building. Several dignitaries were in attendance, including Senate President Mike Miller, Speaker of the House Michael Busch, Christian Johansson, secretary of the Department of Business and Economic Development, and the governor's chief of staff, Matt Gallagher.

Maryland Citizens for the Arts is a statewide arts advocacy organization, founded to represent all Maryland artists and arts organizations. Its principal mission is to promote adequate funding for the Maryland State Arts Council and to advocate for the arts at the state and federal levels.

While in Annapolis, the Garrett County group visited the offices of Senator George Edwards and Delegate Wendell Beitzel. A framed photograph of a Garrett County scene by local photographer and GCAC member Jim Lawrence was presented, on loan, to hang in the offices for the remainder of the session.

Reckner noted that the Garrett County Arts Council annually provides monetary support to other local art projects. In 2010, GCAC will distribute $42,000 in grant money to 18 Garrett County projects or organizations. GCAC receives funding from Garrett County government and the Maryland State Arts Council, and receives support from members.

SHS STUDENTS IN WVU HONOR BAND – Two music students from Southern High School were selected to participate in the 31st annual High School Invitational Honor Bands event, hosted by West Virginia University division of music last weekend. Through a selection process, students from six states were chosen to attend the two-day event. Based on auditions, the musicians were placed in one of three different bands. They rehearsed throughout the day Friday (Feb. 12), and on Saturday morning, and then presented a concert that afternoon in the Lyle B. Clay Theatre at the Creative Arts Center (shown above). Participating band directors nominate students from their own groups, and the organizers at WVU then select students from the nominees. Robert McEwen, percussionist, and Christina Hall, flutist, both pictured below, were chosen from Southern this year. Hall is a sophomore and McEwen is a senior. Both are active members of the Southern marching and concert bands. They were selected from seven Southern students nominated by band director Joshua Elmlinger. McEwen was then selected for the Oregon Honor Band, conducted by Brad Townsend, director of athletic bands at Oregon State University. Hall (who because of the inclement weather missed the band auditions) performed with the West Virginia Honor Band, directed by Keith Reed, director of bands at Morgantown High School. The third group, the Alabama Honor Band, was conducted by renowned composer Robert W. Smith, who teaches at Troy (Ala.) University. The students all participated in master classes and together attended a concert of the West Virginia University Wind Band on Friday evening. Photos by John McEwen and Art Hanlin.

outcomes" for Maryland by county: the rate of people dying before age 75, the percent of people who report being in fair or poor health, the number of days people report being in poor physical and poor mental health, and the rate of low-birthweight infants.

The report then looks at factors that affect people's health within four categories: health behavior, clinical care, social and economic factors, and physical environment. Among the many health factors they looked at were: rates of adult smoking, adult obesity, binge drinking, teenage pregnancy, number of uninsured adults, availability of primary care providers, preventable hospital stays, rates of high school graduation, number of children in poverty, homicide rates, access to healthy foods, air pollution levels, and liquor store density.

Garrett County's best ranking – 6th – was in physical environment. The county ranked 8th in health behaviors, 14th in social and economic factors, and 19th in clinical care.

In the category of mortality/premature death, Garrett county ranks 9th, but is 17th in morbidity, which includes statistics on the percentage of people in poor or fair health, poor physical health days, poor mental health days, and low birthweight.

"These rankings demonstrate that health happens where we live, learn, work, and play. And much of what influences how healthy we are and how long we live happens outside the doctor's office," said Risa Lavizzo-Mourey, M.D., president and CEO of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. "We hope the County Health Rankings spur all sectors – government, business, community and faith-based groups, education, and public health – to work together on solutions that address barriers to good health and help all Americans lead healthier lives."

The University of Wisconsin's Remington added, "It's easier for people to lead a healthy lifestyle when they live in a healthy community – such as one that has expanded early childhood education, enacted smoke-free laws, increased access to healthier foods, or created more opportunities for physical activity. We hope this report can mobilize community leaders to learn what is making their residents unhealthy and take action to invest in programs and policy changes that improve health."

NHS Remains Top Seed In Area With Victories Over Bishop Walsh, Fort Hill

The girls' varsity basketball team of Northern High School remain as the top seed in the area after making a strong third quarter come back to defeat Bishop Walsh, 58-37, last Saturday in Cumberland. The Huskies also led from the first quarter on in their 65-48 domination of Fort Hill last night in Cumberland.

Northern, now 17-2 overall and 12-1 in the Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference, trailed Bishop Walsh 14-9 after the first quarter and 24-21 at halftime in Saturday's game. The Huskies made quite a comeback in the third quarter, outscoring the Spartans, 22-5, to lead 43-29 going into the fourth.

Kaitlynn Fratz scored 14 of her game-high 18 points in the third quarter, and hit two 3-pointers. Adria Graham finished with 12 points, and was 2-for-2 from the foul line.

"Kaitlynn Fratz just took over in the third quarter for them, after we led at halftime," said Bishop Walsh head coach Tim Wolfe. "I would like to say that Northern's staff and all their kids are all class."

Ashley Turnbull led the Spartans with a double-double by scoring 15 points and grabbing 18 rebounds.

The junior varsity game was won by Northern as it edged the Bishop Walsh jayvees, 35-33. Amanda Moreland scored 34 of the Huskies' 35 points to lead all players, and Morgan Ruppenkamp finished with 16 for the Spartans.

In last night's match against Fort Hill, Fratz hit nine field goals, including three 3-pointers, and was 8-of-10 from the foul line to accumulate a game-high 29 points for Northern. Terra McKenzie followed with 12 points and Graham added nine in the win.

The Huskies led by seven after the first period, 20-13, and remained ahead, 31-27, by halftime. Northern outscored Fort Hill in the third quarter, 21-6, to put the game away. The fourth quarter began at 52-33 in the Huskies' favor.

Lakers Top Anne Arundel, Nearly Upset Cecil To End Regular Season

Although weather conditions have been hazardous, the Garrett College men's basketball team was able to squeeze in two final regular-season games this past week, winning the first and losing the second.

The Lakers defeated host Anne Arundel on Friday, and were edged by nationally ranked Cecil CC on Saturday, 83-77. The results left the Lakers with an overall record of 15-9, and a 9-5 Maryland JUCO mark, which they will take into the conference tournament tonight against visiting Montgomery Rockville.

The Lakers were slated to host Harford CC last Saturday, but Greg Witkop, head coach of the Fighting Owls, called last Thursday to say that his team would not make the trip to McHenry.

So GC coach Dennis Gibson contacted Anne Arundel CC head coach Tom Smith, who said that his Pioneers would be willing to play the Lakers if they traveled to Anne Arundel.

"If we can play, we will make every effort to play, as long as the players are safe," said Coach Gibson. "The roads were in good shape.

"Actually, this was not a good move for us," he continued. "We were solidly in fourth place without any games. A loss here could have dropped us as far as seventh. But we play any game we can per our contracts. Seeding is secondary."

The Lakers made the best of the situation by topping the Pioneers, 92-84, in a contest that "featured" a total of 65 fouls and 92 free throws.

Garrett jumped out to a 20-point lead, despite having played only one game in the past 2½ weeks. They held what appeared to be a fairly comfortable 43-27 advantage at intermission.

But the Pioneers battled back to cut the lead to just four points with about six minutes left in the game.

Then Laker Kory Gibson drained a three-pointer to push the lead back to seven, and Doma Ibrahim came on strong inside, making a variety of power moves and converting three free throws in the final minute to secure the GC victory.

The Lakers had 50 opportunities at the foul line, making good on 30 of them, while the home team converted 31 of 42 attempts.

Gibson led five Lakers in double figures, finishing with 18 points. Jordan Gipson was close behind with 16, Ibrahim netted 15, Jeff Stem added 11, and Chris Hilliard chipped in with 10. Ibrahim also grabbed eight rebounds, and Stem dished out five assists.

Recording a game-high 23 points was Pioneer Clyde Gross. Kevin Hunt scored 18 and Kevin Coates finished with 16.

"We did not play our best basketball, but we did what we had to do to win this game, despite all the foul trouble," said Gibson. "I really like the way Doma stepped up late in the game; he was the difference."

Nationally ranked Cecil made the trip to McHenry despite snow-covered roads on Saturday.

The Lakers held a solid lead for the first 33 minutes of the game, and were on top by eight with about seven minutes left, but managed just four points over the next six-plus minutes.

A three-pointer by Gipson with about 40 seconds to play cut the Seahawks' lead to five, but the visitors were perfect at the foul line the rest of the way to ice the win.

"We gave them too many second chances, and we did not finish plays and free throws," said Coach Gibson. "We got some shots we normally make, but we turned the ball over and lost our intensity for some reason.

"We really missed Jeff Stem," he continued. "He was doing a great job moving our offense. Joe Dubuche has done a good job when Jeff was out, but with Jeff playing, Joe can be more of a shooter for us."

The Seahawks won the game at the foul line, from which they made good on 26 of 38 attempts, while the Lakers hit just 12 of 18 shots.

Kory Gibson was on fire in the first half, hitting four three-pointers, but recorded only one three and a two-pointer in the second half to finish with a team-high 21 points. Gipson netted 15 and Mario Lloyde contributed 12.

"I give them all the respect, the game meant nothing to them other than a chance to play," said Gibson. "They were the #1 seed in the MD JUCO with or without a loss. It probably meant more to us from the aspect of measuring ourselves against another top-ranked opponent."

The Garrett Lakers have secured a fourth-place finish in the conference standings, and will be favored to defeat #13 Montgomery Rockville tonight.

Garrett's regular-season meeting with Rockville was cancelled because of weather, so this will be the first meeting between the two this season.

"I have not seen Rockville play this year, but they have beaten some good teams," Gibson said. "We seem to match up quite often in the playoffs for some reason, and I have always found them to be one of the toughest opponents we face. They play great defense and really push the ball on offense. They are well coached, so I am expecting a very tough first-round game."

If the Lakers are successful tonight, they will next face the winner of the Frederick (#5) and Anne Arundel (#12) game. That second-round contest is scheduled to tip off Friday at 5 p.m. at Prince George's CC.

The two semifinal games will be played Saturday, and the championship tilt is set for Sunday at 1 p.m., all at Prince George's.

Rams Now 11-5 Overall, 9-2 In AMAC After Defeat Of Fort Hill

Even with all the weather-related game cancellations, the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team still managed to squeak in a game this past week against Fort Hill in Cumberland. The Rams (11-5 overall, 9-2 AMAC) faced a deficit in the third quarter, but came back in the fourth for a 69-60 victory over the Sentinels on Saturday in an Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference game.

Sophomore Wyatt McBee led Southern with his 19 points. All five of his field goals were three-pointers, and he was also 4-of-4 from the free throw line. Teammate Ethan Brady followed with 13 points, while Calvin Hilliard was close behind with 12.

"It was a good game," said Fort Hill head coach Glenn Rice. "Southern just shot extremely well, and that was the difference of the game."

The Rams led 14-9 at the end of the first quarter, and 30-27 at the half. The third quarter shifted as the Sentinels took the lead at 44-40. Southern took off in the fourth, hitting seven of nine field goals before Fort Hill was forced to put them on the line with fouls.

Fort Hill was led by Devin Lee's 15 points, 14 rebounds, and three steals. Will Harris scored 12 points, and Paden Yonker and Craig Lease finished with 10 apiece.

The Ram jayvees fell, 48-40, to the Sentinels' junior varsity. Aaron Shotwell recorded 16 points for Southern, while Mark Kelly, Zach Goodlove, and Jordan Rowe all scored nine for Fort Hill.

The Rams are scheduled to host Tucker tonight, and Allegany on Friday, and will then travel to Mtn. Ridge on Saturday and to Bishop Walsh on Tuesday.

The fourth ranked Lady Lakers of Garrett College managed to squeeze in one game this past week, and ended its regular basketball season this past Saturday with a 68-32 victory over Cecil Community College. Brock Glotfelty Still Winning On Green Terror Mats

Grantsville resident and Northern High School graduate Brock Glotfelty notched two more victories for McDaniel College at a Centennial Conference (CC) wrestling tri-match hosted by Ursinus on Saturday.

The Green Terror (8-7, 5-2 CC) dropped a 25-12 decision to Ursinus before downing Muhlenberg 39-7 in the final action of the regular season.

Against the Ursinus Bears (10-1, 5-1 CC), Glotfelty wrapped up the match with a 1-minute, 52-second pin over Ed Minelli in the heavyweight division.

In the match against the Muhlenberg Mules (0-13, 0-6 CC), Glotfelty recorded a 14-2 major decision over Chris Galleta.

The pair of personal victories upped Glotfelty's season record to 35-4 overall and 7-0 against conference opponents. A senior, he will be the top seed in the heavyweight division going into the CC Championships, which will be hosted by Stevens College this Saturday.

The Lakers played Cecil Community College on Saturday. The women's team won by over 30 points. The men's team faced a serious challenge; Cecil is ranked fifth in the nation. Our players played with a lot of emotion and left everything they had on the court. They led the game for 35 minutes before the referees took over and handed the game to Cecil. You never want to see the refs determine the outcome of a game, but they did in this instance.

This community must continue to support the college, its athletic programs, and the student athletes who represent us so well. I call on the commissioners to prohibit the three referees of the Cecil game from ever setting foot in Garrett County again. I would also like to ask the State Police at the McHenry Barrack to arrest these three referees if they do come into the county on theft charges, because they robbed the Lakers of a well-deserved, hard-fought victory over the 5th ranked team in the nation.

Finally, I ask the community to show our support of the teams as well. The men's team has a playoff game at GC today, Feb. 18, at 5 p.m. I hope everyone in the community will attend, wearing white and/or blue, to support these student athletes who have worked hard all season, never giving up, and who have represented this community so well all year.

Sincerely,
Michael Bell

To the Editor:

I know it's fashionable right now to be jumping on the Republican bandwagon, but before your tea party starts in November, consider this: You probably hate the health care bill as much as I do. Forcing individuals to buy expensive insurance from private companies puts yet another financial burden on the middle class that we don't need. Just whose idea was this individual mandate anyway? It has to be some commie, leftist agenda from the White House, right?

Not so. The idea of an individual mandate was introduced by your new friends, the Republicans, back in the early '90s as an alternative to Clinton's mandate that employers be required to provide insurance for their workers. Republicans, in the true spirit of self responsibility, declared it unfair to let free riders roam around uninsured, possibly becoming a drain on the system if they needed health services, but with no way of paying for them. Further, it was sure to destroy small businesses if they were required to provide coverage. So, in opposition to Clinton, Republicans introduced legislation that included an individual mandate.

And now, if you compare the bill we have in 2010 with the bill the Republicans introduced in the '90s, you wouldn't see much difference. And you'd even find that some of the authors of the legislation in the '90s are the same ones who oppose it now. Four of the Republican authors of the bill are still in Washington, passionately fighting against it, most notably Orrin Hatch.

So why would they now fight against legislation that they themselves cooked up and advocated for in the past? Two words: November 2.

And Democrats, you aren't off the hook either. I hear you everywhere I go advocating for this bill to be passed "because Obama needs a victory."

What a terrible reason to push a piece of bad legislation through Washington. Where were you in the '90s when the Republicans introduced this bill? Probably railing against it. Do the same now.

I'm glad this business-friendly bill didn't pass in the '90s, and I'm glad it's not going to pass now. Anything less than universal health care falls terribly short of big promises of hope and change.

To the Editor:

Consumers are looking for more detailed information about the food they eat, and the time is right for restaurants of all sizes to start providing nutrition information. As obesity rates rise and more consumers are seeking a healthier lifestyle, foodservice establishments that provide nutrition information will not only comply with pending national legislation, but will appeal to health-conscious customers.

According to the National Restaurant Association, a uniform national nutrition standard will allow consumers access to detailed nutrition information that meets their needs while providing clarity, consistency, and flexibility for restaurants in how that information is provided. They are urging members of Congress to co-sponsor the Labeling Education and Nutrition Act (LEAN Act), which will provide a national nutrition labeling standard for foodservice establishments with 20 or more locations.

By highlighting healthier options, restaurants can distinguish themselves by meeting the growing demand for nutrition information, establish a competitive edge over their competitors and, most importantly, provide an important service to their customers.

Laura Walsh RD, LDN

mately $50,000. In addition to the USDA Rural Development grant, the Maryland Energy Administration is providing a $9,875 grant, and Salem School will contribute $12,975.

USDA Rural Development's mission is to increase economic opportunity and improve the quality of life for rural residents. The agency provided more than $421 million to rural Maryland last year, with 45% of the funds a result of the Recovery Act.

President Obama signed the Recovery Act into law on Feb. 17, 2009, and it is designed to jumpstart the nation's economy, create or save millions of jobs, and put a down payment on addressing long-neglected challenges so the U.S. can thrive in the 21st century. The act includes measures to modernize the nation's infrastructure, enhance energy independence, expand educational opportunities, preserve and improve affordable health care, provide tax relief, and protect those in greatest need.

USDA Rural Development funds more than 40 programs that support agriculture, business opportunities, homeownership, home repair, rental housing, broadband technology, public safety, health care, education, community facilities (such as libraries, schools and day care centers), and energy-related projects. Table Games Gaining Support, But Don't Bet On Them Yet

by Adam Kerlin
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Despite struggles to get Maryland's 15,000 allotted slot machines up and running, some legislators are looking to pass a constitutional amendment that would add table games such as poker, blackjack and craps to state-licensed casinos.

The state's Video Lottery Facility Location Commission added its voice to the argument recently, submitting a letter to Gov. Martin O'Malley, Senate President Thomas V. "Mike" Miller Jr. and Speaker of the House Michael E. Busch that says the Governor and General Assembly may want to consider legislative action to approve table games in order to remain competitive for gaming revenues.

Bills that would change Maryland laws to allow table games at slots sites have already been introduced in the State House and Senate. The bills come as Delaware, Pennsylvania and West Virginia work to establish recently approved table games.

The authors of the bills cited increased revenues and job creation as key reasons for introducing gaming legislation. But unlike other states, Maryland could have a difficult time getting table games into casinos.

The House bill, which has been cross filed in the Senate, would amend current gaming laws to allow table games in state licensed slots sites. The Senate bill is brief, simply requiring the state's slots commission to conduct a study on the financial impact of additional games.

Maryland lawmakers are more split on the issue of table games than their Delaware counterparts, who passed a two-bill table games package just 13 days after it was introduced Jan. 15.

O'Malley and Busch have been opposed to focusing on table games when the state has yet to see a slots casino open. In contrast, Miller has been a vocal advocate of adding gaming to generate revenue.

"We need to move forward," Miller said, earlier this month. "Slots should have been up and running by now."

Miller recently said he'd like to see an additional casino in Prince George's County and supports the House table games bill. Although he believes it will be a hard measure to get through the House, he says table games are an option the state "needs to study now."

There were no significant proponents for table games when Maryland legalized slots. The first strong argument for them came last May, when Miller responded to Delaware's progress towards legalizing table games.

Maryland has run into numerous obstacles trying to get 15,000 slots up and running across the state.

After voters approved slots in 2008, designated slots sites have had difficulty receiving bids from developers. Only three of the five sites have been licensed and the slots committee said the earliest the state can expect to see a casino open is this fall.

Maryland's slots took another blow on Feb. 4, when a coalition against the development of a facility at Arundel Mills Mall filed a petition of nearly 24,000 signatures. The petition calls for a referendum that would allow voters to decide whether or not to allow slots at the mall, which is one of the state's three licensed sites.

In addition to proposing table games before a single slot machine has been played in the state, some Maryland legislators are trying pass table games before seeing the results of a game impact study.

Delaware's legislation was introduced after a study by TMG Consultants suggested the state could see increased revenues from table games. Maryland won't necessarily have a study to consult this session, as the Senate bill doesn't require the slots commission to produce a study on game impacts until Jan 1., 2011.

Even if the House and Senate bills were passed, voters and the developers of the state's five casinos would ultimately decide the future of table games in Maryland.

If the House bill passes this legislative session, it would be put before voters in the next election. It would then be up to the developers of Maryland's privately owned casinos to decide whether they want table games at all.

Penn National Gaming Inc., America's third largest publicly traded gaming company, is developing the Hollywood Casino in Cecil County scheduled to open this fall. A company spokesman said it would have to determine whether table games would have a proper financial return before it could decide the amount, if any, of table games they would have.

Thursday's letter from the Video Lottery Facility Location Commission expresses concern that the "current legal framework with the constitutional language and statutory provisions makes it more difficult for Maryland to stay competitive for gaming revenues."

Maryland's gaming law currently entitles the state to a generous 67 percent of slots revenues, which some say is a disincentive to casino developers. As of now, no changes to that percentage have come with the proposed table games proposals.

When the Delaware legislature worked to approve table games earlier this year, an amendment to change the state's percentage of gaming revenues from 29.4 percent to 47.5 percent was shot down to avoid jeopardizing the bill's future, according to a report by The News Journal.

In addition to getting developers on board, legislators need to alleviate fears that gambling brings crime to communities.

The coalition opposed to slots at Arundel Mills Mall lists increased crime as one of the primary concerns with the development.

The American Gaming Association denounces fears that communities with casinos see increased crime.

But according to the FBI's yearly crime reports, Atlantic City, N.J., which is well known for its casinos, reported a crime rate about two times higher than similar cities in 2007. The city's crime rate went down in its most recent 2008 report, but the FBI believes crime went underreported that year.

FSU Will Host MIPS Research Funding Workshop

The Maryland Industrial Partnerships Program (MIPS) will host a free workshop about how faculty and local businesses can participate in the MIPS program at Frostburg State University. It will be held Monday, March 1, from 2:30 to 4 p.m. in Room 327 of the Compton Science Center.

MIPS manager Ronnie Gist will give a presentation, which will be followed by a question and answer period and one-on-one meetings if desired.

MIPS provides funding – matched by participating companies – for university-based research projects that help companies develop new products. MIPS funding goes directly to faculty for research that benefits the company's ability to commercialize a product.

MIPS has supported research projects with more than 400 different Maryland companies since 1987. Adventure Sports Inc., Deep Creek Lake, and Oakland-based Pioneer Conveyor have participated in MIPS projects in the past.

Benefits of MIPS funding for faculty include:

•Research leading directly to new product development,

•Potential for published papers and improved university facilities,

•Students gain valuable experience working on commercial technologies, and •Rapid proposal evaluations, as MIPS notifies award winners within 60 days of the proposal deadline .

Benefits of MIPS funding for Maryland companies include:

•Cost-effective research by collaborating with university faculty,

•Access to expert university faculty, students, state-of-the-art facilities, laboratories and equipment,

•Efficient transfer of technology from universities to companies, and

•Opportunity to work with students.

Research supported by MIPS may be in engineering, computer science, physical, environmental, and life sciences. MIPS also supports projects designed to help a company plan and develop industrial training programs for its employees.

For more information about the MIPS workshop, persons may contact Linda Steele, program specialist at FSU, at 301-687-4137 or lsteele@frostburg.edu.

The Maryland Industrial Partnerships Program, an initiative of the A. James Clark School of Engineering's Maryland Technology Enterprise Institute (Mtech), brings university innovation to the commercial sector by supporting university-based research projects to help Maryland companies develop technology-based products.

"Daddy, I saw sheeps..."

...and God was taking care of them!

This week I'm thinking back to last summer, when you could still see grass in Garrett County.

As we drove through the countryside, our little Victoria was so excited to see the "sheeps" and since she didn't see a shepherd, she assumed that God himself was taking care of them.

Life is sometimes filled with extreme dynamics. In one week, I got a call with news that a man's father had died, another family found out their unwed teenage daughter is pregnant, and someone else called with excitement as they were about to "close" on a new business.

In one minute you're rejoicing with someone over their good news and in another, you feel the weight of someone's burden.

On this roller coaster called life, here's what I know... even when you can't see the shepherd, he is still taking care of his sheep!

I don't know what your week has been like, but I encourage you to look for the shepherd, for he is there!

LIVING WITH TINNITUS

Tinnitus is the phantom ringing, buzzing, and whistling in the ear that arises from a malfunction in the ear, auditory nerve, or the brain. This noise that no one other than the person affected can hear is nearly always accompanied by hearing loss. The millions of tinnitus sufferers who annually seek medical advice for tinnitus are usually referred to an otolaryngologist and an audiologist for a hearing test. While some find that the condition can be silenced by treating an underlying condition (such as ear-wax buildup), most must find some way to live with it. Many are helped with hearing instruments that increase the sounds they want to hear and drown out those they don't with built-in sound maskers.

At AUDIBEL, we recognize that there are varied needs and uses for different kinds of hearing instruments. We carry a full range of styles of hearing aids because we want our patients to end up with the right kind of hearing aid that will enable them to hear to their best ability. And whether you're dealing with tinnitus or hearing loss, you can count on us for experienced, knowledgeable recommendations, evaluations, fittings, and follow-up support.

P.S. While "subjective tinnitus" can only be heard by the tinnitus sufferer, the rare "objective tinnitus" can be heard by the examining doctor and may be caused by a blood vessel problem, an inner ear bone condition, or a muscular issue.

Friends Of Cheat Holding Annual Drawing Contest

The Friends of the Cheat's annual drawing contest is now under way. Students in grades K–12 are invited to submit drawings that portray the group's mission statement: "To restore, preserve, and promote the outstanding natural qualities of the Cheat River Watershed."

These drawings should reflect the beauty, inhabitants, benefits, or problems that can affect the aquatic life of the watershed. The creations can also show a student's vision of what can be done to conserve the natural resources and improve the environment for future generations.

Teachers can arrange to have a representative from the FOC come to their classrooms to educate the students on acid mine drainage and what is being done to improve water quality.

There will be one winner from each of the six age categories: kindergarten, first and second grades, third and fourth grades, fifth and sixth grades, seventh and eighth grades, and ninth through twelfth grades.

All winners will receive two free passes to the 16th annual Cheat River Festival and a Clay Art by Gail watershed medallion. This year's festival is dedicated to the late FOC executive director Keith Pitzer and held on Saturday, May 1.

All entries will be displayed during the festival at the children's education and activity tent, plus the winning designs will be posted on the FOC web site gallery.

The contest rules are as follows:

•All drawings should not exceed 15 inches by 18 inches

•Drawings need to represent the FOC mission statement

•All drawings need to be received by FOC by noon on April 2

•FOC is not responsible for entries received after the deadline.

•On the back of all drawings, students are to write their names, grade levels, name of schools and contact information (phone numbers, address, and e-mail).

•FOC owns the rights to the winning drawings.

•Students may enter as many drawings as they like.

•Confirmation of entry receipt can be made by contacting FOC.

Additional information is available by visiting cheat.org or calling 304-329-3621. The FOC office is located at 119 S. Price Street, Suite 206, Kingwood.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It was François VI, duc de La Rochefoucauld and prince de Marcillac, a noted 17th-century French author and memoirist, who made the following sage observation: "Few are agreeable in conversation, because each thinks more of what he intends to say than of what others are saying, and listens no more when he himself has a chance to speak."

• Rutherford B. Hayes, the country's 19th president, was the first to install a phone in the White House.

• It was 1948 when the first vinyl musical recording was made. The piece of music so immortalized was Tchiakovsky's "Nutcracker Suite."

• Although we tend to think of the bikini as a modern fashion innovation, two-piece bathing suits can be seen in murals in the ancient city of Pompeii.

• According to Romanian tradition, a sure-fire hangover remedy is tripe soup. In Poland, drinking sour pickle juice is supposed to cure the morning-after agonies. And if you're in Germany, you should try the local remedy: pickled herring.

• The shortest street on record can be found in the small town of Wick, Scotland. Ebenezer Place is a mere 6 feet, 9 inches long.

• Do you suffer from pogonophobia? If so, you probably have some issues with Santa. Pogonophobia is a fear of beards.

• If you're like most Americans, you've stolen from your employer — though probably not much. It seems that 58 percent of your fellow citizens admit to taking office supplies for personal use.

• The Hundred Years' War actually lasted 116 years.

• Albert Einstein's final words are lost to history. He spoke his last words in his birth tongue, German, and it seems that the nurse who was attending him during his last moments spoke only English.

Q. I have an oil painting by Louis Gaspard Monte titled "Hudson Sunset." It was exhibited during the winter of 1919 at a gallery in New York City. Can you give me any information about this artist? — Virginia, Charlestown, R.I.

A. I could not find any reference to Louis Gaspard Monte in any of my art books, including Hislop's Official International Price Guide to Fine Art edited by Duncan Hislop and published by House of Collectibles. I consulted two art dealers and they, too, were not familiar with this artist or his work. Your next step might be to hire a certified appraiser. GARRETT COLLEGE NEWS BEAT

"THE ADVENTURE OF A LIFETIME" is how Garrett College professor Lyz Biser, Oakland, described her recent six-month stay in South Africa as the recipient of Rotary International Grant for University Teachers. She is pictured above enjoying the picturesque Table Mountain. The purpose of her trip was to teach at the Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University, and to study the recently passed Child Justice Act. Part of her time was spent at a The Haven, a group home for 12 orphaned or abandoned children. Pictured above right are three of the house mothers who serve at the home. She also toured Robben Island, where Nelson Mandela was imprisoned for 27 years, in addition to Pollsmoor Prison, where he was transferred to from Robben Island. Pictured below right are some of the inmates at Pollsmoor Prison.

GC Professor Completes Six-Month Educational Stay In South Africa

by Melissa Parker

Some people spend their entire lives residing in the same place, carrying out their daily routines around the same kind of people, and being content following the same daily practices. They may visit other places or vacation in different areas, but they typically are excited about returning home to their everyday lives after a week or two away.

Other individuals have the unique opportunity to experience living in another part of the world, exploring a different culture, and actually immersing themselves into the everyday lives of a different type of people. Garrett College professor Elizabeth Biser was recently given this exceptional opportunity, an experience she said was "life changing."

After applying for and being awarded a Rotary International Grant for University Teachers, Biser, who is the director of Garrett's juvenile justice program, traveled to South Africa, where she stayed for six months. The purpose of the trip was two-fold: to teach at the Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University, and to study the recently passed Child Justice Act.

For the past several years, GC officials had been working on a study abroad program to South Africa that never quite came to fruition. Through this work, however, the college made several contacts with Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University, including the head of the criminal justice department, who helped Biser make the arrangements for her expedition.

Biser's trip began July 1, 2009, when she departed Dulles Airport near Washington, D.C., for the long flight to South Africa. After a brief stop at a small airport in West Africa, she landed in Port Elizabeth, South Africa, on July 2.

When she first arrived, Biser didn't yet have a rental car. So she spent her first few weeks walking around the town and exploring the area. One of the first things she discovered was a "warm and welcoming" church, a place that would not only provide her with spiritual guidance over the next six months, but also with many connections that would help define her time in South Africa.

Soon after her arrival, Biser had her first meeting with the Rotary Club at the Port Elizabeth Country Club. There she was introduced to the provost, the dean of the law department, and the law faculty, and was given a tour of the university. She taught a module to the advanced criminal law students.

After collaborating with the head of the criminal justice department to develop her lesson plans, Biser began a 12-week lecture series on juvenile delinquency and the American juvenile justice system, which she delivered to fourth-year law students at the university.

After her lecture series ended at the university, it was time for Biser to begin work on the other portion of her trip: to study South Africa's Child Justice Act. This act, which was passed last spring by the South African Parliament, doesn't establish a separate system of juvenile justice as is the case in the U.S., but it does provide for a separate pro-cess for juveniles, who are currently under the same process as adults. The new act is scheduled to be implemented in April of this year.

Biser spent a portion of her time traveling to other parts of South Africa, such as Cape Town, Bhisho, and Johannesburg, to study the Child Justice Act. While in these other cities, she met with individuals who were either instrumental in getting the act passed or who would play a role in the act going forward, including two of its original drafters.

Biser also participated in a variety of workshops and training sessions for social workers and other individuals who would be responsible for implementing the act.

She participated in a workshop presented by the founder of the University of Western Cape and Child Justice Alliance, a meeting with the head of the department of social development for the Western Cape, a tour of the Bosasa detention facility, an anti-violence training session with Cape Flats high school teachers, a Desmond Tutu peace lecture at Cape Peninsula University of Technology, and Port Elizabeth and Cape town Magistrate Court proceedings, to name a few.

The local church Biser attended, St. John's Anglican Church in Walmer, the town in which she primarily resided, opened the door to many other opportunities. Although it was not a planned part of her trip, one of her greatest experiences was working with The Haven, a group home for 12 orphaned or abandoned children located in the Walmer Township operated by St. John's. Thanks to a lead from her church, Biser worked with the Haven children from September throughout the duration of her time in the country.

She was responsible for developing intervention programs for the children in the home, many of whom had behavior problems. She was hired to be "a fresh set of eyes" to observe the children's behavior and to offer suggestions on ways for improvement.

Biser was tasked to set up a routine and some organization for the children, which she felt she accomplished.

Biser's six months in South Africa wasn't all work and no play. She did have the opportunity to travel to different parts of the country for pleasure and to explore the natural wonders, parks, museums, and historical sites.

One of the first adventurous things she did was to go on a safari at Nguni River Lodge. Through her host in South Africa, she met another professor from Poland who joined her on the safari. The two also made a stop in Cape Town, where in addition to researching the Child Justice Act, they made sure that he fulfilled his dream of riding an ostrich. Biser said that she opted to "sit that experience out," though.

Biser also made time to travel to Karoo, an interior desert region of South Africa; tour Cape Town's District 6 Museum, Kirstenbosch Botanical Gardens, and Constantia Nek National Park; and go camping in the mountains south of Grahamstown. She also toured Robben Island, where Nelson Mandela was imprisoned for 27 years, in addition to Pollsmoor Prison, where he was transferred to from Robben Island.

While visiting Robben Island, after some unfortunate events led to her getting separated from her tour group, Biser had the unique opportunity to meet a tour guide who happened to be a former prisoner at Robben Island. After speaking to him for nearly 45 minutes, she said she was "thrilled" to get a firsthand account of what the prison was like from a man who had lived through it to tell his story.

Biser also frequented a specific stretch of beach along the Indian Ocean coastline. She would go there to climb the rocks and collect her thoughts.

She said that she by no means "roughed it" during her time in South Africa. In fact, she stayed primarily in the quaint garden cottage of her host, who was a professor at the university. During her travels to other parts of the country, she stayed in bed-and-breakfasts and hotels.

Although she wasn't forced to make any major adjustments in the form of her living arrangements (save for a few weeks of getting used to the metric system and having to find a conversion chart to post in her kitchen), there were certainly things she said she had to get used to.

The biggest adjustment was becoming more aware of her surroundings and her environment because of safety issues.

"Your safety doesn't seem to be as assured there," Biser said, "or maybe I just live under that illusion because I live in Garrett County."

One of the first things her host told her was to avoid going out alone after dark. In addition, he told her that there are some places that she should never be alone, during the day or the night.

One of the habits she had to break was putting her purse in the passenger's seat next to her while she was driving. She said that she learned fast, from stories on the news as well as stories from acquaintances, that leaving personal items like pocketbooks in plain view of pedestrians is not a good idea, since many people there have no problem with breaking windows and snatching them.

Biser heard about these incidents – carjackings, muggings, assaults – on a near daily basis. However, she never personally experienced any trouble.

"I had nothing but great experiences with the people there," Biser said. "It was just understood that you don't go to certain places, and I didn't."

While Biser admitted that these safety concerns are probably not unique to South Africa, she noted that it was a bit shocking to go from Garrett County to that extreme environment.

Her church was instrumental in her work in the Walmer Township. In fact, they made it known early on that she was with them, that she was a part of their group. She said that people seemed to go out of their way to be kind to her. The DISCOUNT VOUCHERS TO BE OFFERED – "Hundreds of kittens come into our local shelter every year, and though they are cute, there aren't enough homes for all of them," said Garrett County Humane Society president Lisa Baker. To help alleviate that situation, the GCHS is offering spay/neuter discount vouchers on Spay Day, Feb. 23. See story.

Humane Society To Take Part In Spay Day Event

The 16th annual Spay Day takes place on Feb. 23, with over 500 events/activities taking place across the United States, including Garrett County. During the first 15 years of this event, 1,457,200 animals were spayed or neutered nationwide, according to organizers.

"This in turn prevented millions of unwanted animals from being born and eventually euthanized," said Lisa Baker, Garrett County Humane Society president.

Sponsored by the Humane Society of the United States, the objective of Spay Day is to inspire people to have their pets spayed or neutered. Additional objectives include raising money to help those who need financial assistance and informing people of the importance of having their pets altered to reduce the numbers euthanized in shelters.

"This year there is not a specific theme, but the campaign literature clearly states, 'More than 4 million pets are put down in U.S. shelters each year; spay or neuter your pet,'" Baker said.

As in past years, the Garrett County Humane Society will offer discount vouchers to county residents who want to have their pets spayed or neutered. There will be 100 $50 vouchers available on a first-come, first-served basis. Residents may come to the Garrett County Animal Shelter on Feb. 23 between 9:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. to pick up a voucher.

These vouchers can only be used at the three local veterinary hospitals: Pineview, Countryside, or Casselman.

"We do not operate the Garrett County Animal Shelter, but since we do not have an office the shelter lets us use the lobby to distribute these vouchers every year," Baker said. "We all try and work together to reduce the numbers of animals that are unwanted and end up in our county shelter."

She noted that last year the GC Humane Society distributed almost 100 vouchers in a matter of hours, which is a good sign people are trying to help.

Both PAWS and HART offer discounts for those who are in the low-income range. Interested persons are asked to contact those groups directly to see if they qualify for spay/neuter assistance.

Another Spay Day event is the online Pet Photo Contest, where owners can enter their pet's picture then ask friends to vote for them. Each vote costs $1. There is also a free popular pet photo vote as well.

The contest runs until March 4. More information is available by logging onto hsus.org/spayday and clicking "Photo Contest."

"Last year a local doctor entered her dog Pokey, who placed in the top 10 and won over $3,000 for the GC Humane Society," Baker said.

Truck Hits SUV While Plowing Business Lot

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to a two-vehicle accident early Tuesday morning on Rt. 219, near the Dental Health Group.

Investigation revealed that John Orendorf, 45, Accident, had been plowing snow from the parking lot of the business, when he backed out onto Rt. 219, colliding with a southbound vehicle. Orendorf's 2001 Dodge truck hit a 2004 Chevrolet SUV driven by Tabitha Upton, 28, McHenry. He was cited for failing to stop to yield right of way to oncoming traffic.

Two Arrests Stem From District Court Warrants

Garrett County sheriff's deputies made two arrests on the strength of District Court warrants. The following cases are unrelated.

HART To Offer Feline Neuters Next Tuesday

To promote Spay/Neuter Day in Garrett County, the HART Spay/Neuter Clinic will hold a "Five for Felines" day next Tuesday, Feb 23. Pet owners who qualify under the clinic's low-income/financial guidelines can have their male cats neutered on that day, as long as there are appointments available.

"Sorry, no female cats can be spayed on that day," noted a spokesperson.

Spay Day, formerly Spay Day USA, takes place each year on the last Tuesday of February. Created by the Doris Day Animal League (DDAL) in 1995, Spay Day became a program of the Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) and Humane Society International when DDAL combined operations with the HSUS in 2006.

During Spay Day, veterinarians and their staff, animal welfare professionals, business owners, and concerned citizens join forces across the country to spay or neuter as many animals as possible, and to promote spay/neuter as the most effective and humane means of decreasing the number of homeless animals euthanized in shelters.

According to the spokesperson, during Spay Day's first 15 years, participants have spayed or neutered more than 1,470,000 animals, preventing many more millions of wanted puppies and kittens from being born, and saving millions of taxpayers' dollars. This year, HART will be part of the national effort through its Spay/Neuter Clinic.

Since HART for Animals is trying to help people who cannot afford to have their pet spayed or neutered, the clinic qualifies clients based on whether they receive other forms of assistance or meet the income guidelines of $28,000 per family or $15,000 per individual.

Appointments will be taken in the order in which the calls are received until the surgery day schedule is full. Male cats cannot be older than 7 years and must be in good health.

To make an appointment, persons may call 301-387-7729 during the clinic's regular working hours, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The HART Clinic is located at 24457 Garrett Highway in the McHenry Plaza.

HART for Animals Inc. is a 501(c) (3) non-profit organization. For additional information on its programs and the Spay/Neuter Clinic, one may visit hartforanimals.org or call 301-387-SPAY (7729).

The menu will include roast beef, mashed potatoes, noodles, gravy, green beans, coleslaw, homemade bread, assorted cake, and assorted beverages.

The cost will be $8 for adults and $4 for children. Take-out will be available as well.

The public is welcome to attend, and tickets will be sold at the door.

Uninsured Driver Cited After Hitting Animal In Roadway

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to a single-vehicle accident with no injuries last Friday. Driver Destiny Shantel Cook had reportedly been traveling east on Hutton Road, when her vehicle struck an animal in the roadway. Cook was cited for driving an uninsured vehicle.

Homeowners Warned By DLLR Of Unlicensed Contractors

Department of Labor, Licensing and Regulation (DLLR) secretary Alexander M. Sanchez reminds homeowners who may have sustained roof or other structural damage from heavy snowfalls to check a contractor's licensing status and avoid being scammed by unlicensed contractors operating illegally.

"Scam artists abound in the home improvement industry, and too often they seek to prey upon unsuspecting homeowners who are desperate to repair damage after storms," Sanchez said. "Homeowners should be wary of unlicensed contractors, particularly those who want large upfront payments or offer amazingly low prices."

Homeowners who use Maryland Home Improvement Commission (MHIC) licensed contractors are protected by the Home Improvement Law and are eligible for coverage by the Home Improvement Guaranty Fund. The Guaranty Fund provides homeowners with up to $20,000 dollars for losses caused by poor or incomplete work by MHIC licensed contractors. However, if a homeowner hires an unlicensed contractor, they are not eligible for payment from the guaranty fund, and their only recourse is through the courts.

The Maryland Insurance Administration (MIA) advises homeowners to make only the temporary repairs necessary to prevent further damage, such as covering a leaking roof with waterproof material, until permanent repairs are authorized by their insurance company. The MIA cautions that unauthorized repairs may not be reimbursed.

"We encounter far too many homeowners who have been the victims of unscrupulous individuals who take a homeowner's money and walk away without ever completing the work for which they've been paid," said Stanley Botts, commissioner of Occupational and Professional Licensing, a division of DLLR. "Homeowners can protect themselves easily by hiring a licensed contractor."

Each year, MHIC investigates approximately 3,000 complaints against licensed and unlicensed contractors. In the last fiscal year, MHIC helped recover close to $1.5 million for homeowners who were cheated by unlicensed contractors. Acting as a contractor, subcontractor, or selling a home improvement without a license is a misdemeanor and upon conviction, is subject to a fine up to $1,000, imprisonment up to 30 days, or both. Each subsequent conviction is subject to a fine up to $5,000, imprisonment up to 2 years, or both.

Consumers can check a contractor's license status and access other information and services from Maryland Home Improvement Commission by calling 888-218-5925. Licensing information may be found online by visiting http://-www.dllr.maryland.gov/-license/mhic/ and then clicking on "License Search."

For more information on what to do if one's home has sustained storm-related damage, persons should visit www.mdinsurance.-state.md.us.

LITTLE STEPS UP TO THE LEAP

As you've already read here, conditions are ripe to become a homeowner, and it's time to determine if you're ready to make the leap. While the price of the home is the largest factor, don't forget about loan fees and closing costs, which add to your total financed amount.

Since banks are stricter in their lending, Step One is to polish up your credit report. A higher score gives you more power when it comes to negotiating terms and interest rates. Similarly, a larger down payment will positively affect your mortgage terms and reduce the amount you have to finance. If you can't manage 20% down, you will likely have to pay a monthly mortgage insurance premium.

Upon preapproval from a lender, you'll know how much loan you qualify for, and how much is required for the down payment. It's best to secure preapproval before you begin looking at homes, especially since sellers will see your offer as a solid one worthy of consideration.

In addition to newer fees being assessed on loans to less than stellar applicants, there are standard closing costs associated with the purchase, including appraisals, legal fees, credit reports and more. All are included up front on your settlement statement and some may be negotiable.

Even though lenders might be more restrictive tax breaks and other government incentives make today the best time to buy, Contact a REALTOR® today to get the ball rolling and find out how much home you can afford.

If you are thinking of buying or selling a home but feel "out of touch" with real estate, give me a call today.

Presidents' Day is a time to remember the leaders of our country and the admirable qualities each exhibited in his service to our nation.

George Washington, our first President, often considered the father of our nation, was revered for his honesty, simply stating, "I cannot tell a lie." Certainly, this legacy is a fundamental basis for all effective relationships in our world. Abraham Lincoln, ranked among the greatest Presidents, was known as "Honest Abe". He successfully led this country through its first and only internal war, preserving the Union and ending slavery. He set a great example of character by his actions.

The character and actions of these Presidents make our country what it is today. Won't you take a few moments to thank God for them and for all of our Presidents' contributions to our nation as we celebrate Presidents' Day?

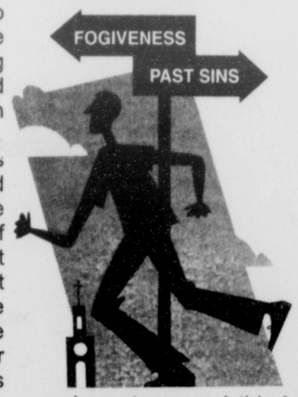
Regrets, Remorse & Missed Opportunities



It is impossible to go through life without making mistakes and missing out on certain opportunities and these mistakes and missed opportunities are often the source of considerable regret or remorse. The fact that we often have considerable difficulty getting over some past failing is evidence that we are moral creatures and this is good in many ways. Mistakes have a way of teaching us and keeping us from repeating our mistakes. But once we have learned the lesson from our failings, it is time to move on. The problem with dwelling on past sins or missed opportunities is that it keeps us mired in the unchangeable past rather than moving forward into a future that we can actually do something about. If we have wronged someone in the past and we haven't told them we are sorry, we should do so and then move on with our life. We may not be able to forget this sin of our past, but we should be able to forgive ourselves and move on. Focus on the future and consider how we might live our lives in such a way that we won't repeat these mistakes, or miss out on future opportunities.

As a dog returns to his own vomit, so a fool repeats his folly.

Medications May Help Prevent Fainting

Vasovagal syncope, a common cause of fainting, is characterized by reduced blood flow to the brain, which leads to a temporary loss of consciousness and muscle tone. Blood vessel dilation and a slowed heart rate occur in response to triggers in susceptible persons. These may include hunger, extreme fatigue, severe pain, a crowded environment, or a stressful situation. Symptoms that may occur before an episode include dizziness, sweating, nausea, and blurred vision. Some persons may not experience any warning symptoms.

Persons who have experienced fainting episodes from large crowds or stressful situations should avoid such triggers whenever possible to prevent fainting. A pacemaker also may be helpful for someone experiencing vasovagal syncope, to regulate the heart beat. For persons who experience frequent episodes that are not relieved through preventive measures, prescription medications may help. Beta blockers, such as metoprolol and atenolol, work by decreasing the contraction of the heart muscle. Selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors, such as paroxetine and sertraline, may prevent fainting episodes. Transdermal scopolamine is an anticholinergic medication that may also prevent fainting.

Put Your Tax Refund to Work

It's tax refund season again. This year, if you're expecting a check from Uncle Sam, why not put it to work to help you meet your financial goals?

For 2008, the average tax refund was more than $2,700, according to the IRS. The size of your refund, or whether you will get one at all, depends on your individual circumstances. But if you are going to get a refund, plan ahead for what you'll do with it. Here are a few possibilities:

• Pay down some debts. If you're carrying a higher debt load than usual, you may want to use some of your refund to pay down your debts. The lower your debt payments, the better your cash flow and the more money you'll have to invest in the future.

• Build an emergency fund. If you don't already have an emergency fund containing six to 12 months worth of living expenses, you could use your refund to start one. Without such a fund, you may find yourself constantly dipping into your long-term investments to pay for unexpected costs, such as a new furnace or an expensive car repair. Keep your emergency fund in a liquid account — one that you don't draw on for your day-to-day expenses.

• Help fund your IRA. In 2010, you can put up to $5,000 into your IRA. Consequently, if you received a $2,700 refund, you'd have more than half of what you needed to fully fund your IRA for the year. (And if you're 50 or older, you can contribute up to $6,000 per year.)

You might not think $2,700 would make much of a difference in the long run. But by investing your refund and giving it years of growth potential, you could end up with a sizable amount. Consider the following:

• If you put $2,700 into your IRA and earned, on average, 7% a year for 30 years, you'd end up with about $20,000, even if you never invested another dime.

• If you put $2,700 every year into that same IRA, again earning an average 7% annual return, you'd end up with more than $270,00 after 30 years. (These examples are hypothetical illustrations and do not represent any currently available investments.)

If you had invested in a traditional IRA, you would eventually have to pay taxes on your earnings, typically when you made withdraws at retirement. And if you qualified for a Roth IRA, you'd never have to pay taxes on your earnings, as long as you owned your account for at least five years and didn't start taking withdraws until you were at least age 59½.

• Contribute to a Section 529 plan. If you have children or grandchildren, you may want to establish Section 529 plans to help them pay for the college. You can contribute virtually any amount, and your contributions may be tax-deductible if you are participating in your own state's plan. Plus, your earnings grow tax free, provided the money is used for higher education expenses. (Withdraws used for expenses other than qualified education expenses may be subject to federal, state and penalty taxes.) Keep in mind, though, that a Section 529 plan could affect a beneficiary's ability to qualify for financial aid.

You may be tempted to spend your tax refund on things you want today — but, with a little planning, you can use it for things you may need tomorrow.

Get ready for more 'Trauma,' via NBC

Q: I was wondering if the show "Trauma" is still on. I really looked forward to watching it, and I have not seen it listed lately. –Peggy Kelley, Columbus, Ohio

A: It'll be back, and soon. Though NBC had removed the show from its lineup late last year, "Trauma" and its cast members – including "Damages" alumna Anastasia Griffith – stayed in production, and it will resume telecasts of new episodes March 8. Frankly, it probably was helped by the cancellation of "The Jay Leno Show," which opened up five prime-time hours that NBC needed to fill sooner than anticipated.

Q: My favorite movie, "Finnegan Begin Again," was released on VHS but is no longer available for sale – and my copy is worn out. It was made by HBO and starred Mary Tyler Moore, Robert Preston and Sam Waterston. Are there plans to release it again? –Christine Dupoint, Blairsville, Ga.

A: Not that we know of, but the good news is that some copies of the original video release still are available. Type the movie's title and "VHS" into an Internet search engine, then see what comes up.

Q: I love "Eastwick," but it hasn't been listed for several weeks. Is it coming back? –Jean Scudero, Port St. Lucie, Fla.

A: Evidently not. A couple of episodes still exist that ABC didn't air, but unless the network decides to burn those off after the season ends – as it did last summer with "Pushing Daisies," "Eli Stone" and "Dirty Sexy Money" – you've likely seen the last of the witches of "Eastwick."

Q: I recently started to now I am addicted. I noticed the fourth season on sale, but no others. Are the previous shows also on DVD? –Carol Palmer, Englewood, Colo.

A: Yes, the preceding three seasons of the Wednesday CBS show – the first two of which featured original cast member Mandy Patinkin – also have been released by Paramount Home Entertainment.

Q: Quite a few years ago, I saw a movie on television called "Zardoz." It was about an advanced culture that was discovered by an outsider, who I think was played by Sean Connery. I have never heard of it since. Was I dreaming? –Dan Silver, Seattle

A: You weren't. Admittedly, the Connery-starring 1974 fantasy – written and directed by John Boorman ("Deliverance") – doesn't get played on nonpremium channels very often, but over the past year, it has made the rounds on the Cinemax set of stations. It's also available on both DVD and VHS tape.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Garrett County Planning Commission will conduct a hearing concerning proposed revisions to three principal land development ordinances currently implemented by the County. The proposed revisions would affect the following ordinances:

1) Deep Creek Watershed Zoning Ordinance;
2) Garrett County Subdivision Ordinance;
3) Garrett County Sensitive Areas Ordinance

The Date and Time of the Hearing is:
Saturday, March 6, 2010, at 10:00 a.m.

If the above hearing is cancelled due to inclement weather the alternative hearing date is March 11, 2010, at 7:00 p.m.

The Location of the Hearing is:
Garrett College Auditorium

All interested citizens are cordially invited to attend.

Initial preliminary drafts of these three ordinances were released for public review on September 29, 2009, by the Department of Planning and Land Development. The Planning Commission sponsored a public information meeting on the initial draft on October 14, 2009. The Planning Commission has accepted citizen comments submitted at the public meeting and in writing or by e-mail since the public meeting.

Based on the comments received, the Planning Commission has prepared Revised Draft Ordinances that incorporate major changes to the September 29 drafts regarding subdivision policies in the AR (Agricultural Resource) and RR (Rural Resource) land classifications and zoning districts. The Revised Draft Ordinances:

- Allow subdivisions using either a non-cluster option or a cluster option.
- Remove the provisions requiring creation of a resource parcel when subdivision occurs.
- Allow subdivision with a 3-acre minimum lot size.
- Allow subdivision with a one-acre minimum lot size for transfer to children or grandchildren of the lot owner; for subdivision of a parcel less than 20 acres in area; or by waiver, for subdivision of parcels larger than 20 acres if they are primarily surrounded by subdivided lots.
- Provide incentives to promote cluster subdivision as a preferred option.

The Revised Draft of the Deep Creek Watershed Zoning Ordinance also reduces the area of the proposed Scenic Protection Overlay District to include only those areas identified as "Crestline Sub-district" on the initial draft zoning map. Within the Crestline areas, the Revised Draft has eliminated requirements for design, location and screening of buildings. Requirements for preserving and/or planting trees are retained for the sides and rear of structures within the Crestline areas.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the DCW Zoning Ordinance:

1) New Zoning Districts are proposed: Agricultural Resource (AR), Rural Resource (RR) and Lake Residential–2 (LR-2) are new districts intended to preserve rural character and conserve natural resources by limiting residential development to a relatively low average density. Standards for subdivisions in the AR and RR districts are proposed. The Rural Development (RD) district is proposed to be eliminated.
2) A Scenic Protection Overlay District is proposed for those areas identified as Crestlines on the proposed zoning map. This provision is intended to preserve the scenic views of the ridge tops and crest lines surrounding Deep Creek Lake. Requirements for retaining and planting trees on the sides and rear of structures when viewed from the lake and shoreline are proposed.
3) Architectural Standards for non-residential structures in the TC, TR and GC zoning districts for metal buildings are proposed.
4) Provisions, including set-backs, for domestic, agricultural and industrial wind energy devices are proposed.
5) New set-backs for drilling for natural gas are proposed.
6) New provisions for non-conforming structures and grandfathered non-conforming lots are proposed.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the Garrett County Subdivision Ordinance:

1) The Agricultural Resource (AR) and Rural Resource (RR) land classifications are proposed to be expanded and new standards for subdivisions in these areas are proposed.
2) A provision that would allow the Planning Commission to require a Traffic Impact Study for major subdivisions is proposed.
3) A provision to retain trees and other vegetative cover for new subdivisions abutting Scenic Byways is proposed.
4) Provisions to delineate the boundaries of any wetlands or Source Water Protection Areas on subdivision plans are proposed.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the Garrett County Sensitive Areas Ordinance:

1) Provisions to protect Source Water Protection Areas are proposed.
2) A provision to limit the exemption from the steep slope requirements to lots of record that are less than four acres is proposed.
3) A provision to prevent construction of buildings on man-made slopes exceeding 30% grade is proposed.
4) A provision to use the Maryland Sensitive Species Project Review Areas map as the indicator for referring applicants to DNR is proposed.

The Revised Draft Ordinances are formatted such that readers will be able to easily compare them with the September 29 drafts. All three Revised Draft Ordinances and related maps are available for public review on the County's website at http://www.garrettcounty.org by clicking on Draft Revisions to Ordinances under News. The revised drafts are also available at the Department of Planning and Land Development office, all branch locations of the Ruth Enlow Libraries and in the main offices of the Crellin, Bloomington, Swan Meadow, Yough Glades and Route 40 public schools.

If the Noteholder or its affiliate is the purchaser of the Property and the Personal Property at the sale, the amount bid at the sale by the Noteholder or its affiliate shall be a credit against the indebtedness secured by the Deed of Trust.

The Property and the Personal Property will be sold and conveyed subject to all encumbrances, rights, reservations, covenants, conditions, restrictions, rights of redemption, rights of entry, easements, agreements of record, notifications and statutory liens, if any, having priority over the Deed of Trust as they may lawfully affect the Property and the Personal Property and subject to all applicable building and zoning code violations, subject to all environmental problems and violations which may exist on or with respect to the Property, and subject to all matters that an accurate survey or physical inspection of the Property might disclose. The Property and the Personal Property will be sold subject to the right of redemption of the United States of America, if such right exists.

The Property is sold specifically subject to the operation and effect of (i) the Declaration of Condominium of Alpine Village Condominium dated December 31, 2002 and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on January 8, 2003 at Liber No. 941, page 249, (ii) Declaration of Reciprocal Easements, Covenants and Restrictions dated December 31, 2002 and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on January 8, 2003 at Liber No. 941, page 294, and (iii) the Amended and Restated Declaration of Condominium of Alpine Village Condominium recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on March 15, 2007 at Liber No. 1294, page 136, as may be amended from time to time.

The Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder reserve the right: (1) to accept or reject any or all bids, (2) to modify or waive the requirements for bidder's deposits and terms of sale and/or settlement; (3) to approve the creditworthiness of any bidder or final purchaser; (4) to withdraw the Property and/or Personal Property from the sale prior to acceptance of the final bid(s); (5) to keep the bidding open for any length of time and (6) to cancel or postpone the sale.

The Property and the Personal Property are sold and conveyed in "AS IS, WHERE IS" condition. Neither the Substitute Trustees, the Noteholder nor any other party make any warranty or representation, either express or implied, of any kind or nature regarding the Property or the Personal Property, including, without limitation, the description, use, physical condition, subdivision, zoning, environmental condition, compliance with applicable laws, ordinances, or regulations, structural integrity, physical condition, condition of the soil, workmanship, habitability, merchantability, or fitness for a particular purpose. The purchaser shall assume the risk of loss for the Property and the Personal Property immediately after the sale.

If the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder are unable to convey the Property and/or the Personal Property as described above, by reason of any defect in the title or otherwise, the sole remedy of the purchaser at law or in equity shall be limited to the refund of the aforementioned deposit. Upon refund of the deposit to the purchaser, the sale shall be void and of no effect, and the purchaser shall have no further claims against the Substitute Trustees or the Noteholder. The conveyance of the Property by the Substitute Trustees to the Purchaser at settlement shall be by deed without covenant or warranty of any kind whatsoever.

Chamber's Brown Bag Luncheon Has Been Rescheduled

The first Brown Bag Lunch Series meeting that was to be held last Friday has been scheduled for this Friday, Feb. 19, from noon until 1 p.m. in the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce conference room. The topic will be How to Exhibit Your Business Effectively.

"Bring your lunch and learn how to wow 'em at the next Business After Hours or any trade show by exhibiting your business using simple yet effective techniques featured during this lunch hour presentation by Beverley Williams," said a chamber spokesperson.

She added that the lunch will help participants make their exhibits more memorable, exciting, and approachable without spending a fortune.

Williams is the small-business counselor for Garrett County with more than 25 years' experience in marketing her own and other businesses at trade shows and exhibitions around the country.

To register for the luncheon, persons are asked to contact Charlotte at the chamber by today, Thursday, Feb. 18, at 301-387-4386, ext. 22, or charlotte@garrettchamber.com.

Additional information about the chamber is available at garrettchamber.com or by calling 301-387-4386.

KITZMILLER BIGGEST LOSER PARTICIPANTS DROP 317 POUNDS – A total of 42 residents from the Kitzmiller area recently participated in the Biggest Loser Challenge, logging nearly 4,000 miles and dropping 317 pounds. This 12-week program tracked exercise and weight loss for 14 teams composed of three members each. The first-place team members called themselves the Over the Hill Gang and were composed of March Lucas, Roger K. Welch, and Lyndol Shillingbury (pictured left to right). Each member received $75 as a reward for their combined totals of 50.5 pounds lost and 755 miles walked. The Old Hens team – Shirley Anderson, Helen Crouse, and Thelma Lace – came in second and received $25 each. Taking third place was the JAGS team made up of Jeannie Tichinel, Betty Carr, and Angie Guthrie, who each received a Biggest Loser cookbook. The program was sponsored by the Kitzmiller Empowerment Group and the Garrett County Health Department.

Mood Disorder Support Group To Begin Mtgs.

People living with depression, bipolar disorder, or schizoaffective disorder will soon have a new place to find hope, help, and support. Beginning March 15, the western Maryland chapter of the Depression and Bipolar Support Alliance (DBSA) will host regular, confidential, peer-led, self-help support group meetings on the first and third Mondays of each month from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Grantsville library.

DSBA western Maryland groups are open to anyone who is diagnosed with a mood disorder or has a family member who is diagnosed with a mood disorder.

"The DSBA groups are not run by professionals, but instead offer peer-to-peer support, which is an important component of recovery from mental illness for many people," said spokesperson. "We do, however, have a professional advisor.

DSBA is a patient directed organization focusing on the most prevalent of mental illnesses – depression and bipolar disorder. The organization has more than 400 independent local chapters that operate more than 1,000 self-help support groups throughout the United States.

Dr. F. Michael Gloth, a noted author and professor, will be among the guest speakers at the Garrett County Health Fair scheduled for Saturday, April 17, at Wisp Resort in McHenry.

An expert in aging and nutrition, the doctor will speak about his new book, Fit at Fifty and Beyond.

Gloth is currently the corporate medical director for Mid-Atlantic Health Care, located in Finksburg. He is an associate professor of medicine in the Division of Geriatric Medicine and Gerontology at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. Gloth also holds dual appointments as an adjunct associate professor of medicine and of epidemiology and preventive medicine at the University of Maryland.

The doctor will sign copies of his book, which will be available for purchase following his presentation.

The Health Fair will offer a variety of guest speakers, free health screenings, and informational displays. For more information, persons may call 301-533-4178.

Body Of Baltimore Woman Found In Burned Residence

Members of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and State Fire Marshal's Office, and the Garrett County medical examiner investigated a fire at a Grantsville residence that resulted in the death of a Baltimore woman.

The body of Judith Campbell, 52, was found inside the home on Bear Hill Road. Authorities were called to the scene last Saturday at approximately 1:30 p.m. after a friend of the Campbell family went to the house and found there had been a fire inside. The caller described it as a room and contents fire.

Campbell is suspected to have died from smoke inhalation. The exact cause of the fire and manner of death are still under investigation by authorities.

STARK BEAUTY – Yes, surely everyone is growing weary of the relentless winter weather this season, but there is no denying that there is exquisite splendor to be found in it all. This striking photograph was taken by Russ Subock at Meadow Lakes, along Herrington Manor Road. Ice and snow have become seemingly permanent fixtures in our lives here in the mountains. The forecast is bleak, with much more snow to come today and tomorrow. But someday spring will arrive, and all who have lived through this winter will appreciate it more than ever. In the meantime, scenes such as this afford us at least some artistic respite.

Local Residents Named To AFF Women's Group

Two Garrett County residents are among 11 "First to Commit" members of the Women's Group of the American Forest Foundation (AFF).

Dorothy Tuel of Sewickley Spa and Karen Meyers of the Wisp Resort will be guests at a special luncheon at the Omni William Penn Hotel in Pittsburgh on March 19.

According to a spokesperson for the AFF, the 11 "First to Commit" women are influential women in the mid-Atlantic region.

The keynote speaker at the luncheon will be Rose Lane Leavell, a leading woman in the responsible tactics of tree farming, conservationist, and wife of the keyboardist of the Rolling Stones. She will share stories about connecting children with nature and con-

Maryland State Board Of Ed. Willing To Waive Up To Five Days Of School

The Maryland State Board of Education yesterday set forth a limited waiver process for Maryland school system calendars affected by the historic snow storms of this winter.

School systems may request a waiver of up to five days from the required 180-day instructional calendar because of the inclement weather that affected the State during storms in December and February. The state board has authorized the state superintendent to approve individual requests from local system superintendents to make adjustments in the school calendar.

State law requires that schools be open for a minimum of 180 instructional days. The law also grants the state board authority to make adjustments to the school year if normal school attendance is prevented by severe weather. Under the waiver provision, systems must demonstrate that they have made sufficient effort in providing instruction through calendar planning and modifications.

"We believe that 180 instructional days is a bare minimum in a competitive world where some nations keep students in school for 220 days or more," said state superintendent of schools Nancy S. Grasmick. "At the same time, we recognize that severe weather conditions this year have been unprecedented, and the state board believes that some flexibility must be granted."

Dunkers Prepare For A Chill At 12th Annual Deep Creek Dunk

Plans have been finalized by the Maryland State Police and Natural Resources Police for Saturday's 12th annual Deep Creek Dunk and Friday night's DunkFest celebration.

The annual charity fundraiser for Special Olympics Maryland is set for Saturday, Feb. 27, and as many as 1,000 dunkers are expected to take part in the event. Participants come from all across the region, making Deep Creek Lake a popular weekend destination for several hundred people from Baltimore and the surrounding areas during the weekend's festivities.

Last year's 11th annual MSP/NRP Deep Creek Dunk raised $162,000 with the help of just under 800 dunkers, with all proceeds benefiting Special Olympics Maryland and its year-round sports training and competition programs for individuals with intellectual disabilities. A significant portion of the funds raised support the 47 Garrett County athletes who train and compete throughout the year.

According to a spokesperson, the Dunk underwrites the entire annual budget for SOMD Garrett County, which includes transportation, uniforms, facilities fees, equipment, and meals.

"We are proud to partner with so many local businesses and with the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce to put on the Deep Creek Dunk, and have tried to market and position the event as just one small part of a weekend destination for

Accidental Fire Destroys House In Bloomington

Combustible material located too close to a portable heater has been ruled the cause of an accidental fire that destroyed a one-story wood-frame house in Bloomington late Sunday evening.

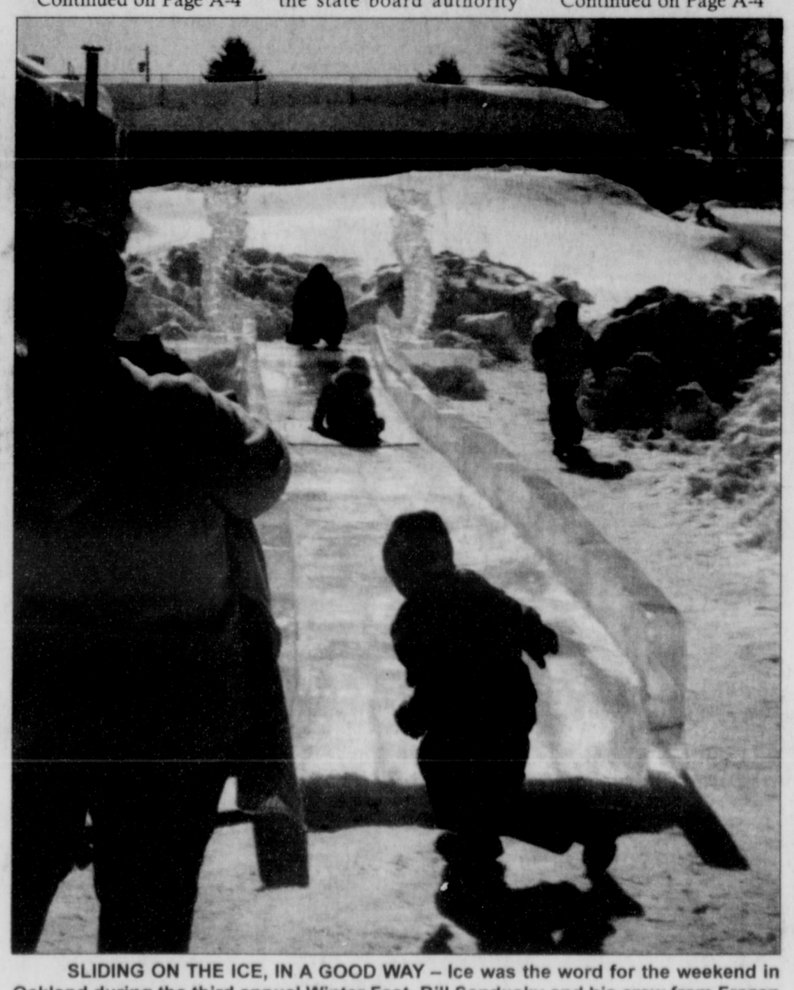
Volunteers from the Bloomington, Westernport, Piedmont, Barton, and McCoole fire departments were summoned to the residence of Julie and Chad Wilt and their five children, 42 Virginia Avenue, at 11:32 p.m. after a neighbor reported the fire.

Some 30 firefighters responded, and it took about 20 minutes to bring the blaze under control.

According to a report from the Office of the Maryland State Fire Marshal, the fire originated in the master bedroom. The loss was estimated to be $60,000 to the structure and another $15,000 in contents.

The family was displaced by the fire and is receiving assistance from the American Red Cross.

Also responding was the Garrett County air cascade unit and Tri-Towns Ambulance. There were no injuries reported.



SLIDING ON THE ICE, IN A GOOD WAY – Ice was the word for the weekend in Oakland during the third annual Winter Fest. Bill Sandusky and his crew from Frozen Assets decorated the town with a wide variety of ice sculptures for the weekend of events, and more than 4,000 residents and guests, beset with cabin fever, came out over the sunny weekend to see the ice, compete in snowman building and snowmobile competitions, and take part in the many activities available. One of those activities is pictured above, the ice slide, which was located along Alder Street and decorated at the top with two ornate dragons. Children and their parents, too, took to the slide, slipping along on pieces of cardboard. More photographs, competition results, and other coverage of the Winter Fest will be published in next week's issue. Photo by John McEwen.

Garrett County To Apply For Google Project

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners announced Tuesday that it will submit an application to partner with Google to build an ultra high speed fiber-to-the-home broadband network in Garrett County.

"We are very excited about the possibility of bringing this level of technical high speed Internet connectivity to various sectors of the county," said commission chairman Ernie Gregg. "The county departments of Economic Development and Information Technology should be commended for their efforts to compile and complete this application."

Google issued a nationwide request for information on Feb. 10, soliciting proposals from communities across the United States to design, build, and test the 1 billion bits per second (1 giga bps) network, and offer service to at least 50,000 and potentially 500,000 people in selected communities.

Google's goals are to develop "next generation" applications in education, medicine, social networking, as well as areas not even imagined yet. In addition, Google wants to test new ways to build and deploy fiber networks, and share knowledge gained with the world.

Finally, Google will operate the network as "open access," giving users the choice of multiple service-providers, in an open, non-discriminatory, and transparent environment.

Applications must be submitted online at the Google Fiber for Communities web site, google.com/appserve/fiberrfi. Google encourages residents of communities submitting an application to support their application through the web site, using the "Nominate Your Community" button

Garrett Co. Receives Record Snowfall; DNR Tries To Help Towns Remove It

"We're not out of the woods yet," Director Brad Frantz, Garrett County Department of Public Safety and Emergency Management, told the county commissioners on Tuesday about battling winter weather.

The county's average snowfall is 116 inches, and the old record for one season, 2002-2003, was about 233 inches. More than 235 inches have fallen on the county so far this winter, much of which arrived this month. And more is expected, Frantz noted.

"There is another round of potentially significant snowfall on the horizon," he said about this week's bout with the white stuff.

He stressed, however, that accumulations probably will not be as much as in past weeks, about 6 inches each day.

The director also noted that a rumor circulating throughout the county about a massive snowstorm headed this way was based entirely on a hoax. Someone claiming to be with the National Weather Service recently sent out e-mails stating the area would receive about 50 inches of snow this week. The NWS never issued such a statement.

Frantz commended his staff, police officers, road crews, and volunteer fire and rescue squads for their efforts during this month's storms.

"We've had some very difficult calls to make in the last couple of weeks," Frantz said about dealing with the weather.

The governor lifted his state of emergency declaration on Tuesday. The commissioners also lifted the

DNR Property Renamed Gary Yoder Fish Management Area

Gov. Martin O'Malley and the Board of Public Works (BPW) in Annapolis yesterday honored three Marylanders who devoted their lives to conservation and stewardship. One of those was the late Gary Allen Yoder, a longtime Department of Natural Resources employee and Garrett County resident.

At the request of the governor, the board acted to approve naming of DNR properties in honor Yoder, folk-singer and educator Tom Wisner, and Park Ranger Julie Schweikert.

"Today we honor three individuals who dedicated their lives to helping citizens and visitors better understand and appreciate the beauty and importance of our natural resources," said O'Malley at a meeting attended by family members, friends and colleagues of the honorees. "Now their work will live on □ not only in the hearts and minds of all they touched □ but also through the land and education programs they loved."

The Carrie Dixon property in Garrett County will be named the Gary A. Yoder Fish Management Area in honor of the 30-year DNR employee, who was instrumental in efforts to restore and promote fishing opportunities in the region.

Garrett County Fair Is Repeat Award Winner

The Garrett County Fair was recently named the winner of the Overall Communications Award at the annual meeting of the Maryland Association of Agricultural Fairs and Shows. This is the second consecutive year that the Garrett County Fair has received this award.

MAAFS member organizations can submit entries in 18 categories of the communication competition, which judges the various methods that fairs use to promote their events, including printed materials, window displays, merchandise, and web pages.

Entries are first evaluated in groupings determined by the annual attendance at the event. The Garrett County Fair competes in the 50,000 and under division.

The Overall Communications Award then goes to the fair obtaining the highest overall score from among all entries in competition.

"There are 23 MAAFS member organizations that participated in this year's competition," said Dr. Debra Friend, president of the Garrett County Fair board. "I think everyone was pretty surprised in 2008 when Garrett County's Fair was named the overall winner for the first time.

"This year, you could see where other organizations had really stepped up the quality of their entries in response to our win last year. But we managed to pull it off again. We were able to repeat as winners again this year because of all the time and hard work that volunteers invested in getting the entries ready for presentation at the convention. We are especially proud that the majority of our entries were designed and produced in cooperation with local vendors like The Republican newspaper and Snazzi Stitches in McHenry."

Man Charged With Destruction Of Property

A local man was arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies last Saturday after they responded to a Seneca Avenue residence in Loch Lynn.

A report of a disorderly subject was called in to GCSO, and through investigation it was determined that Jeromy Shawn Baker had committed destruction of property. He was subsequently arrested and charged with such. He was taken into custody to await a bond hearing.

Local Nurse To Assist In Haiti Next Month

Swanton resident Cindy Mankamyer, a registered nurse employed by the Garrett County Health Department, will travel to Haiti to volunteer her services to the earthquake victims in and around the Port au Prince area. She will be joining a team comprising other nurses and physicians being deployed on March 18 by Heart to Heart International.

Heart to Heart International, founded in 1992 by Dr. Gary Morsch, is a nonprofit humanitarian assistance organization that offers worldwide crisis response utilizing medical volunteers and global partnerships. The organization is based in Olathe, Kan., and was recently reported as "one of the most efficient, effective charities in America" by Forbes magazine.

The volunteers who go on these rescue missions do pay their own costs, thus helping to make the organization successful in reaching many people around the world.

"The medical teams over there right now need relief," Mankamyer said, "Reports are that doctors and nurses are seeing 100 or more patients per day in austere conditions."

Shelter, sanitation, clean water, food, and basic medical care, including post-surgical care, remain high priorities, she said. As a result of overcrowded living situations and poor sanitation, there is a high risk of diarrheal illnesses.

"I wanted to do more than just watch and read the media reports and send a little donation," the local nurse said. "I am anxious to offer my medical assistance and my public health experience to the Haitian people. After all, we are all brothers and sisters."

This is Mankamyer's first deployment with Heart to Heart International, but she and her husband Ken have volunteered their medical assistance previously in rural Tennessee.

Nurse Mankamyer said she would greatly appreciate any assistance in defraying the cost of her travel to Haiti. Donations will be accepted at P.O. Box 26, Grantsville, MD 21536, or Mankamyer can be contacted at 301-334-7691 or 301-387-8127 or by e-mail at cindymankamyer@-yahoo.com.

Jamison To Run For Office Of Oakland Mayor

Peggy Jamison has announced her candidacy for the office of Oakland mayor. The election for the town officials is March 8.

Jamison has been serving as the mayor following Asa McCain's resignation from the position last summer. She is currently completing her 18th year, ninth term, as an elected official for Oakland. She served as president of the Oakland Town Council for seven and a half terms, five months as acting mayor, and currently is mayor of the town.

She represents the council on the Garrett County Memorial Hospital board of governors, and is also the president of the Greater Oakland Business Association. She has been actively involved with the Main Street Program since its inception in 1998. She has served as chairman of the Main Street board of directors.

Jamison is a regular attendee of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Oakland. She is the treasurer of St. John's Lutheran Cemetery Association and a member of the Garrett County Business and Professional Women. She was inducted into the Garrett County Women's Hall of Fame in 2004.

The mayoral candidate has lived in Oakland for 26 years, and has been a homeowner in the municipality for 24 years.

"Despite the recent economic downturn, Oakland has seen new growth," Jamison said. "I believe that is the result of all our efforts over the past 20 years, from improvements to our infrastructure (water, sewer, and road), improvements to our visual impact (streetlights, brick sidewalks, tree plantings), and other efforts that we have made to attract business to Oakland. There are more opportunities for Oakland on the horizon, and as mayor I will work diligently to foster those opportunities."

Jamison said she believes the "time is right" for the town leaders and residents to plan the future.

"We must sit down and decide where we want to be five years from now, or 10 or 20 years from now," she said. "I want to be a part of that future for Oakland, to be sure we keep those things which make Oakland the wonderful place that it is while planning for new things that will help sustain and grow the town."

Jamison said she is proud of all the businesses that are part of Oakland, and she wishes to see the work of the Oakland Main Street Program and the Greater Oakland Business Association continue so those businesses will thrive and prosper.

"Each and every business is an important part of the fabric of Oakland, as are each of Oakland's residents," she said.

"Oakland is truly a 'Great Small Town,' which offers residents and visitors the friendliness and warmth of a small town and the retail and shopping opportunities that allow our merchants the ability to prosper and grow.

"I have been honored to serve the residents of Oakland these past 18 years and look forward to the opportunity to continue to do so," she said.

St. Jude Math-A-Thon Kicks Off At Broad Ford Elementary

This year's St. Jude Math-A-Thon® event began this Tuesday at Broad Ford Elementary. Miranda Cosgrove, one of America's best known performers, stars as host in Math-A-Thon videos to encourage students to participate in this program, which helps raise funds for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, the premier center for the research and treatment of childhood cancer and other deadly diseases.

The Oakland community can sponsor students participating in the Math-A-Thon by pledging an amount-per-problem or a one-time donation.

"St. Jude is the leader in the fight against catastrophic childhood diseases such as leukemia, brain tumors and sickle cell disease," said Broad Ford principal Suzanne Sincell, coordinator of the event. "Through events like this Math-A-Thon, Oakland will be supporting the St. Jude mission of finding cures and saving children across the country and around the world."

A tradition for more than 30 years, Math-A-Thon is a supplemental math education program for grades K through 8 that raises funds for the research and treatment of childhood diseases at St. Jude. Through programs like Math-A-Thon, the idea of St. Jude founder Danny Thomas to raise funds for the hospital through community-based events is able to continue.

Participating students receive a Funbook that is filled with math problems and puzzles. Students ask family and friends for pledges based on an amount-per-problem or a one-time donation. After students complete their Funbooks, they collect the pledges and donations from their sponsors, and all donations are sent to St. Jude.

The Broad Ford Elementary School Math-A-Thon event is sponsored by the math teachers at the school. Students raised over $5,000 last year during Math-A-Thon. A total of over $30,000 has been raised by Broad Ford students throughout all of its years of participation.

Those interested in information on how to host a Math-A-Thon event should call 1-800-FUNBOOK (386-2665) or visit www.mathathon.org.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by late entertainer Danny Thomas and is based in Memphis, Tenn. St. Jude freely shares its discoveries with scientific and medical communities around the world. No family ever pays for treatments not covered by insurance, and families without insurance are never asked to pay. St. Jude is financially supported by ALSAC, its fundraising organization, through events such as Math-A-Thon. For more information persons should visit www.stjude.org.

Power Of One Event Cancelled

The "Power of One" special meeting at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland that was supposed to take place on Saturday, Feb. 27, has been cancelled because of inclement weather.

The event will be rescheduled and the new date and time will be announced.

Uninjured Drivers Cited Following Vehicle Accidents

Garrett County sheriff's deputies investigated two unrelated vehicle accidents without injury last week.

A deputy responded to Bear Creek Road, Accident, last Friday, where investigation revealed that Gerald K. Yutzy, 36, Friendsville, had crossed the center line in his 1993 Chevy Suburban, hitting an oncoming vehicle. Jeffrey D. Lowdermilk, 36, Friendsville, was identified as the driver of the 1991 Chevy truck with which Yutzy collided. The truck was towing a 2009 Top brand trailer. Yutzy was cited for failure to drive right of center, while Lowdermilk was cited for driving an unregistered trailer on a highway.

Deputies responded to Accident Bittinger Road near Foye Road Saturday afternoon, where it was determined that a juvenile had been traveling west when the vehicle lost control on the icy roadway. The juvenile drove off the roadway and hit an embankment. The deputy cited the juvenile for failure to control speed to avoid collision and holding a learner's permit driving without required supervision.

DONATIONS STILL NEEDED FOR FUNDRAISER – The Garrett County Humane Society is still seeking new and gently used women's formal wear for its upcoming resale shop next month. "Because of the bad weather last week, few donations came into the drop-off site at Curves in Oakland," said president Lisa Baker. "So, please try to drop them off so they can be priced and transferred to the sale site at the Oakland train station." New wedding dresses (one of which is on display in the Marvin's store window), mother-of-the-bride, bridesmaid, prom type, and other formal wear have been donated so far. "But we need more prom type styles for the younger crowd; all sizes are needed," Baker said. "I am sure there are many people who have had several nice dresses hanging in their closets for years; now is your chance to donate them for a good cause." Items may be dropped off at Curves from Monday through Friday between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m., or during operating hours on Saturdays. The scheduled dates for the dress sale are March 11, 12, 13, 14, 19, and 20. Flyers about the fundraiser are posted at many local businesses. For more information, persons may call Baker at 301-616-4425.

He is charged with taking a vehicle without permission and second-degree assault. He was taken to the Garrett County Detention Center to await a bond hearing.

St. Mark's Christian Early Learning Center will hold an Open House/ Pre-Registration
Friday, March 19, 5:30-7:30 p.m.
and
Saturday, March 20, 9-11 a.m.

Parents of children ages 3 to 5 are invited to come find out all about this private, Christian-based pre-school that is Maryland state accredited and staffed by a fully certified teacher and two assistants. Not only will this be an opportunity for parents to learn about us and what we have to offer their children, but it will also help us plan for our 2010-11 school year.

Children may be enrolled for two to five days per week, and scholarships are available.

St. Mark's CELC, which is sponsored by St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland, is located along Garrett Highway (U.S. Rt. 219) north of Oakland, just past the entrance to Underwood Rentals. (Look for our sign.)

Parents who are interested in learning about our school but unable to attend either session of our March Open House are encouraged to telephone teacher Becky Moyer at the center during regular school hours at 301-334-3084.

CHRISTIAN EARLY LEARNING CENTER
St. Mark's Lutheran Church

In Partnership with The Judy Center

"The students who were enrolled in the St. Mark's Early Learning Center prior to entering kindergarten demonstrate a high level of cognitive skills that allow them to quickly master the educational goals of the kindergarten curriculum. These students typically score 'proficient' on the Maryland Model for School Readiness (MMSR) Assessment that is administered in the fall and the spring semester. The 28 indicators of the assessment assist in determining how well-prepared for school the students are. The high quality of educational standards and structure of the St. Mark's program is evident in all of its former students."

We're "Used to It"...

Garrett County's snowfall total for the winter of 2009-10 is now a record high, and going higher literally as this piece is being written. We will likely crack the 250-inch level sometime this weekend if the current forecast of yet another "nor'easter" proves accurate.

It's fascinating how differently those in Annapolis (or "downstate," as we like to say up here) react to severe winters when their area also gets hammered with heavy snow. Dealing with lots of snow here on the Mountaintop is relatively routine, although this particular winter is certainly testing our mettle. No one down there really pays any attention when we are the only Marylanders who are covered up with snow. "They're used to it up there; no big deal," is the attitude.

The problem, however, is that while it is true that we have the experience, the equipment, the expertise, and the manpower to handle snow much easier than do those east of us, it is still expensive for us to do so. How interesting it is that for most counties besides Garrett, disaster and emergency designations are almost automatic, qualifying those counties for additional funds to cope with the snow.

A few weeks ago when the D.C. and Baltimore areas were buried – as were we – Garrett County supervisors indicated to the state powers-that-be that we were doing okay up here, and that extra resources should be sent to those areas that do not have nearly the experience nor equipment that we have. However, last week, after things were well in hand in the metropolitan area, we made a request for some additional help from the state to aid in the clearing of snow in our municipalities. Yet next to nothing was forthcoming; no National Guard, and nothing from the Maryland State Highway Administration. Only a couple of pieces equipment and individuals from the Department of Natural Resources showed up to help.

Meanwhile, our county and municipalities (like those of the rest of the state) were smacked with a 90% cut in highway user funds from the state, as was the topic of this column a few weeks ago. How, Governor O'Malley, are we going to be able to afford not only such massive snow removal expenses, but also what is likely going to be major road repairs after everything finally melts?

Apparently it takes a couple months' worth of red tape after a particular storm to declare a county eligible for state and/or federal assistance. We certainly hope that our county will be deemed eligible after the multiple storms we have endured this month – even though we are "used to it" up here.

Letters to the Editor

Writers of letters to the editor are reminded that letters will not be published if they exceed 400 words, do not include contact information, and/or are deemed to be libelous.

To the Editor:

In the last couple of months we have seen blue trucks, yellow plows, green tractors, and numerous other road crew vehicles on Lake Shore Drive.

With the 220 inches (and counting!) of snow reported this winter, Lake Shore has always been passable. There has not been one day that the road hasn't been plowed and cindered.

Thank you to all the workers who are on duty clearing our Garrett County roads. You do a great job.

Garrett County is a great place to live.

To the Editor:

I was pleased to see the article in last week's Republican about my time in South Africa. I wish to recognize and thank Melissa Parker for writing the article, Tom Carr and the Oakland Rotary for sponsoring my application for the Grant to University Teachers, Rotary District 7350 for the opportunities the grant made possible, and the administration and my colleagues at Garrett College for supporting my sabbatical.

I am slated to speak to several local organizations and to share slides from my trip. Any community organization interested in scheduling a presentation is welcome to call me at the college at 301-387-3142. I am looking forward to telling the stories I promised back in June!

Shalom,

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my anger to whomever was responsible for having our wrestling team (Southern High School) travel to Smithsburg for the Western Regional duals rather than hosting the event, as earned by the team.

I have been a Southern Mat Club and Southern High School wrestling fan for over 10 years, and I think it's about time that the fans who have supported and followed the efforts of this outstanding team get an explanation regarding this matter. I am very disappointed that I was not given the chance to attend this match, held last Wednesday afternoon, and I cannot imagine the feelings of team parents who were not able to attend because of the last-minute scheduling of this event, their work schedules, and the distance to Smithsburg.

First of all, what does it say to our wrestlers when they fight for home-mat advantage all season long, and then it's denied right at the time it's most important? Secondly, who makes up for all the lost revenue from not having home matches? And most importantly, are the lives of our wrestlers any less valuable than those of the students at the other schools in terms of weather issues regarding travel?

Speaking on behalf of the Southern fans, I think it would be appropriate to respond publicly to this matter. If there is a state law, school policy, or other regulation regarding this situation, I would like to know what it is. I would like to know to whom I should forward my concerns, as I will be glad to petition the state's athletic directors to see what can be done when this situation comes up again.

If others reading this need support in getting this matter resolved with the powers-that-be, please let me know how I may assist you.

Sincerely,
Terri Scheffel

P.S. Do you think home-mat advantage or more fan support could have made the difference?

To the Editor:

Thank you for the excellent information detailed in your editorial last week titled "Here's Your Chance, Guys."

Does anyone really think that the county commissioners want to change their position on wind turbines? Instead, a majority of the commissioners are anxiously awaiting the commencement of the first of what will be many projects in our county.

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources Park Service web site states: "The State Park Service is committed to the preservation and protection of the lands we hold in trust for future generations." The governor visited beautiful Garrett County to announce that his position was to disallow the construction of wind turbines on state-owned lands. A recent letter to the commissioners by a taxpayer on the issue you raise in the editorial was shuffled to the bottom of the pile without even discussion. (Read the minutes of 1-19-10.)

The problem is that our county elected officials refuse to offer these same fundamental protections for its citizens and future generations. If the state of Maryland owned our mountaintops, wind turbines would not become part of our landscape. I guess my question is, if it is not good for state lands, then why on Garrett County lands? Why did we work so hard to eradicate the gypsy moths that were destroying our forests and now we strip our lands for these industrial monsters?

At a Public Service Commission hearing held in Garrett County, only Commissioner Gregg attended. The commissioners then held a public hearing, when many citizens were working, to gather input and to do what they chose with the input they gathered. If what came out of these meetings, letters, and citizen input is the token legislation the county commissioners have requested, it is too little, too late. Some tax revenue and a few temporary jobs is not enough. Even the 20 feet of snow this year will not help to cover up these monsters. Even the gypsy moths can not eat these towering structures.

As citizens and taxpayers, we must recognize that this selfish decision will forever change the face of Garrett County. What a catastrophe!

DC Dunk

those traveling from out of town," said Tom Schniedwind, executive vice president of sports marketing for Special Olympics Maryland. "Our hope is that getting involved with the Dunk isn't just a feel-good proposition for local businesses – instead, we hope that it's actually good for business for our partners here locally."

The dunk activities begin on Friday night at the Honi Honi "DunkFest," and features the Toast Your Buns Bonfire from 6 to 10 p.m.; live music beginning at 8 p.m.; an outdoor pizza party and carnival games for the whole family; and fun drink specials both inside and out. Those who are dunking on Saturday may pre-register anytime between 6 and 9 p.m. Friday evening, and skip the lines altogether on Saturday.

In order to join the event and take a dip into Deep Creek Lake, participants must raise a minimum of $50 in pledges. For that contribution they will receive a complimentary meal from Uno Chicago Bar & Grill, a commemorative event sweatshirt, and a group color photo.

Special prizes will also be awarded for the top three fundraisers, the top law enforcement fundraiser, the best costume, and the top fundraising team. Heated changing tents are available on the lawn for both men and women to change in before and after.

Day-of registration begins at noon on Saturday, and the Dunk will take place at 2 p.m. There is no fee for spectators, and dunkers of all ages are welcome – though participants under the age of 18 will need signed parental consent. To register, persons may visit the web site at www.dunk-md.com or call 800-541-7544, ext. 503 (Md. only), or 410-789-6677, ext. 503, and register through the 24-hour Dunk hotline.

"The MSP/NRP Deep Creek Dunk is not just an event – it's an experience," said Schniedwind. "There is just an amazing energy throughout the crowd before, during, and after the Dunk as people embrace the spirit of fun and craziness that defines the event. And the best part is that all that positive energy ultimately translates into a better tomorrow for Special Olympics Maryland athletes in all of our communities."

Dunk-day activities include music by DJ Jonny Rock, food, a wacky costume contest, and a live remote by WKHJ 104.5. Following the main event, the Black Bear Tavern is hosting the official Post-Dunk Party from 6 p.m. to close, complete with live music. A suggested $5 donation to Special Olympics Maryland gets all the official Deep Creek Dunk oval sticker and the chance to win prizes all evening.

The MSP/NRP Deep Creek Dunk, presented by Uno Chicago Bar & Grill and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, is coordinated jointly by the Maryland State Police, Natural Resources Police, Maryland Park Service and several other local law enforcement agencies.

The MSP/NRP Dunk is just the beginning of a full weekend of activities for Special Olympics Maryland, with the annual SOMD Winter Games beginning the following evening, Sunday, Feb. 28.

Winter Games feature competition in alpine skiing, modified alpine, cross-country skiing, and the newest addition, snowshoeing. Approximately 350 athletes from both Maryland and Delaware will travel to Garrett County for this state-level event.

Things get under way at 7:30 p.m. Sunday evening with the Opening Ceremony featuring the Athlete Oath and the lighting of Special Olympics Cauldron, followed by a full day of competition on Monday and a half day on Tuesday. Volunteers are needed, and anyone interested should call 410-789-6677, ext. 111, or visit www.somd.org for more information.

"The moment of cold that dunkers experience is no match for the warmth generated by the knowledge that Special Olympics Maryland athletes – in Garrett County and all around the state – are able to reach for their dreams because of the funds raised at this event," said Schniedwind. "This event has very positively impacted the Garrett County community and the athletes who directly benefit from it are absolutely better off for it."

The Deep Creek Dunk is made possible by the following sponsors: Uno's and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, presenting sponsors; Wisp Resort, founding partner; Comcast, 104.5 WKHJ, and 92.3 The Train, media partners; Long & Foster Resort Rentals, official lodging partner; Aerotek, Constellation Energy, and the Council of Ravens Roosts, legacy partners; Saucy Salamander Catering Company, Sounds Fun Entertainment, Wantz Distributors, Honi-Honi Bar, Arrowhead Condominium Association, and the American Legion, Dunk partners.

SOMD is a year-round sports organization dedicated to providing quality sports training and competition opportunities to Maryland's children and adults with intellectual disabilities and/or closely related developmental disabilities. SOMD currently serves 10,000 athletes statewide, and offers 24 sports, all at no cost to the athletes or their families. For more information about SOMD, persons may visit the web site at www.somd.org or call 410-789-6677.

DNR Tries

county's declaration. Both had been in place since Feb. 5.

Frantz noted his staff would be "working all angles" to get a federal disaster declaration for Garrett County because of this month's weather. With the declaration, local entities could receive reimbursement for some of the costs involved in dealing with the weather. Frantz said agencies should begin gathering their documentation now and have it ready in case a disaster declaration does come about.

The director noted, however, that there has to be a "watermark event" in order to qualify for a declaration. In addition, reimbursement is only given to costs that are above normal operations.

Frantz said the declaration may depend on whether or not the Federal Emergency Management Agency's Region III office considers February's weather as separate storms or one long prolonged event, which would be to Garrett County's advantage.

"These were not single storms that came and went. It was an accumulative effect, and logically that's the way it should be considered," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg about a declaration.

Frantz indicated that even if Region III does not feel a declaration is warranted, the national FEMA office and, ultimately, the president could override that decision.

The director noted that a disaster declaration was given for Maryland's Dec. 18-20, 2009, storm, but only in eight counties: Baltimore, Caroline, Cecil, Harford, Howard, Kent, Montgomery, and Queen Anne's.

"Sometimes we're victimized by our own efficiency," Gregg said about getting assistance. "We're able to, literally, conduct business as usual, and we're being penalized."

Frantz said that was "abundantly clear." He said the county did not ask for snow removal assistance early on in the emergency declaration because the whole state was dealing with the situation and other areas may have needed it more.

"I'm not very pleased with how that all played out," Frantz said.

He later submitted a formal request to state officials for assistance, in the form of equipment and manpower, for local towns. Frantz said he specifically told officials that the towns needed help loading up and hauling snow away, clearing fire hydrants, and widening intersections for emergency vehicles.

Both the State Highway Administration and National Guard declined to help, even though the state of emergency was still in effect.

Frantz then turned to the Department of Natural Resource, which offered to provide manpower and some equipment, but noted additional support in the form of dump trucks would be needed. A second request for help was made to SHA and National Guard.

"We were told that was coming," Frantz said about support.

The DNR showed up this past weekend, but no dump trucks arrived. Frantz said at some level, somewhere, the trucks were stopped. So, basically, the DNR was left to handle the situation alone, the director indicated.

The DNR was able to do some work in five towns: Loch Lynn, Deer Park, Accident, Friendsville, and Grantsville. Frantz said DNR personnel worked very hard, but just did not have all the resources they needed to get the job done.

"The mayors are quite upset," Frantz said about the lack of help from the state. He noted that towns are "already under the gun" financially because the state reduced their highway user fee revenue by 90 percent.

Frantz said the fact that Garrett County was self-sufficient earlier this month and said, "Let help go to those folks who aren't as able to take care of things," should not have precluded the county from getting help later when it was needed.

The director noted that officials will hold an "after-action" meeting to discuss how the state of emergency was handled. Frantz will be at that meeting.

Somebody is going to have to answer questions about why the county did not receive help when the state was still under an emergency declaration, he said.

"I think that they see the handwriting on the wall, that there may not be federal reimbursement, so they weren't going to expend their money after they realized that, and we're the ones who paid for that," Frantz said about state officials and the lack of help.

He stressed that this was entirely his own personal opinion.

lines and a tight scoring schedule, Maryland does not have the option to delay the Maryland School Assessments (MSAs), said Grasmick. Students will take the annual MSAs as scheduled, beginning the week of March 8, but state officials have said they will ask the U.S. Department of Education for special flexibility to maintain the same scoring targets that were in place for 2009. This practice has been used by other states in severe circumstances.

Under federal law, schools and school systems must meet steadily increasing scoring targets to maintain what is known as Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP). Under the No Child Left Behind Act, schools and systems strive to make AYP in order to reach the overall goal of having 100 percent of all students scoring at proficient levels in reading and mathematics by 2014.

Maryland's proposal would maintain the overall 2014 target, but would not increase the interim target from 2009 to 2010. Instead, Maryland schools and systems would be required to make greater improvement by 2011, a target which would not be altered.

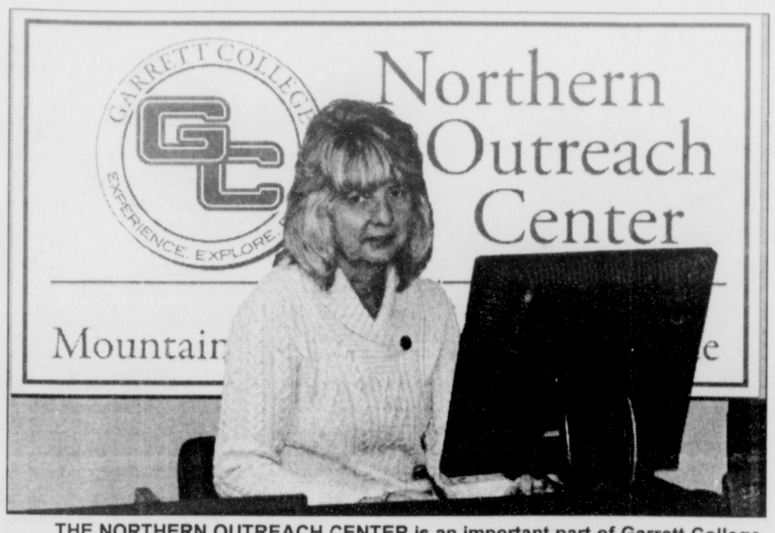
GARRETT COLLEGE NEWS BEAT

www.garrettcollege.edu



THE NORTHERN OUTREACH CENTER is an important part of Garrett College, as it provides training, seminars, and education in a wide variety of areas, from truck driving to Pilates to basket making. Pictured is Terry Beachy, director of the center.

GC's Northern Outreach Center Provides Wide Variety Of Courses

by Melissa Parker

Some Garrett County residents may not know that Garrett College's acronym NOC stands for the Northern Outreach Center, a branch of the college's Continuing Education and Workforce Development Division.

Located in the former county garage at Hilltop, Grantsville, the NOC offers a long list of non-credit courses for individuals interested in upgrading basic skills, learning job skills, or continuing their professional education.

Some who have heard of the NOC mistakenly associate it only with truck driving training. It is, in fact, the home of the college's Mountain Top Truck Driving Institute, which offers Class A and Class B CDL training courses. However, truck driving is one of only a number of courses that can be taken at the NOC.

"The Northern Outreach Center offers a variety of courses to meet your educational needs," said Terry Beachy, NOC director. "Whether you're looking to increase your current skill level, learn a new skill, or participate in a personal enrichment class, the center has a course for you. In addition, we are always open to new course ideas, and encourage the community to contact us with suggestions."

The NOC offers an assortment of personal-interest courses, in addition to computer and training courses. Customized training courses can also be arranged.

Some of the personal-interest courses that have been offered include: air brake training; forklift operator's certification; flagger training; temporary traffic control management; trapper education; Pilates and yoga; photography; grant writing; CPR and first aid; Finding Your Way with GPS; conversational Spanish; adult basic education; crafting; basket making; landscape painting; watercolor painting; drawing; nutritious meal planning for diabetes and weight management; and babysitting.

For individuals looking to learn the basics of computers, or for the more advanced individual wanting to enhance his/her skills, the NOC also offers a variety of courses, including Computer Skills I & II; Microsoft Word, Excel, Access, and PowerPoint; Internet Literacy, Managing and Maintaining Your Computer; Buying and Selling on EBay; and keyboarding.

In addition, the NOC offers training programs, including a series of eight courses for medical coding and billing. Students who complete this training may sit for national certification. The NOC will also begin offering two new training courses this semester: medical transcription and phlebotomy.

One of the unique things about the NOC is that it can offer customized training to fit a client's specific needs. In the past, these customized training sessions have been offered off-site, at places such as the Grantsville Senior Center, Casselman Valley Sportsman's Club, and the Southern Rescue Squad hall. Such customized training can be offered during the day or evening, on weekdays or over weekends.

And of course, the NOC offers training for truck drivers, including Class A and B CDL training, as well as refresher training for truckers who have been off the road for awhile and need to freshen up their skills.

In the past, credit classes, such as Introduction to Computers and Conversational Spanish, have been offered at the center. Although credit courses have not been available at the center in the last few years, the NOC is hoping to begin offering them again in the near future.

In March and April, the NOC will be offering the following courses: cake decorating; conversational German; the art of hoop knitting; Making and Breaking of Intimate Relationships; Writing Your Life; Estate Planning: The Importance of Wills and Trusts; beginner's jewelry making; Computer Skills I; introduction to anatomy and physiology; and Transitioning to Microsoft Office, 2007 version. A complete listing of courses is available online at www.garrettcollege.edu/coned/northern.

The NOC is located three miles east of Grantsville, near the intersection of U.S. Routes 40 and 219, just north of Interstate 68. For additional information about the NOC or courses offered, persons may contact Beachy at 301-895-4700 or by e-mail at terry.beachy@garrettcollege.edu.

College To Host Second Chances Women's Workshop

Garrett College will host Second Chances for Women on Saturday, March 6, in the college's Learning Resource Center. The program is a workshop for area women who may be thinking about returning to college.

According to a GC spokesperson, Second Chances is designed to help women "realize their career dreams," even though their educations might have been interrupted by work or family responsibilities. The annual program is sponsored by the Garrett County Branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW), along with the Business and Professional Women's Club, Garrett College, and the Women's Civic Club.

"The Garrett County AAUW is very pleased to be working again with the college and other community groups to make this program available for women who are considering returning to school," said Marilyn Moors, AAUW president. "We know from past experience that this workshop has been an important and positive force in helping women transition back into college work. We are looking forward to meeting this year's group with great anticipation."

The student panelists for the workshop will be Kayla McCrobie and Gina Rando.

After leaving high school early to begin a family, McCrobie recently earned her GED and made the decision to return to college. She began her career at Garrett last fall with the help of AAUW and the Second Chances program.

"Kayla juggles full-time enrollment at Garrett with being a full-time mom to her two daughters," said the GC spokesperson, who added that McCrobie hopes to become an ultrasound technician.

Rando also began her educational career at Garrett with the help of the AAUW and the Second Chances program. After life's circumstances led her to put her college dreams on hold several years ago, Rando decided to return to college last summer and has been at Garrett since. She maintains a full-time job as a personal banker, while she engages in part-time studies at Garrett. Rando plans to eventually transfer to West Virginia University to complete her bachelor's degree.

Roundtable discussions during the workshop will include information on scholarships and financial aid, career exploration, class scheduling, and developing support networks. Virginia Grove and Linda May Gerard, both GC faculty members, will talk about their experiences in aiding returning women students.

The program will begin at 9 a.m., following registration and coffee starting at 8:30 a.m. Other activities will include a tour of the college campus and a drawing for a $500 scholarship provided by the AAUW. The program will conclude with lunch in the college cafeteria.

Childcare will be available for participants who wish to bring their children. There is no charge to attend the workshop, but advance registration is necessary for childcare.

Women interested in attending Second Chances are encouraged to preregister with Rachelle Davis at Garrett College (301-387-3044) or with AAUW president Marilyn Moors (301-746-4057).

GC Foundation Extends Deadline For Scholarships

Because of the recent inclement weather, the Garrett College Foundation Inc. will be extending the deadline for the supporting materials (i.e., transcripts, recommendation letters, information from guidance office, etc.) of the 2010-2011 scholarship applications to Monday, March 15.

The foundation asks that students still submit the scholarship application and any supporting materials that they have already obtained by Monday, March 1. If any supporting documents are missing when submitting the scholarship application, students should include a note indicating that they will be sent in as soon as possible.

For questions or additional information, persons may contact Kalie Ashby at 301-387-3100 or by e-mail at kalie.ashby@garrettcollege.edu.

MEN, CUT YOUR LOSSES!

Men, and married men in particular, will be interested to know the findings that recently came out of a study of hearing loss data involving 5,290 Americans age 20 to 69. It seems that men, especially married, white men, are more likely to develop noise-induced hearing loss than women. In fact, men were found to be two and a half times more likely to develop this type of hearing loss, particularly married, non-Hispanic white men. The good news is that another study of men with hearing loss suggests that they can reduce their risk of developing hearing loss by consuming folate (a B vitamin). Doing so was found to reduce men's risk of hearing loss by 20% in men older than 60.

Some call deafness the silent epidemic. It is painless and invisible, yet more people suffer from it than from heart disease, cancer, blindness, TB, MS, and kidney disease put together. The reasons vary and include diet, medical conditions, noise pollution, aging, misusing personal musical devices, and heredity. Men and women, young and old—no one is immune. Find out the state of your hearing. Consult with a hearing specialist at AUDIBEL.

P.S. The second study cited above found that antioxidants such as vitamins C, E, and beta carotene did not have any effect in preventing hearing loss in older men.

ELECT

Robert Corley

For SHERIFF

Over the course of my career at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, I have strived to develop a positive relationship between law enforcement and the citizens of this county. Due to these efforts, in 2004 I received the Governor's Certificate of Merit in Crime Prevention through the development and presentation of community awareness programs. In 2005 I received the Maryland Governor's Volunteer Service Award for those same efforts and in 2007 I received a commendation medal from the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution in recognition of outstanding achievement and dedication to the maintenance of law and order. In short, I know that in order for law enforcement to work for the people, people must be involved in law enforcement.

Citizens too often forget that the Sheriff's Office belongs to them, not the Sheriff. We elect an individual who we believe will serve us fairly and in whom we can place our trust. I know I am that person. I believe in the value of a handshake and the faith that can be placed in a person's word.

I would like to think that during my career at the Garrett County Sheriff's Office, I have in some way reached you or your family in a positive way. For those of you who still wonder who Lieutenant Robert Corley is, what he has done, or what he can do for the citizens of Garrett County as the elected Sheriff, I ask only this: Ask a friend or a neighbor or invite me into your homes, business, churches or centers and allow me to take a moment of your time to introduce myself.

MARCH SUN – As March begins, the sun is in front of the stars of Aquarius moving about a degree a day eastward relative to the stars. On March 11, the sun enters the star group Pisces, where it stays through April 18. Both of the above star groups are lost in the sun's glare in March. The star group Aries is behind (east) of the sun, so it sets after the sun, appearing low in the southwestern dusk. The star group Capricornus (to the west of the sun) rises before the sun and is visible low in the southeastern dawn. In early March, sunrises in Oakland are about 6:50 a.m. while sunsets are about 6:10 p.m. (11.7 hours of daylight). Around the end of March, Oakland's sunrises are about 7 a.m. and sunsets occur about 7:40 p.m. (12.7 hours of daylight). So during March, the stars are last seen around 6 a.m. (early dawn) and then reappear about 6:40 p.m. (late dusk).

MARCH MOON – There will be a full moon on February 28, so there will be much evening moonlight in early March. On March 1, the moon will appear near the planet Saturn. After March 4, the moon rises after midnight and is best seen at dawn. On the morning of March 7, the moon appears half full in the southern dawn sky. On March 15, the moon swings from the morning to the evening side of the sun (new moon). On March 17, the moon reappears low in the western dusk. On March 22, the evening moon appears half full, offering the best views of its craters and mountain ranges with a telescope. Along the moon's left or straighter edge, the raised rims of the craters and the mountain peaks will first catch the sun's light. The nearly full moon appears near the planet Mars on March 24 and 25. The moon is full on the evening of March 29, appearing in the star group Virgo.

MARCH PLANETS – The five nearest planets are easily seen by eye, four of them shining steadily in contrast to the twinkling stars. Of the five, Mercury is usually the most difficult to see, at a low angle to the sun and seen very close to the horizon at dawn or dusk. In March, Mercury can be seen low in the western dusk in late March, when it sets about an hour after the sun. In early March, Jupiter is at too low an angle to the sun to be seen. In late March, Jupiter can be seen briefly low in the southeastern dawn. The planet Mars in the southern evening sky appears to the left of Pollux and Castor, Gemini's bright stars. The other evening planet is Saturn, appearing to the left of Mars in eastern Virgo. The brilliant planet Venus greatly improves in visibility in March, as its setting time after the sun increases from 55 minutes to 90 minutes. Late in March, it will be possible to see four planets at dusk, Saturn in the southeast, Mars in the south, and Venus and Mercury low in the west.

MARCH STARS – The Big Dipper's scoop is high in the north-northeast. The two leftmost scoop stars point down and left to the North Star, a modest star about halfway up in the north. Orion is striking in the southwest with his three-star belt. The belt points right to the bright orange star Aldebaran and the 7 Sisters (Pleiades) star cluster. Orion's belt points left to Sirius, the night's brightest star.

MARCH PROGRAMS – The Frostburg State Planetarium's program for March is "Quick Intro to the Stars," reviewing the basics of stars, including the sun. The free public programs are on the Sundays of March 7, March 21, and March 28 at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. in Tawes 302. Free planetarium material for visitors includes Night Highlights (for 2010), a March evening sky map, and a summary of the main program. After a brief intermission, planetarium visitors are invited to tour the Science Discovery Center, where a large collection of preserved animals from five continents are on display. Persons may telephone 301-687-7799 and leave name and address, and a free planetarium bookmark (includes small campus map showing planetarium and easy parking areas) will be sent to callers. Persons may also visit the Frostburg State web site, where there is an area devoted to the planetarium (http://www.frostburg.edu/planetarium).

CHILDREN'S DENTAL HEALTH MONTH

by Cynthia Heselbach, RDH,
Garrett County Health Department

February is Children's Dental Health Month. Did you know that tooth decay (cavities) is the most common chronic disease found in children? It is five times more common than asthma and seven times more common than hay fever.

Each year, more than 51 million school hours are lost because of dental problems. Untreated, tooth decay causes pain and infections that may lead to problems with eating, speaking, playing, and learning. Fortunately, with good oral health care habits, tooth decay can be prevented.

"It is important for parents to teach their children good dental care habits, including proper brushing and flossing techniques, eating nutritious foods, and having regular visits to the dentist," said Dr. Jason Hieronimus.

Steps such as these will help ensure that children will have a healthy mouth, as well as a healthy body. Since children learn oral heath care from their parents, it is important that parents serve as role models and practice good oral health care habits. Parents should supervise brushing until children are 7 or 8 years old.

Elementary school-age children can discover the power of a healthy smile online at www.MouthPower.org. This is an entertaining and innovative web site sponsored by the National Museum of Dentistry and the American Dental Association.

Children can explore Mouthie's interactive online laboratory to learn how to keep their smiles sparkling. They can learn how to brush and floss, make healthy food choices, and steer clear of the pitfalls of tobacco.

After completing the program that entails "earning" teeth, children can download a personalized certificate. The program is available in English and Spanish.

Children can test their dental knowledge by playing "Dental Jeopardy," located on the Maryland Office of Oral Health web site at http://fha.maryland.gov/-oralhealth.

For more information about oral health programs and services available in Maryland and in your local area, visit the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene's web site at http://fha.maryland.gov or call the Garrett County Health Department's Dental Care Center at 301-334-7660.

A Really Bad Car Wash

Recently I heard the familiar sound of someone's car alarm.

Years ago it would have drawn the attention of everyone nearby, but we have grown accustomed to this somewhat common occurrence and everyone ignored it and went about their business.

I almost did the same, but I had a second thought and I took a second look.

In a matter of seconds I was rushing to the aid of someone stuck in an automatic car wash with a door that would not open.

Just as I was about to rip the door off the track with my bare hands, I had another second thought, perhaps I should call 911. With my powerful hands gripping my cellular lifesaving device, I dialed the number with lightning quick speed and as my finger landed on the send button, the door suddenly opened and out came a very thankful and shaken lady.

She thought I did something, but... I didn't. What shocked me was that she had been in there honking her horn and flashing her lights for some time but no one came to her aid.

I'm not quick to feel too good about myself, because I then reviewed the many, many times I have heard about someone's need and for whatever reason, I went on about my business.

Jesus had a story about a very similar situation, we call it the story of the Good Samaritan. Check it out this week in your Bible, found in Luke chapter 10 and perhaps we can all be better "Samaritans."

HAITI ART SALE A SUCCESS – A brief pause in the blizzard conditions allowed local artists and their clients to gather at the Garrett College Art Gallery this past Valentine's Day to attend the special show and sale of art, as seen above, for the benefit of the people of Haiti. The event was very successful, with a whopping total of $5,000 raised, which will be sent to the Hope For Haiti Now organization. The event planner, Lorie Skidmore, extends a sincere "thank you" to all who made this possible, and acknowledges all those who contributed to its success. Ron Skidmore, art professor at Garrett College and one of the show's coordinators, is seen below, right, speaking with guests at the show. Artists who generously donated to the effort include: photographs by Janis Afable, Kathleen Gibbs, Patsy Harman, Jim Lawrence, Chip Lee, Roger Lueck, Angie Sincell, and Peter Versteegen; watercolor paintings by Sue Arnson, MaryLou Bauer, Joshua Gambetta, Judy McCaughey, Evelyn Silkey, and Fugi Yuan; paintings by Sharon Elsey, Julia Hoffman, Fred Peacock, and Joan Sussman; a painting in acrylics donated by the family of Carl Heselbach; ceramics by Elee Bookout, Tom Harman, Joan Lyon, Jerry McGee, Dmitry Ostrogorsky, Pam Snyder, and Ron, Lorie, Derek and Lindsey Skidmore; drawings by Ken Bauer and Neal Parks; basketry by Nancy Geisler; woodworking by Alan Arnson and Debora Robinette; prints by Ron Skidmore; and a knit doll by Carolyn DuBose. Skidmore also wishes to thank all those who attended the event, both artists and their clients, friends and family. Special acknowledgment also is given for the efforts of people who helped organize, publicize, and participate in the event: Julia Zaiser, Janis Afable and her visiting sister Aja, Sandra Thomas, Joan Lyon, Angie Sincell, Kathleen Gibbs, Susan Rexrode, and musicians Dmitry Ostrogorsky and Jerry McGee. Local businesses also contributing to the special day included Trader's Coffee House, Will O' the Wisp, Aladdin Food Service, Jan Fiorist, and Zaiser's German Meat Market. Artworks were also donated by the Decorator's Nook and the Loft Shop. Also, a correction needs to be noted: The photo of the "Silver Pears" painting featured in the Feb. 11 issue was done by Julia Hoffman, not Fred Peacock. The error is regretted.

Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer

The picture wasn't in the best of shape. Over time, it suffered cracks and folds, sun and chemicals not meant for old black-and-whites.

You suppose the people in the picture might be relatives – grandparents, maybe, or greats. They appear to be at a carnival, and though it might've been summertime, he's dressed in a suit and she's wearing a heavy dress with long sleeves.

They're not smiling.

The picture makes you wonder what their lives were like. What were their worries, their joys? You wish you knew their story.

So why not try the next best thing? Read A Century and Some Change by Ann Nixon Cooper, with Karen Grigsby Bates.

Annie Lou Nixon was born January 9, 1902, on a farm outside Nashville. For many years, she was the baby of the family, but she later got a chance to be a big sister when siblings arrived. She also took the chance to change her name – something that little black girls very rarely did in the early 1900s.

Though Ann had an idyllic childhood filled with family and friends, her mother died when Ann was barely eleven years old. Because it was "common practice" to split large families among relatives, young Ann was sent to live with kin in Nashville. The move changed her life.

Aunt Joyce worked for a bank president, which allowed her to buy anything she wanted from any store, an important thing in Jim Crow times. Aunt Joyce had lots of fine things in her home, and the life she and Cousin Irene created for Ann was genteel and mannerly. Irene was a popular girl who loved to dance, and at such a dance, Ann met her husband, A.B. Cooper, whom she called "Daddy" once their children were born.

Following her husband south, the new Mrs. Cooper became a catalyst for social change. Well-known in Atlanta, she founded clubs, utilized contacts, and made strategic "suggestions" to improve life for the city's black population. She knew the Kings, Martin and Coretta. And in November of 2008, she made further news when Barack Obama mentioned that, at age 106, Ann Nixon Cooper voted for him the morning he was elected president.

Looking for something you can enjoy, then pass over to your teenagers and Grandma to appreciate? This is that kind of book. It transcends generations.

Reading A Century and Some Change is like being treated by an elder to a few hours' worth of old stories. While a life well-lived has its ups, downs, and losses, it wasn't until I was done reading that I realized authors Ann Nixon Cooper and Karen Grigsby Bates focused mainly on the positive, inspirational parts of Cooper's life, which made this book a delight.

I think a good reader as young as 10 might enjoy this book. I can see it used in history classes, book clubs, and church groups. But if you just want a delightful, sweet book to read all by yourself, A Century and Some Change should definitely be in the picture.

RARELY HAVE ICICLES been any bigger and more numerous on the sides of structures all over the area, as temperatures have exceeded the freezing mark only a couple of days (last Friday and Saturday) since January. The buildup of ice along the eaves has caused leaks in numerous houses and buildings, and also threatens to bring down gutters. Persons are advised to take great care if the decision is made to try to remove the ice. This photo of a house in Aurora was taken and submitted by Dave Moran.

Receives Award From Lions Club

The Grantsville Lions Club recently presented a Melvin Jones Award to Larry Brenneman of Accident, a member of the club since 1981. The award is the highest award given to a Lion, and is in honor of Melvin Jones, who founded Lions Clubs International in 1917. His personal code was "You can't get very far until you start doing something for somebody else."

Brenneman is the president of Brenneman Well Drilling in Accident, and is a licensed master well driller along with his two sons, Michael and Doug. The business is celebrating 80 years of service to the Maryland, West Virginia, and Pennsylvania areas. Another son, Andrew, is a Maryland State Trooper out of the McHenry Barrack.

Brenneman is married to Julie, who works as a media teacher at Northern High School. They have four grandchildren. He and his family attend St. John's ELCA Lutheran Church in the Cove.

The award was presented by past district governor Barbara McKenney at the Lions Christmas party. She thanked Brenneman for his hard work with the Grantsville Lions, noting that he can usually be found in the barbecue building helping to cook chicken for the dinners during Grantsville Days and other events during the summer.

He spearheaded a drive to build a new Little League facility in Accident, and was the head coach of the Northern Steelers.

The Grantsville Lions meet on the first and third Thursday of each month, at Penn Alps Restaurant during the winter and at the Grantsville Park during the summer.

Anyone interested in becoming a Grantsville Lion can contact club president Gerry Beachy at gbeachy@verizon.net or 301-895-5387.

Northern Girls' Basketball Team Makes History; Claims AMAC Title

Claiming not only its 16th straight win of the season, but also the Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference Championship title was the varsity girls' basketball team of Northern High School as it cruised to a 61-40 win over Mtn. Ridge last Thursday, and a 67-40 domination of Salisbury last Friday. This is the first time in Northern's history that a girls' basketball team has ever won a conference title.

The Huskies have finished up their regular season with 19 wins and two losses overall, and a 14-1 AMAC record, to be ranked No. 1 in the area.

"The girls have experienced a lot of firsts this year, and it sure has been a very exciting year," said Northern head coach Steve Fratz, "but we are not done."

In Thursday's game against Mtn. Ridge, Northern took its time in gaining the lead, with an 11-7 first quarter and a 27-16 score at halftime. The Huskies poured on the points in the third quarter, outscoring the Miners 23-10 to begin the fourth quarter 50-26.

Kaitlynn Fratz, the team's leading scorer, dropped 27 points, with five being 3-pointers. Teammate Terra McKenzie used four 3-pointers and two free throw to finish with 14 points, while Adria Graham netted 10 in the win.

Fifth ranked Mtn. Ridge was led by Stephanie Fazenbaker's 16 points, five rebounds, and five assists, and Madi Nightengale added 12 points.

The junior varsity game was won by the Miner jayvees, 31-23. The Huskies' junior varsity was led by Lauren Yeager's and Kristen Raynor's six points apiece. Mtn. Ridge's Jocelyn Hoffman scored eight in the victory.

Northern dominated Salisbury from the beginning of last Friday's game, leading 20-8 after the first quarter and 37-13 at halftime. The Huskies continued to sink shots to boost their lead to 56-30 after three periods.

Kiersten Butler contacted with six field goals, three being 3-pointers, to rack up a solid 15 points for Northern. She was followed by teammate Amber Miller who added 13, while Graham netted 11 in the win. Graham also hit two 3-pointers and was 3 for 3 from the foul line.

Leading Salisbury was Lydia Hale-Cooper with her 12 points, and Ashley Knauer finished with 11.

The Huskies won a bye in the first round of the Maryland 1A West Region Playoff Tournament, and will host either Southern or Ft. Hill in the second round on Monday at 7 p.m.

"Even though we handily beat both teams in the regular season," said Coach Fratz, "playoffs bring a different persona and teams will try to prepare differently. I've said from day one that the team that stays out of foul trouble and plays the best intense defense will win, and I believe our girls are ready for the task."

Rams Edged By South Carroll In Regional Dual Championships

Defending Maryland state dual wrestling team champion Southern High School lost the opportunity to defend that title, as the Rams were edged in last week's 1A/2A West Region tournament by South Carroll High School, 38-36.

The four-team event, which pits the top squads in the region against each other, had been postponed several times because of winter weather conditions. It was supposed to be hosted by the Rams, who earned that opportunity by being the top-seeded team in the region.

However, Coach Dave Taylor and the Rams ultimately had to allow Smithsburg to host instead in order for the state to be able to schedule the state dual championships.

The Rams crushed Smithsburg, 63-12, in a semifinal round, while South Carroll defeated Winters Mill before meeting the Rams in the title round.

Southern led against South Carroll, until they dropped four of the final six matches.

Winning via pinfalls for the Rams were Davey Stewart in the 112-pound division, Dakota Pritt at 130 pounds, Brutus Scheffel at 152, Bubba Scheffel at 171, and Ryan Bennett at 215.

It took just 33 seconds for Bennett to record his pin, and Stewart needed only 36 seconds.

Lex Ozias was awarded a forfeit in the 145-pound division.

Winning on pins for the Cavaliers were Sam Willingham (103), Chris Wampler (119), Collin Plumley (125) and heavyweight Sam Wright.

Alex Stavish (135) and Derek Fung (160) gained major decisions, and Justin Moody (189) won by regular decision.

In the easy win over Smithsburg, the Rams amassed nine pins, recorded by Gavin Murphy (125), Pritt, Mikey Skipper (140), Ozias, Louis Hardester (152), Brutus Scheffel, Bubba Scheffel, Bennett, and Kevin Miller (285).

Davey Stewart won via a technical fall, and Nick Stewart (119) recorded a major decision.

Monica Hovermale (103) had the only pin for Smithsburg.

The Rams went on to compete in, and win, the Bi-County tournament on Saturday, hosted by Mountain Ridge. (See other story.) They will vie in the 1A/2A West Region championships this Friday and Saturday.

Huskies Fall To Mtn. Ridge Twice, But Claim AMAC Win Over Fort Hill

To face a team and lose is always hard, but to face the same team twice in one week and lose both times is even worse. The varsity boys' team of Northern High School had such an experience this past week as it faced Mtn. Ridge on Friday and again on Monday. The Huskies fell, 45-35, in the first Appalachian Mountain Athletic Conference match-up, and were then dominated by the Miners, 54-32, in the second game.

Northern was able to rectify the losses, however, with a 68-64 win over visiting Fort Hill to finish the regular season at 8-10 overall and 4-9 in the AMAC.

Northern trailed 14-9 in the first quarter of Friday's game, and remained down, 27-16, at halftime. The Huskies put up 11 points to the Miners' 10 in the third period, but it wasn't enough to get them the lead.

Dylan Miller was the only Northern player to score in double figures with his 10 points. Teammate Brad Sisler followed with seven in the loss.

Ryan Delaney sank three field goals, was 6-for-8 from the foul line, and hit two 3-pointers for a total of 14 points to lead Mtn. Ridge.

The Husky jayvees fell in the junior varsity game, but details were not received.

In the second meeting on Monday, the Huskies were held once again to a single figure first quarter start. The first quarter ended 15-7 in the Miners' favor, and 24-12 by halftime. Northern managed to get just six points on the board in the third quarter, while Mtn. Ridge posted 13 to lead into the fourth at 37-18.

Northern was led by Matt Gibson's nine points, which included a three-pointer, and Austin Doerr sank two 3-pointers.

Daniel Strietbeck hit four 3-point goals to finish with 16 points to lead the Miners. Delaney scored 11, while Pat Livingston and Chris Sowers both netted 10 apiece.

The junior varsity game went to the Mtn. Ridge jayvees as they posted a 48-32 victory over the Northern junior varsity. Pat Sines scored 12 points and Robert Hill 10 for the Huskies. The Miners were led by Connor Eberly's 12 points, and teammate Caleb Fazenbaker finished with 10 in the win.

Against Fort Hill last night, the Huskies barely stayed ahead of the Sentinels through the first half. Northern led 12-10 after the first quarter, and 26-20 at halftime. The Huskies boosted their lead to 54-39 after three periods, but were outscored 19-8 in the fourth period.

Gibson poured on 18 points, grabbed six rebounds, and aided with six assists to lead Northern in the win. Miller added 12 points, and Trevor Tombley and Cody Humberson recorded eight apiece for the Huskies.

TEARING UP THE TRACKS is 7-year-old Randall Ervin during one of his many races in the KSR Outlaw Cross Country Series, held last year from April to October 2009. Ervin competed in the Pee-Wee 0-7 age division, and brought home nine first place and two second place trophies, which earned him Class Champion in his division. He was awarded at a February banquet in Grafton, W.Va., where he also received a "special" trophy for going fast. This award is normally given to older racers, but he caught the attention of the racing promoter because of the way he rode and raced his KTM 50cc dirt bike. The 30-minute races took place in West Virginia and Maryland, and consisted of uphill, downhill, creek crossing, mud pits, and open fields. The tracks were approximately 1/2 to 1 mile long. Ervin raced in 11 of 12 races, and went up against as many as nine racers at a time and as few as three throughout the season. He is seen above left during one of his races, and above right he is shown with his awards. Ervin is in the 2nd grade at Yough Glades Elementary School and is the son of Randy and Chrissy Ervin of Deer Park.

Lakers Upset By Rockville In JUCO Event; Region XX Tournament Next

A 29-point performance by Booker Roary paved the way for an 87-83 upset of the Garrett College men's basketball team by Montgomery Rockville in an opening-round game of the Maryland JUCO Tournament last Thursday.

The Lakers (15-9) took their own floor as the #4 seed in the tourney, while Rockville came in as the 13th seeded squad.

The Lakers were on top by four points, 43-39, at intermission, and with 2:30 to play seemed to be destined to advance in the tourney, as they held a 10-point advantage at that point.

But a pair of GC turnovers resulted in a pair of Rockville three-pointers, one by Roary and the other by Darren Ball, to pare the Lakers' lead to four points. Additional turnovers that were converted into points by the visitors gave them the lead for good.

Nearly three-quarters of Roary's points were recorded from three-point range, as he drained seven baskets from that distance. Ball netted 20 points, and Alim Stewart also reached double figures with 10 points.

Pacing the Lakers offensively was Chris Hilliard, who scored 23 points, and also grabbed 11 rebounds. Kory Gibson hit 15 points, while Jordan Gipson also had a double-double night with 14 points and 11 boards.

"We had them down, but we didn't finish," said GC coach Dennis Gibson. "We did not play the entire 40 minutes, which is what allows opponents to come back. I give them a lot of credit for not giving up."

The Lakers' post-season will continue with the Region XX Division I Tournament, slated for this weekend at Hagerstown.

Garrett, seeded fourth in the tourney, will face top-seeded Allegany College of Maryland in Friday's 5 p.m. game. If successful, the Lakers will then face the winner of the Hagerstown/Frederick game on Saturday.

"I think we will have to play our best basketball," said Coach Gibson. "Allegany is always one of the top teams in the region, if not the top. They won it all last season, including the district playoff.

"It is unfortunate that the injuries and weather cancellations around the state have hurt our team continuity since January," added Gibson, "but we can put that behind us and play up to our potential."

Lack Of Practice Time Affects SHS Bowling In Matches Against Mtn. Ridge, Fort Hill

The past couple weeks of bad weather has put a strain on the sports teams of Southern High School, and according to the girls' and boys' bowling teams' head coach John Sharpless, practice time has been hard to come by.

"We are a winter sport, and we have had winter the last month, which puts a damper on practice," said Coach Sharpless. "Open bowling becomes important at this point; it's a must."

The lack of practice was evident in this past week's set of matches. The boys' team fell in the "actual" to Mtn. Ridge, 30-6, last Thursday, and to Fort Hill, 32-4, last Friday, but took both "adjusted" categories with scores of 26-10 over the Miners, and 30-6 to defeat the Sentinels. The girls' team was defeated completely by Mtn. Ridge, 32-4 actual and 30-6 adjusted, and fell 28-8 in the actual to Fort Hill, but edged the Sentinels, 20-16, in the adjusted.

"We lost our top average bowler and our boys were without a leader," said Coach Sharpless about Thursday's game against the Miners. "I asked my two seniors to step up, and they did all they could. I'm very proud of them."

Leading the Ram boys' team was Travis Wolfe with a set of 596. He finished with scores of 221, 204, and 171.

The Miners were led by Ben Russell's set of 522, with scores of 154, 187, and 181.

In the girls' match, Megan Stolbom rolled game scores of 157, 153, and 133 to record a set of 443 to lead Southern.

Ali Eller led the Miner girls' team with her strong set of 622, with scores of 209, 222, and 191.

"Our lack of bowling had to show up, and it did in this match," said Coach Sharpless. "We just weren't as sharp as we should have been, and we didn't do as well as we could have. We missed a lot of spares, and we didn't trust our own ability."

Against Fort Hill on Friday, senior Mark Mattingly rolled a 506 to lead Southern. According to Sharpless, adjustment to the lanes was important and took the team a while to get used to.

The Sentinels were led by a strong game by Tanner Smith. He shot a 244, 233, and 158 for a set of 635.

"White Oak Lanes was a tough shot. As soon as we found the right shot, it was time to start adjusting to the drying out of the oil," said Coach Sharpless. "There was no comfort zone for us. Fort Hill has only lost one actual match, so they are a good team, but we bowled as well as they did. They just carried better."

To lead the Southern girls, Stolbom shot a 206 first game, and followed up with a 146 and 148 for a set score of 500.

Fort Hill's Mystie Benson recorded a 203 in the first game, a 164 in the second, and a 149 in the third to finish with a 516 set score.

The Southern teams will be competing in the Showcase Tournament this Saturday.

Glotfelty Named Wrestler Of Year In Conference

Brock Glotfelty, a resident of Grantsville and a junior on the McDaniel College wrestling team, has been named the Centennial Conference (CC) Wrestler of the Year in balloting of the head coaches.

The 2007 graduate of Northern High School ranked ninth in the latest NWCA/Brute-Adidas Division III individual rankings at heavyweight after posting a 38-4 record during the regular and post-season. He went a perfect 7-0 in CC dual-meet competition this season and entered Saturday's conference championship as the top seed.

Glotfelty won all three of his matches at Saturday's tournament, hosted by Stevens College in Hoboken, N.J., to successfully defend his conference heavyweight title and lead the Green Terror to a fifth-place team finish.

Glotfelty was awarded a medical forfeit in his first match. In the semifinals, he notched his 16th pin of the season – best in the conference – with a 6-minute, 37-second fall of Ed Minelli of Ursinus College.

In a rematch of last year's final, Glotfelty once again defeated Merchant Marine's Jud Connell. He won via a 6-3 decision, after edging Connell 5-4 in last year's title bout.

The 2009 champion and 2008 runner-up, Glotfelty went 37-4 during his sophomore campaign and earned All-America honors by finishing eighth at the NCAA Division III championship meet.

For his collegiate career, Glotfelty has a personal record of 91-18. He becomes the fourth Green Terror wrestler to be named Wrestler of the Year by the conference, joining Ted Speers (1996), Charlie Conaway (2000), and Tony Howard (2006).

McDaniel recorded 48 points to finish fifth at the eight-team championship. Merchant Marine took its third straight crown with 88 points. Ursinus was second with 78 points, while Stevens (70) and Johns Hopkins (52) rounded out the top five.

By virtue of his championship, Glotfelty once again earns a spot in the 2010 NCAA Division III championships, which will be held March 5-6 at U.S. Cellular Center in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Sportsman's Feast To Be Held At Faith Evangelical Church

The Men's Brotherhood of Faith Evangelical Free Church has set the date for their sixth annual Sportsman's Feast for Saturday, March 13. Doors will open at 5 p.m., and dinner will be served at 6 in the church's recently completed multipurpose room, located at 1009 Maryland Highway, Mtn. Lake Park.

This annual event is free of charge and open to all persons who enjoy hunting, fishing, and the outdoors.

"Hunters, hikers, campers, and anglers are all welcome to come and sample wild game, listen to mountain music, and be entertained by a special speaker who will present the group with stories of the outdoors," said a group spokesperson. "The highlight of the feast is sampling local and exotic wild game dishes."

There will be many door prizes given throughout the evening. Prizes will also be presented to those wearing the best outdoor gear, including traditional and modern hunting attire, fishing outfits, and in an open category for bird watchers, hikers, and campers.

Last year's feast drew more than 150 persons and featured nearly 50 different wild game dishes that ranged from trout to buffalo to elk.

No reservations are necessary for this event. For further information, persons may call the church office at 301-334-4172.

Northern Youth Wrestlers Vie In Two Tournaments

Members of the Northern Youth Wrestling Team participated in two events over the weekend.

The first was hosted by Somerset Area High School. Placing first for the Northern team were Shane Fink in a 6 and under division, Justin Opel, 12 and under, and Kody Osselburn, 14 and under.

The regional qualifying tourney was hosted on Sunday by Williamsport High School.

Team members who placed first or second qualified for this weekend's state finals, which will be held at Cole Field House on the University of Maryland Campus, College Park. They are: Kody Osselburn, Justin Opel, and Brady Bittinger (12 and under), who all placed first; and Mac Raley (8 and under) and Nate Durst (10 and under), who both placed second.

Placing third for the local team were Hunter Wilhelm, 8 and under, Devin Wilhelm, 10 and under, and Ryan Weimer, 10 and under. Ryan Miller (14 and under) also participated.

Spaghetti Dinner Slated At NMS

The Lady Huskies softball team will sponsor a spaghetti dinner on Monday, March 1, at Northern Middle School from 4 to 6:30 p.m. Dinners will be available for both eat-in and carry-out.

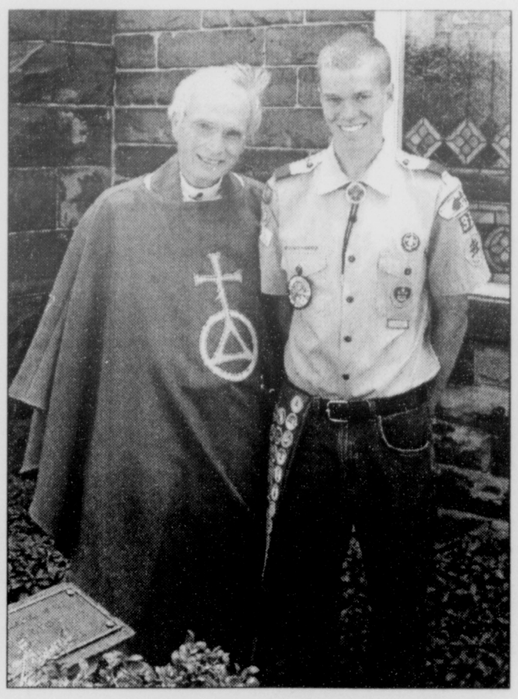
EAGLE SCOUT CAMERON CRAWFORD'S PROJECT, completed as part of his requirements to attain the highest status in Scouting, was completed in September of 2009 and involved restoring the "Richard C. Bishoff Memorial Garden." It is located on the grounds of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, between the Nearly New Shop and the church. Crawford planned the restoration effort, and then engaged in weeding, pruning, mulching, and fertilizing. In addition to the Bishoff section, Crawford also enhanced other gardens and grounds of the church last summer and fall. The Eagle Scout is pictured at right with Rev. Chip Lee, pastor of the church.



JOHN COMPTON'S EAGLE SCOUT PROJECT involved the restoration of the bridge at the Oakland town parking lot and pavilion. The bridge spans the Little Yough and was built by George Scheffel some years ago. Compton led his fellow members of Troop 31 in scraping and repainting of the bridge, as well as re-staining the bridge decking. The Troop members are pictured above, and Compton is shown below as he works on a lamppost.

Hooray For The BSA!
Boy Scouts Of America Marks 100th Anniversary On Feb. 8

by Paul Shogren, with Mary Sincell McEwen

The Boys Scouts of America (BSA) turned 100 years old on Feb. 8, as W.O. Boyce, a Chicago publisher, filed incorporation papers in the District of Columbia on Feb. 8, 1910, "to promote through organization and cooperation with other agencies, the ability of boys to do things for themselves and for others, to train them in Scoutcraft and teach them patriotism, self-reliance, and kindred virtues using methods which are in common use by Boy Scouts."

Today the official mission of the BSA is "to prepare young people to make ethical and moral choices over their lifetime by instilling in them the values of the Scout Oath and Law."

One can discover what these values are by asking any Scout to repeat the Oath and Law. The present chief Scout representative, Robert Mazzuca, has stated that there is a "new direction that we can take in the new century. We can tackle problems of youth obesity, educational status, single-parent families, youth crime, and personal safety." One could add that the BSA is committed to the principle of "No Child Left Inside."

The Scouting statistics for 2009 are as follows: In the United States, as reported by the headquarters in Irving, Texas, there are 1,612,761 Cub Scouts, 889,815 Boy Scouts, and 245,311 Venturers, with a total of 2,747,887 in all.

The Potomac Council, which serves Garrett, Allegany, Grant, Hampshire, Hardy, and Mineral counties and is headquartered in Cumberland, had these statistics for local membership: Cub Scouts, 804; Boy Scouts, 363; and Venturers, 30, with a total of 1,197.

There are presently six BSA Troops in Garrett County, most with active membership of several young men. The groups have worked for many years on improvement projects around the county, some as part of Eagle Scout efforts, and others as Troop endeavors. Many young men have achieved the highest rank of Eagle, putting in years of work, multiple hours of study, and intense project planning and achievement. More about each Troop follows.

How Did Boy Scouting Begin?

The concept of Boy Scouts began in the mind of the 19th century's retired British General Robert Stephenson Smyth Baden-Powell, who became famous as the "Hero of the Siege of Mafeking" in South Africa. At that 1900 confrontation, Baden-Powell's outnumbered soldiers, surrounded by several thousand Boers, withstood a siege of 217 days. During this time, he organized a "cadet corps" of youth as messengers and lookouts.

By the end of the siege, on May 17, 1900, Baden-Powell had risen to the status of national hero. British youth and their leaders were impressed with his use of the cadet corps and the army manual he had written, Aids to Scoutcraft. The book was intended to teach such skills to the soldiers. The manual was used by the British youth for training and games.

Baden-Powell retired in 1906 to develop a new youth organization emphasizing the use of the outdoors for training young people survival skills and to become participating citizens in their societies.

To test his theories, he organized the world's first Boy Scout camp. It was for 22 boys, who had their experience on Brownsea Island off England's southern coast during the summer of 1907. This successful event is regarded as the beginning of the World Boy Scout Movement. By 1908, Baden-Powell had published Scouting for Boys, and the movement took off around the world.

Coming to America

The Boy Scout movement came to the United States in 1909 from the experience of William D. Boyce, as noted, who one evening became lost in the dense fog of London. A boy offered to help, guiding Boyce to his destination. When Boyce offered the young man a tip, he refused it, saying "It was a good turn, and Scouts do not accept pay for such an act." (That boy has come to be called the Unknown Scout.)

Intrigued, Boyce later visited Scouting headquarters and returned to the States with much Scouting literature. He then gathered other like-minded men to form the BSA in February 1910.

Those men were regarded as the founders of the BSA: Boyce, James E. West, Ernest Thompson Seton, Daniel Carter Beard, and Edgar M. Robinson.

Boyce was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., and as a publisher, helped to employ thousands of newsboys. He helped them earn money, and also helped provide financial assistance to the fledgling BSA in its early days.

James E. West, "Jamie," was an orphan and was crippled by tuberculosis. He earned a law degree and served as the first Chief Scout Executive. He was in that position for 32 years. He was instrumental in forming the first BSA into an effective and efficient group, first in New York City, and then in New Jersey.

Ernest Thompson Seton became the first Chief Scout. He brought Native American lore to the organization, as well as Scoutcraft skills and art. His experience with organizing the Woodcraft Indians prior to 1920 was helpful in his contributions to Scouting.

Daniel Carter Beard, "Uncle Dan," became the first Scout Commissioner. He brought his organization, Sons of Daniel Boone, to Scouting. His focus was on outdoor living and skills, and he was known for wearing his buckskin clothes to Scouting events.

In addition to these key men, another individual is credited with promoting Scouting. Hailing from Denmark, a Knight Scout named Vilhelm Hang Bjerregaard Hillcourt Jenson came to the USA in 1922. He wrote a column in every Boys' Life magazine from 1932 until 1945, and wrote three editions of the Boy Scout Handbook. He came to be called Green Bar Bill (GBB), and his writing was of great interest to the Scouts of that era. They eagerly awaited the next issue of Boys' Life to discover what GBB had to say to them, generally expressing the importance of the patrol methods and leadership.

The Scouting movement grew throughout the years, and fostered the launching of the Girl Scouts, founded in 1912 by Juliette Gordon Low. She based her program on the precepts and principles develops by Baden-Powell.

Before he died in 1941 at the age of 83, Baden-Powell issued a final message to Scouts and Girl Guide leaders of that time. It follows in part:

"Scouting's aim is to produce healthy, happy, helpful citizens of both sexes, to eradicate the prevailing narrow self-interest, personal, political, sectarian, and national, and to substitute for it a broader spirit of self-sacrifice and service in the cause of humanity; and thus to develop mutual goodwill and cooperation not only within our own country but abroad, between all countries.

"Hundreds of thousands of boys and girls who are learning our ideals today will be the fathers and mothers of millions in the near future, in whom they will in turn inculcate the same ideals — provided that these are really and unmistakably impressed upon them by their leaders of today.

"Therefore you who are Scouters and guiders are not only doing a great work for your neighbors' children but are also helping in practical fashion to pass God's kingdom of peace and goodwill upon the earth.

"So, from my heart, I wish you Godspeed in your effort."

There is a statue in Gilwell Park, England, given as a gift by the BSA to the World Scout Movement. It is called the Buffalo statue, and engraved on it is the inscription: "To the Unknown Scout, whose faithfulness in the performance of the Daily Good Turn brought the Scout Movement to the United States of SIGNIFICANT ACCOMPLISHMENTS – Troop 31 of Oakland has an impressive record of young men achieving Eagle Scout status, the highest level in Scouting. In the back, same order, are Andrew Roth, Alex Mellinger, Jeff Rush, John Compton, and Cameron Crawford. SCOUTS SPEAK IN ANNAPOLIS – Two local Boy Scouts, Seth Miller and Daniel Jones, recently made a trip to Annapolis to participate in the 2010 BSA (Boy Scouts of America) Report to the state of Maryland. Miller, Garrett County representative, and Jones, Allegany County representative, joined representatives from the other four councils which serve areas in Maryland on the House floor to address the gathered delegates and senators. They gave updates on the highlights of Scouting from the previous year. "For 100 years, Scouting has been molding leaders of this state and nation, and this tradition proudly continues as it influences the lives of young men such as myself teaching skills and values that will stay with us for the rest of our lives," stated Jones in his speech. Above, from left, are Speaker of the House Michael Busch, Potomac Council board member David Jones, Scout Jones, Scout Miller, and Delegate Wendell Beitzel. Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

I can't help but think about a Beatles song, "Here Comes the Sun," because it is so long since we've had a really bright sunny day. It is so bright today, though, that it's really blinding, especially when the sunshine reflects on so much snow. And I have nearly 20-foot piles of snow across my lane, straight out from my living room. I'm not complaining, believe me. But I really need sunglasses to look outside.

I had forgotten why I started avoiding the Pittsburgh local news in 1975. There is almost no good news, and you have to see the faces and words about their personal tragedies.

This Sunday morning I saw a story about a young "mentally challenged" person who was murdered after hours of torture by six men and women. Someone found her body stuffed into a trash can. Then there was a story about a 20-ish pregnant woman who was shot with a rifle in her bed by her fiancé's 8-year-old son.

I believe everyone is searching their minds and hearts to see where this scary uprising of violence is coming from. Killing other human beings? I think it is a big mistake to blame Satan for evil, because that is ignoring the individual's personal responsibility, and the institutions promoting fear, paranoia, and hate also may bear some responsibility, too.

At last, a February thaw. And boy, we sure can use one.

When we milked cows in a spell like this, my poor father spent most of his time opening the lane with an old tractor with a loader. It wasn't a perfect machine for plowing snow, but it worked well enough so that the milk truck could get in and out, which is something that no dairy farmer can neglect. If they don't get their milk out, then there is no income.

Even when we had a big high-tech milk tank, it could only go at the most a couple of days with the milk. And it got full pretty fast with two milkings per day, and our herd produced heavily.

It was not an easy way to make a living, but living on a nice farm was a great way to bring up five children. There were plenty of chores for all of us, which taught us about hard work and responsibility.

Sometimes we had to forgo something we would rather do to do what was necessary – like haymaking on hot summer afternoons. Most teenagers would rather go swimming rather than work hard on scratchy, heavy hay bales. And when a farmer has a big field covered with perfect dry hay, nothing is more important than getting that hay baled and safely in the barn before it gets ruined by a sudden thunderstorm. The financial loss is great if you are not successful, because when a crop of hay gets rained on, the nutritional value drops to practically zero. If it gets moldy, it is positively dangerous to the health of the animals, especially horses.

Sometimes, I feel so alone, scared, and sad. But luckily, I have my home community. There are people who care enough about me to go out of their way to help me.

The other day late in the evening, my living room light bulb went dead. There was no way that I could change it myself, and since I don't sleep very well, I often have to get up during the night. So it was kind of important to me to have light in my living room. But I really hated to call anyone to help me. If I had to, then I thought the best option would be to call someone who is closest to my house. And I try very hard not to call the same person lots of times.

The closest neighbors I have are Dan and Charla Beiler, but when I called their number, there was no answer, just the answering machine. I didn't want to leave a message, but in a few minutes, my phone rang. It was Charla, who said she saw on the caller i.d. that I called.

So soon Dan was in my living room replacing the light bulb, and then everything was all right.

Everyone who lived most of their lives here in Bittinger is unanimous – no one has seen a winter like this winter. Of course, we have seen lots of snow. But this is something different. Almost every day, there is another big snowfall. Cyndi Kolbe remembers a similar winter in 1979. The reason I don't remember that is that I was in Manhattan.

Garrett County schools have been closed more days than usual. Today is Feb. 18, and I think that this winter hell will last the whole month.

Just about every day that someone needed to come in or I had to go somewhere, my lane had to get cleared out. It would then stay clear for just a few hours, because our winds are in full force.

Today, the inevitable finally happened: my electric power went off. Most times when mine goes out, Sheila's goes out, too, but not this time. It was just mine.

I was lucky that I left my cell phone plugged in all night. My house phone depends on electricity to function. So I called Marci to see if her power was also out. But no, it was just me. She called Allegheny Power for me. Her son Robby was trying to get his car unstuck, and he saw that the lines touched the ground in several places. I was glad to see an Allegheny pick-up truck come in. One of the crew yelled over the howling wind that a line is down. And the big line truck arrived about an hour ago.

I hope they can get the job finished soon, because it is starting to get pretty cold in here. Thank goodness they got it fixed before darkness came, or I would freeze to death in my own house. I would also have no water, which is not very fun either. But winter is not winter around here without at least one power outage.

So far I did not get to see much of the Olympics, except too much hockey. But just now the first American won gold in cross country skiing! Norway and Sweden usually dominate that sport, because it is a part of their everyday life; a major form of transportation. Kids ski to school.

Unfortunately, tonight is my least favorite sport: ice dancing. As usual, commentators questioned whether it is a real sport. It seems to me that it is more show business. But if ESPN covers poker and chess, it is more sport than either of those activities. And they say that curling is not a sport because one nation, I think it is Canada, had a five-month pregnant woman on their team. So it could not be a sport. That is nonsense.

I participated in several real sports when I was almost halfway into my pregnancies. I was a member of an intramural faculty volleyball team, although I wasn't a star by any means. And I did some cross-country skiing and horseback riding. Pregnancy does not make a woman not an athlete.

One of the oldest and most demanding sports, the equestrian sport of dressage, had a 77-year-old man participating in the Olympics once. And early in the 20th century, a woman with polio put in an excellent performance in dressage.

No one can deny that snowboarding is not a sport, at least with those flips in their routines. But I heard someone complain that the snowboarders are "just a bunch of teenagers whom you wouldn't allow on your porch."

They are more than welcome on my porch, especially the "Flying Tomato" who won a gold medal in the last Olympics. He got his nickname from his long brilliant red hair. I think he is adorable. They are just a bunch of free spirits, and that doesn't mean that they do not deserve to participate in the Olympics. Of course, everyone has an opinion.

One of those free-spirited teenagers was a girl from Vermont who decided that she wanted to make a real difference in the world. She visited a remote village in Kenya with World Visions, and decided to use all of her prize money to help with schools, drilling wells, and many other things that make a big difference. She won a silver medal.

Her family is joining her in changing the world for the most helpless people by producing and marketing maple syrup. She did not train very hard and perform those unbelievable and risky stunts for her personal glory, but she did it for the most forgotten people. If you don't want her on your porch, then something is very wrong with you.

She is a kindred soul to my Caitlin, who called me this morning with a proud report. On a very difficult exam, she scored 103%. All Garrett County teachers who taught her should be proud of themselves, and of Caitlin. I give my heart-felt thank-you to all the teachers who helped to turn around a child who was somewhat challenged in the first couple years of school. You gave her what she needed: love, comfort, and encouragement. She had close to straight A's as she embarked on her senior year of college.

It is clear what Caitlin will do with her life: help the helpless.

We were so lucky that our daughters began their education at Accident Elementary School, where the students score very well on those standardized tests, but get so much more in the way of education.

I am disgusted at the NBC coverage of the Olympics. I can rarely find anything except hockey and curling. I did get lucky and saw an American win gold in the biathlon, a big first.

I wish they would explain what is going on in a curling match. But they never do. What are those brooms doing? Apparently, it is wildly popular in Canada. Their top curlers are like rock stars there. I get the impression that it is pretty big in the British Isles. Well, I guess it is a matter of "to each his own." But I certainly find ski racing, speed skating, and snowboarding much more compelling viewing. One thing about it, you rarely see a career-ending injury. And I do prefer it over ice dancing.

About that injury issue, the best curling player in the world outside of Canada is a guy named Murdock who has trouble with his wrist tendons. But don't worry, because he is paid by the British government, and Britain puts a whole bunch of resources into its curling program.

It is good to see Colon Powell on television. He said perhaps Obama tried to do too much too fast. But where America is right now, there are so many big problems.

We had runaway earnings by financial firms, many thousands of people do not have any health coverage, and millions are without jobs. And for some reason, too many Conservatives don't see that we need revenue. The middle class or poor people can't afford higher taxes. But one group can afford higher taxes: the millionaires and billionaires. Their traditional role is investing in new businesses and helping the economy grow.

Something is very wrong with our society when a tiny portion of people have almost all the wealth. Some Republicans are saying that it is not the government that should spend money to stimulate the economy, but if the wealthy do not lift a finger…

If the private sector fails to do its job to re-start the economy, there is nowhere to look for those actions except the federal government. President Obama and the rest of the federal government have no desire to take over a big chunk of the economy, but American citizens are demanding action.

Of course, big business needs to make some profits, but that is not an excuse for the several big insurance companies that raised their premiums almost 50 percent after a period of record profits. It is way past time that America serves the interests of the majority of the people, and not the mega-wealthy top two percent. It is not right, moral, or American.

Throughout the history of the world, when a country got to this point, the result was bloody revolution. The French and Russian revolutions and examples. But we don't have to go that way. How we can get on track is simple: stop the dominating values in our country of greed and selfishness, and allow our government to look out for ordinary people to live decent lives.

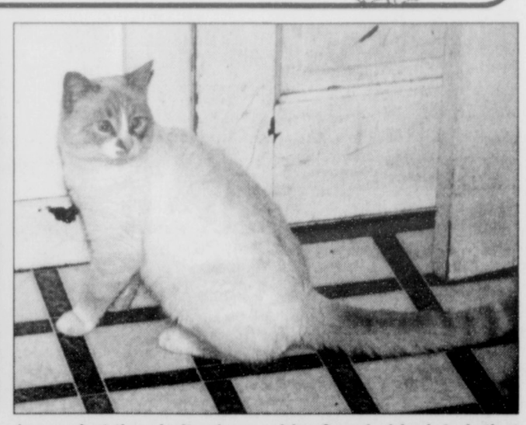
We need good educational opportunities for the young people, ensure that they can access health care, and, of course, have jobs. I know that the millions of unemployed would rather have a decent job and be able to support their families. But the private sector refuses to step up and behave decently.

I learned something new about my hero, the "Great One," Roberto Clemente. He was on file in FBI records. I was not surprised that he got a death threat letter from someone in New Jersey, probably a jealous and racist Mets fan. But another was about the FBI surveillance during the 1960s, allegedly because of possible racketeering. But that file was closed because they didn't discover any evidence of wrongdoing.

It was a little strange to see how all of America stopped dead when Tiger Woods spoke on national television about his sleazy personal conduct. He apologized to everyone who was hurt by his behavior. But the most important part of his statement was when he said, "I believed that the rules that govern most people's behavior did not apply to me."

That is a very common problem in American life, as way too many powerful men in many walks of life behave the same way.

Adorable Adoptables



SWEET RUTHIE AND FRANK are available for adoption this week at the Garrett County Animal Shelter. Ruthie is an adult hound mix. Her owner had to give her up because of health reasons. "She is sweet and laid back," said a Humane Society spokesperson. "She misses her owner and her old home and needs to be adopted into another loving home soon." A 3-year-old blue-eyed, flame-point Siamese mix dubbed Frank also needs a home. An Oakland family recently found him wandering along Pennington Street. They are unable to keep him, but had him checked out by a veterinarian, tested for feline leukemia, vaccinated, dewormed, and neutered. Frank is described as very sweet, soft, and affectionate. Also housed at the shelter is an older female black Lab that was dropped off after hours. "We don't know much about her, but she is sweet and calm," said the spokesperson. "There are several kinds of cats available, including an all-white male, an all-black male, a longhaired tabby, and a white cat with black markings. HOW TO MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR PROPERTY THROUGHOUT THE WINTER MONTHS

Selling your home during the winter months can be a little tougher – the weather is usually bad and unlike the longer days of summer, you have less time to show it off during daylight hours. But not everyone has the luxury of waiting until the traditional spring or summer home-buying season to plant that "For Sale" sign in the yard. Of course, living in a ski resort area, this is not true for all sellers, but everyone should benefit from what we have to say to assist you in selling your home this season!

Here are a few tips to help you maintain and sell your home during the winter. First impressions are lasting for potential buyers so you will want to keep things looking as nice as possible!

•Keep snow and ice at bay.

If a buyer cannot get in easily, the house won't sell. That means keeping walkways and driveways free of the snow and ice! Just like trimming the lawn in the summer, you want to make the home look like it has been maintained. Buyers will also want to see the patio or deck if you have one, so make sure that the snow and ice has been removed from these locations as well.

•Warm it up.

If you have a showing during the winter, think warm, cozy and homey. Before a buyer comes through, adjust the thermostat to a warmer temperature to make it welcoming. Buyers who aren't comfortable won't stay long. If you have a heated garage, make sure that the heat is turned on prior to showings so that buyers can appreciate this feature.

•Take advantage of natural light.

If your home is being shown during daylight hours, open your blinds and curtains as wide as possible to make your home brighter and more welcoming. Clean all the lamps and built-in fixtures, and replace the bulbs with the highest wattage they will safely accommodate. If you are leaving the house prior to the showing, turn on all lights before you leave.

•Get the windows washed.

In the winter, the strong southern light can reveal dirt and grime on your windows if they have not been washed. This makes the home look like it has not been well maintained.

•Use the season to your advantage.

While the holidays are over, you can still use winter wreaths or dried arrangements around the door to spark interest. In the winter, with the leaves off the trees, you might also have a nice view that isn't apparent during the spring or summer months.

•Show it off.

Invest in a digital photo frame and load photos taken during the spring and summer months. Include a few close-ups of your favorite perennials and gardens if you have them. You can also add photos of your family and friends at outdoor summer gatherings at your house. Place the frame in a central location such as the kitchen, and play the photos on continuous loop for everyone to enjoy. Your audience will get a glimpse of your property's spring/summer appeal.

If the seller is an out-of-the-county resident, he/she should have arrangements made to adhere to the tips and suggestions listed above. The ability to sell one's property will be greatly increased if these suggestions are implemented.

If you are thinking about listing your home for sale and have any other questions or comments, please contact your local realtor today.

America."

Troop 1

Organized in 1922 and sponsored by St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland, Troop 1 is the oldest in the county. The group meets at St. Paul's every Thursday at 7 p.m. The main project over the past two years for this group has been the effort to raise money to help four younger Scouts get to summer camp, and to send two leaders and six older Scouts to the Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico.

In August of this year, the Scouts hope to embark on an 80-mile, 10-day backpack journey through 140,000 acres of the New Mexico ranch. The Scoutmaster is Mark Miller.

BSA Troop 22 of Oakland will mark its 18th anniversary on May 31 of this year. It is chartered and supported by the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club, and meets at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church in Oakland. The Scoutmaster is Dan Clark.

The Troop has produced 18 Eagle Scouts during its existence. Scout Derek Taylor has also completed the requirements for the designation and is awaiting confirmation by the Eagle Scout Board of Review.

The boys are planning to attend the Potomac Council Scout Show this weekend at the Country Club Mall, LaVale, in celebration of Scouting's 100th anniversary.

Troop 22's first Eagle Scout was Christian Coviello. He now has a doctorate in electrical engineering and is currently in England working with other experts in the medical and computer fields. They are working together on a project to fight cancer.

Troop 31

Troop 31 of Oakland was in existence prior to 2002, but had become inactive. In that year, the Troop was reactivated by several parents. The group was sponsored by the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department until January 2005, then the Bethel United Methodist Church in Mtn. Lake Park began to charter the Troop and remains in that position today. The church is the meeting location for Troop 31.

Bob Orr is the Scoutmaster. The boys have engaged in a number of projects in and around Garrett County. They improved or established the following: the playground at Pine Grove Church of the Brethren, the outdoor classroom for Dennett Road School, a youth center at Oak Dale Church of the Brethren, a walking trail at Yough Glades School, a playground and barbecue pit at Bethel United Methodist Church, an arboretum classroom at Dennett Road School, the Oakland walking trail bridge, landscaping at Crellin United Brethren Church and St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, and assisted with construction of a playground at Crellin School.

Troop 53 of Grantsville was founded by John Carey. The Scoutmaster is Terry Hillegas. The boys meet on Sundays at 6 p.m. at St. John's Church in Grantsville.

The boys engage in a host of activities, including backpacking during the summer months and attending the National Jamboree. They are known for their french fry booth at the annual Grantsville Days celebration. They average 2,000 pounds of fresh-cut french fries each year. Cub Scout Pack 49 assists Troop 53 with the booth each year.

This troop has produced 10 Eagle Scouts in the past eight years.

Troop 49

Troop 49 in Grantsville is headed up by Scoutmaster Ray Uphold. The boys meet every Tuesday in the basement of the American Legion building in Grantsville. They participate in Camp Potomac, and provide clean-up help during Grantsville Days.

The boys also cut wood for local families in need, and work on community service projects throughout their town and surrounding area.

Troop 57

Troop 57 is located in Swanton. (No more information was received from the troop.)

There are numerous Cub Scout packs in the county, as well as Webelos, Wolf, and Tiger dens.

Gary Yoder

suddenly on Nov. 29, 2009, was DNR's first manager of Deep Creek Lake and later worked extensively in land acquisition and planning. The Carrie Dixon parcel was DNR's first acquisition for public boating and fishing access on the North Branch of the Potomac River.

"If I know my father as well as I think I do, I know he would be proud of this honor," said Garrett Yoder, Gary's 14-year old son. "He put everything into his work, and now I'm happy that there is a way for everybody to know the important work he's done."

The education center at King's Landing Park in Calvert County will be named the Tom Wisner Hall at King's Landing Park. Known as "Bard of the Bay," Wisner has been raising awareness among children and adults through folk music for the past 40 years about the spirit, beauty, and human connection to the Chesapeake Bay. In 2002, the World Folk Music Association gave him the John Denver Award.

"Tom was Maryland's first official environmental educator, who has connected generations of school children to the Bay through music, art, and poetry, and whose footsteps thousands of us continue to follow. Tom is a true hero of the Bay," said Chesapeake Bay Foundation vice president for education Don Baugh.

The Nature Center at Janes Island State Park in Somerset County will be named for Ranger Julie Schweikert. An 18-year Maryland Park Service veteran, Schweikert worked first as a naturalist, then as park manager until her untimely death in 2009 at the age of 43.

"Julie had a passion for providing interpretive programming for local school children and park visitors," said MPS superintendent Nita Settina. "She touched the lives of thousands of young environmental stewards through her passion for getting kids involved with their natural world."

"The passion and dedication of Tom, Julie, and Gary have long-inspired our DNR family," said Secretary John Griffin. "It is our honor to be able to recognize them – their spirit and their remarkable contributions – in this way."

Virginia Man Arrested On CDS Charges

Garrett County sheriff Gary Berkebile, spokesperson for the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force, announced the arrest of a Virginia man Monday for controlled dangerous substance violations.

Members of the NTF, assisted by Garrett County sheriff's deputies and troopers from the Maryland State Police McHenry Barrack, conducted a routine K-9 scan of the Garrett College dorms, McHenry. The NTF routinely collaborates with staff and administration of Garrett College to help provide a drug-free environment for students and the community.

As a result of the scan a positive alert was given on a dorm room in the residence hall. Quovone DeAngelo Davis, 20, Norfolk, was arrested after an investigation was performed on his room. A total of nine bags of suspected marijuana were recovered totaling approximately ½ lb. One of the bags had 33 individually wrapped bags of suspected marijuana packaged for resale.

Davis is charged with possession with intent to distribute marijuana, possession of marijuana, and possession of CDS paraphernalia. He was released from the Garrett County Jail on $2,500 bond.

A spokesperson for the college stated that the college does not condone this type of behavior and feels very fortunate that the college has support from the Narcotics Task Force to help maintain a drug-free campus for the students.

Suspected Shoe Show Robber Now In Custody

Authorities have arrested the man believed to be responsible for the November robbery of Shoe Show, Oakland.

Gary Ross LaTray, 51, Syracuse, N.Y., was arrested last Friday by the West Virginia State Police in Buckhannon, W.Va. He is also suspected in at least five other robberies of banks and retail stores in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Virginia. He had been living in the Buckhannon area since November 2009.

LaTray was taken to the Tygart Valley Regional Jail in Randolph County, Residents Warned Of Possible Poor Bus Stop Conditions

Parents, guardians, and students are reminded to practice caution, preparedness, and resolve in anticipation of less than ideal bus stop conditions, according to Garrett County Public School personnel.

Students who reside in locations that may present a challenge for bus turning or maneuvering are asked to be patient upon the return to schools. The Transportation Department asks that any foreseeable obstacles for bus travel be reported. Parking lots and school entrances have been cleared to promote clear accessibility and visibility for buses, and snow has been removed from some school roofs where there were concerns.

"Your child's education and safety are our top priority," stated a Transportation Department spokesperson.

LANDON'S LIBRARY BENEFITS FROM BANK'S FUNDRAISER – First United Bank & Trust garnered more than $4,300 for Landon's Library during a monthlong community fundraising initiative. More than 25 participating Garrett County businesses allowed the bank to place boxes at their locations to collect donations for Landon's Library. A local nonprofit venture, Landon's Library provides age-appropriate books to all children in Garrett County until their fifth birthday. The bank matched the first $1,000 raised in the campaign. "We were delighted by the Garrett County business community's enthusiasm for this fundraising effort," said Phil Rodeheaver, First United market president. "Our local businesses understand the value that nonprofits provide to our fellow citizens and were eager to help. 'My Bank' is grateful to all those who were able to donate or collect donations for Landon's Library. We are confident that the results of this fundraising initiative will help Landon's Library reach more of its goals and be able to continue to bring the resource of books to our community." Pictured, left to right, are Crystal Roberson-Boal and Brian Boal, Landon's Library representatives, receiving the check from Rodeheaver.

They organized a relief drive for that nation following the recent devastating earthquake. Churches and volunteers in the tri-state area have been supporting the Hipps' efforts by donating clothing, medical supplies, and other urgently needed items. Several more collections are planned for the Oakland area. More information is available online at haitihope.net. Photo courtesy of Paul Durham.

NEGOTIATION OPENS DOORS

Let's say you have a "For Sale" sign in your yard. A car stops in front, and a friendly couple knocks at your door. They saw your sign and ask to see your home. You show them through, give them your price, and answer a few questions. They say they'll be in touch and leave in less than fifteen minutes.

Two days later, they call back to ask if you will take a lower price. If you say, "Yes!" you've just given away some of your equity. If you say, "No!" you may lose them completely. Having spent less than fifteen minutes with them, how do you know which approach is right for you?

Before you become a "by owner," consider one of the greatest benefits offered by a real estate representative - negotiating power. Long before arriving at your home with buyers, your agent will have learned the buyers' motives, objectives and dreams. The agent will have discussed their financial abilities, and may even have helped them obtain a mortgage commitment - all before they ever set foot in your home.

Once in your home, the agent is able to overcome objections by pointing out offsetting benefits. Because the agent has no emotional attachment to the home, buyers will express their concerns more openly. Avoid giving up your precious equity. Choose an agent to negotiate on your behalf.

If you are thinking of buying or selling a home but feel "out of touch" with real estate, give me a call today.

Ruth Enlow Library To Celebrate Dr. Seuss' Birthday In March

The Ruth Enlow Library invites the community to celebrate Read Across America and the birthday of Dr. Seuss with activities at all library locations during the month of March.

Read Across America, an initiative of the National Education Association, is an annual reading motivation and awareness program that calls for every child in every community to celebrate reading on March 2, the birthday of children's author Dr. Seuss.

"Motivating children to read is an important factor in student achievement and creating lifelong successful readers," notes the NEA web site. "Research has shown that children who are motivated and spend more time reading do better in school."

Recognizing the importance of enhancing children's reading skills, Maryland's governor Martin O'Malley is launching a statewide program encouraging students, parents, and teachers to share the experience of reading 30 minutes for 30 days during March in the Read Across Maryland Challenge.

To support this program, the Ruth Enlow Library has planned several reading events, along with promoting individual quiet reading.

Calendars to track a child's reading (or being read to by someone else) for March are available at all locations of the library and also from the Read Across Maryland web site at www.readacrossmaryland.org and the library's web site at www.relib.net.

The reading can be done anywhere, and anyone can sign the child's calendar. Children will receive stickers for each day marked with 30 minutes of reading, which can be in segments through out the day. They can present the calendars to a library staff member at any time during the month to receive the stickers.

Any child who reads for at least 20 days will receive a free book upon presenting the calendar at the end of the month. The Garrett County Education Association has contributed funds for the purchase of these books.

In addition to the local library incentives for reading, the Read Across Maryland program is sponsoring a contest for meeting the challenge to read 30 minutes for 30 days. Details can be found at the Read Across Maryland web site listed above.

The Oakland Library will celebrate Dr. Seuss' birthday on Monday, March 1, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to come to hear guest readers share two of Dr. Seuss' most popular works: Richard Stevens, principal of Kitzmiller Elementary School, will read The Cat in the Hat and Steve Knepp, kindergarten teacher at Dennett Road Elementary School, will read Oh, The Places You'll Go!

Children can participate in several Dr. Seuss activities including creating an edible "Cat in the Hat" hat, balancing and rhyming games, and other crafts. Children age 8 and under are welcome to attend in their pajamas.

On Tuesday, March 2, at Oakland, children can celebrate Dr. Seuss' birthday with a book and movie from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Keela Pfaff, children's specialist, will read one of Dr. Seuss' many books, followed by a showing of a children's movie based upon a Dr. Seuss book. "Living To Serve" Grant Awarded To Northern FFA

The National FFA Organization recently awarded more than $400,000 in rural youth development grants to 65 chapters across the country, including Northern High School's.

"The 'Living to Serve' grants will continue the outreach to rural youth and will support service-learning projects that impact local community needs," noted a National FFA spokesperson.

To be eligible for this grant, FFA members must live in a rural area and submit a competitive proposal for a service-learning project that successfully addresses a local issue or need.

Northern FFA received $5,000 to fund its project. The chapter plans to renovate/expand the school's Tim Umbel Nature Trail. The funding will be used to establish a handicapped accessible gravel walkway, create an outdoor learning lab, and renovate a wetland area.

The trail is currently overgrown and has not been used in about four years. Chapter advisor Richard McCrobie noted that the trail was "torn up" during renovation work at Northern Middle School.

The primary goal of the project is to create the outdoor learning lab, which will be used not only by Northern High and Northern Middle school students but hundreds of other students who utilize the nearby Hickory Environmental Education Center.

The secondary goal of the project is to increase physical activity in the community. Currently, about 100 people use the Northern High track for walking, according to the spokesperson.

Living to Serve grants are administered by USDA's National Institute for Food and Agriculture through the National FFA Organization, which is headquartered in Indianapolis, Ind. More information is available at ffa.org/ltsgrants.

Preston County Farm Service Agency Reports

ADDITIONAL ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS NOTED FOR MAL'S AND LDP'S.

USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) and the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) have finalized a data-sharing process for average Adjusted Gross Income (AGI) compliance and verification. This information will be used by FSA to determine compliance with the average AGI limitations for participants of 2009 and/or 2010 programs subject to AGI compliance.

Producers are now required to complete the 2009 and/or 2010 Consent to Disclosure of Tax Information Form either for an individual (CCC-927) or for a legal entity (CCC-928) and mail the completed form directly to the IRS within 60 calendar days of the signature date. Completed CCC-927s and CCC-928s are not submitted to the FSA office.

Participants who choose not to complete Forms CCC-926 (Average Adjusted Gross Income [AGI] Statement}, CCC-927, or CCC-928, as applicable, will be determined to not be in compliance with the AGI limitations for the 2009 and 2010 crop years.

For crop years 2009 through 2012, Marketing Assistance Loans (MALs) and Loan Deficiency Payments (LDPs) are available to eligible producers. An eligible producer is defined as a person or entity who has complied with eligible annual program requirements which include: (1) reporting acreages for all crops produced; (2) completing Form AD-1026 (Highly Erodible Land Conservation [HELC] and Wetland Conservation [WC] Certification); and (3) completing Form CCC-926.

Forms CCC-926, CCC-927, or CCC-928 (as applicable) are not needed at the time the MAL is disbursed, but are required at the time the MAL is repaid, under marketing loan gains. The forms are required at the time an LDP is requested, as well.

Forms CCC-926, CCC-927, and CCC-928 are available at the FSA office, located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza (telephone 304-329-1923).

Funds Available To Assist With Livestock Losses

Local livestock owners are reminded that the Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP) provides assistance for livestock deaths that result from natural disasters.

According to Mike Kozier, county executive director for the Garrett County Farm Service Agency, LIP compensates livestock owners and contract growers for livestock death losses in excess of normal mortality because of adverse weather. This includes losses from hurricanes, floods, blizzards, disease, wildfires, extreme heat, and extreme cold.

To be eligible, the notice of loss must be submitted within 30 calendar days of when the loss of livestock was apparent to the producer. It must be presented to the local FSA service center that maintains the farm records for one's business.

USDA bases the LIP national payment rate for eligible livestock owners on 75 percent of the average fair market value of each type of livestock.

Applicants must provide adequate proof that the eligible livestock deaths occurred as a direct result of an eligible adverse weather event. The quantity and kind of livestock that died as a direct result of the eligible disaster event may be documented by verifiable and reliable documentation or third-party certification.

For more information on applying and providing acceptable proof of loss, persons may contact the Garrett County Farm Service Agency at 301-334-6954.

Agronomy Crop Workshop Slated In Oakland Area

The Garrett County extension office will hold an agronomy workshop for farmers who grow corn, soybeans, and small grains on Tuesday, March 2, at the Pleasant Valley Community Center south of Oakland beginning at 9 a.m.

Dr. Robert Kratochvil will discuss production practices related to corn and soybean rotations. Since farmers in Garrett County are now planting more and more acres of soybeans, he will discuss what this means for rotations and nutrient management.

Kratochvil has years of experience in working with farmers in the central and eastern counties of Maryland with corn and soybean rotations. He will also discuss the benefits of no-till for corn and soybean production.

Dr. Arv Grybauskas will present information on what to watch for in soybean diseases. He will discuss the growth stages of soybeans, what diseases can be problematic, and what to consider for treatments.

Dr. Ron Ritter will discuss the effectiveness of many of the new herbicides that are on the market for corn, soybeans, and small grains. He conducts annual research with chemical companies throughout Maryland to determine which of the chemicals works best under varying conditions.

Dr. Wes Musser will discuss crop insurance options for farmers planting corn and soybeans.

There will also be a presentation on nutrient management and pesticide safety.

The program offers recertification credits for nutrient applicator vouchers, nutrient management consultants, and pesticide private applicator recertification credits in West Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania.

To register for the workshop, persons may contact the extension office at 301-334-6960. The cost of the program is $10, which includes lunch.

Westernport Man Found Guilty Of CDS Possession, Driving On Revoked License

In recent Garrett County District Court proceedings, Scott Ernest Whetzel Jr., 22, Westernport, was found guilty of controlled dangerous substance (CDS) possession not marijuana and of driving a motor vehicle on a revoked license and privilege charges He was sentenced to four months, to be served concurrently.

Garrett County sheriff's officers and members of the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force conducted a traffic stop of Whetzel in October 2009 for traffic violations. Officers made contact with Whetzel, who produced an Allegheny Power bill for his registration and could not produce a driver's license. He stated his name was Jeremy Whetzel. While officers spoke with him, a K-9 scan of the vehicle was conducted. The scan produced a positive alert for the presence of the odor of drugs coming from the vehicle.

As Whetzel exited the car, he reached into his pockets to empty them and pulled out a driver's license, which he immediately put back into his pocket. He was ordered to hand it over to officers, and it revealed his first name to be Scott.

A search of the vehicle was conducted and revealed an empty capsule with heroin residue, a cigarette pack containing five capsules of heroin, two aluminum foil folds with heroin, three suboxone pills, a piece of paper with suboxone crushed up, and a bent spoon used for cooking CDS for ingestion.

A check through the West Virginia DMV also revealed that Whetzel's license was revoked. He was subsequently placed under arrest. He was not prosecuted on charges of CDS possession of paraphernalia, failure to stop at a stop sign, driving a vehicle in excess of a reasonable and prudent speed, and giving a false and fictitious name to a uniformed police officer.

In another court hearing, Glen Lee Green Jr., 43, Accident, was charged with violating a protective order in November 2009 after Maryland State Police responded to an Accident residence for a report of a protective order violation. Green was located at the residence and placed under arrest. His charge was placed on stet with conditions to have no contact with the victim of the protective order.

Angela Sue Chapman, 30, Oakland, was not prosecuted on an October 2009 second-degree assault charge, which stemmed from a dispute with another adult.

Michael Maciolek, 34, Oakland, was not prosecuted for a charge of theft valued at less than $500, stemming from an October 2001 incident.

DUI/DWI HEARINGS

The following driving while under the influence (DUI) and driving while impaired (DWI) cases were heard in Garrett County District Court, with Judge Eiswert presiding.

Forget Something?

Heading out the door? Make sure you didn't forget something! Keys, wallet, laptop, cell phone....is there anything else? What about your Bible?

In our busy world, it is difficult, if not impossible, to remember everything. Our brains are usually in overload mode and just simply short circuit! That is why we must keep the most important things...those that we cannot do without...first and foremost in our minds.

Remember God first, for all of the world's successes cannot bring you happiness without God's peace within you. Mark 8:36 points out, "What good is it for a man to gain the whole world, yet forfeit his soul?"

Won't you carry God with you? Worship Him each week and learn about the important place He occupies in your life. You'll be glad that you didn't forget Him!

Learn to Speak Well!

There are considerable benefits to being able to speak well. People who can present their ideas clearly, persuasively, and with confidence will usually be more successful than those who cannot. This starts with fundamentals like good grammar and a decent education so that you will have something worth saying and be able to say it properly, but then one must work on putting one's thoughts into a concise and persuasive form. This isn't easy, nor is it something one can just decide to do. One has to work at it. Students can join debate clubs and take public speaking classes. Adults can join Toastmasters groups or get involved with church or civic groups that require some form of public speaking. And there are two other things that one needs in order to be a proficient speaker: a robust self-confidence and a positive message. Self-confidence can only come with practice and an on-going positive internal dialogue. You must continuously work on your skills so that your self-confidence is real and not illusory, and you have to continually encourage yourself. But, you also need to have a positive message. If you are going to be God's mouthpiece, you'd better be sure you are speaking God's message, and that requires knowing God's word and living a holy life.

But Moses said to the Lord, ...but I am slow of speech and of tongue. Then the Lord said to him, 'Who has made man's mouth? Who makes him dumb, or deaf, or seeing, or blind? Is it not I, the Lord? Now therefore go, and I will be with your mouth and teach you what you shall speak.

Treatment for This Facial Paralysis

Bell's palsy is a type of facial paralysis. Typically, only one side of the face is temporarily paralyzed, although in rare cases the whole face may be affected. Although the cause is not fully known, a virus may cause damage to the facial nerve, causing it to swell and stop working properly. Signs and symptoms of the condition include twitching, difficulty speaking, and loss of taste. Symptoms typically occur suddenly, and peak in several days. Pregnant women and persons between the ages of 15 and 60 years are more likely to be affected by Bell's palsy. Also, those who have diabetes or Lyme disease may be more likely to be affected. Having a cold or the flu may also increase the risk of experiencing Bell's palsy, as may an infection, such as from herpes simplex virus.

Although Bell's palsy resolves in about 1 to 2 months without treatment, treatments are available to shorten the duration of symptoms. Glucocorticoids taken by mouth, such as prednisone, may be prescribed to be taken for about a week. Prednisone works to decrease inflammation, but it also suppresses the immune system. This medication should be taken within a few days of symptoms. Antiviral medications, such as valacyclovir, may be prescribed to be taken along with prednisone for more severe symptoms.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It was British journalist Jeremy Campbell who made the following sage observation: "Computers are good at swift, accurate computation and at storing great masses of information. The brain, on the other hand, is not as efficient a number cruncher and its memory is often highly fallible; a basic inexactness is built into its design. The brain's strong point is its flexibility."

• In 1911, it became illegal in China to wear a pigtail.

• One of Ernest Hemingway's early English teachers claimed that the future Nobel Prize winner would "never learn to write."

• More from the files of hangover cures from around the world: In Japan, pickled plums are reputed to ease the morning-after ails; in Italy, it's (quite sensibly) coffee. The Chinese drink strong green tea, while in the Netherlands it's the hair of the dog — the Dutch advocate beer as a remedy. Danes eat salt, while Mexicans eat shrimp (I'll take the Mexican remedy any day). Perhaps the oddest remedy is practiced in Russia: Sufferers there head to the sauna, where they proceed to whip out the toxins with leafy birch branches. No word on what they do in winter, when the birches are, presumably, leafless.

• The Dwight D. Eisenhower National System of Interstate and Defense Highways — better known as the Interstate Highway System — is the largest public works project in the history of the world. At 46,876 miles, it's also the world's largest highway system.

• Stephen Foster, known as the Father of American Music, originally got paid a grand total of 2 cents for each of his musical scores that was sold.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 6, 1475, Michelangelo Buonarroti, the greatest of the Italian Renaissance artists, is born. His most important early work was the Pieta (1498), a sculpture that showed the body of Christ in the lap of the Virgin Mary. Demonstrating masterful skill, Michelangelo extracted the two perfectly balanced figures of the Pieta from a single block of marble.

• On March 3, 1873, Congress enacts the so-called Comstock Law, making it illegal to send any "obscene, lewd or lascivious" book through the mails. The law was named after Anthony Comstock, a salesman from Connecticut, who devoted his life to fighting what he perceived as vice, particularly obscenity and gambling.

• On March 4, 1888, Knute Rockne is born in Voss, Norway. He would go on to become one of the most successful coaches in the history of college football. In his 13 years as coach of Notre Dame, he recorded 105 wins, 12 losses and 5 ties for a winning percentage of .881, the highest in the history of college or professional football.

• On March 1, 1897, the Winton Motor Carriage Company is organized in Cleveland, with Alexander Winton as president. A year later, Winton won a race at Daytona Beach, Fla., driving his Winton Bullet to an average speed of 68 mph and becoming the first person to break the mile-per-minute barrier.

• On March 2, 1925, the first nationwide highway numbering system is instituted to minimize confusion. Later, interstate highway numbering would be improved by colored signs and the odd-even demarcation that distinguishes between north-south and east-west travel, respectively.

• On March 7, 1955, the first Broadway play to be televised in color, featuring the original cast, airs. The play was "Peter Pan," starring Mary Martin.

• On March 5, 1963, the Hula-Hoop, a hip-swiveling toy that became a huge fad across America when it was first marketed by Wham-O in 1958, is patented. An estimated 25 million Hula-Hoops were sold in its first four months of production alone. Following the Hula-Hoop, Wham-O produced the Superball, Water Wiggle, Silly String, Slip 'n' Slide and the Hacky Sack.

Q. I have five Hummel figurines that were purchased before World War II. One still has a price tag of $2.98 on its base. How can I find out current values? — Win, Brighton, Mich.

A. Hummel figurines were created by Berta Hummel, a Franciscan nun called Sister M. Innocentia. The first were produced in about 1935 by Franz Goebel of Goebel Art, Inc., in Rodental, Germany. The Hummels produced between 1935 and 1949 are either incised or stamped with the "Crown WG" mark. The "Full Bee in V" mark with variations was not used until after WWII, but is found on most pieces until about 1959.

One of the better guides is M.I. Hummel: Figurines, Plates, Miniatures & More by Robert L. Miller (Portfolio Press, $24.95). Since your figurines are early issues, they might be worth a great deal of money and getting a copy of this book might just be a wise investment.

Latest Grammer lesson: Don't bank on 'Hank'

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Q: What happened to the sitcom "Hank"? It didn't seem to last long. Will it be back? –Tammy Virden, Toronto, Ohio

A: If so, it will return only to burn off the few remaining episodes that weren't broadcast already. ABC canceled the show in November, and title star Kelsey Grammer apparently had anticipated it. Shortly afterward, he told Jay Leno in an on-air interview that he actually had requested the cancellation, because he thought "Hank" wasn't funny enough.

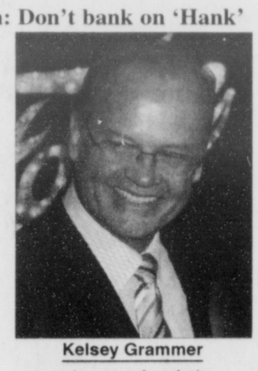
Q: Please tell me who is married to Fergie of the Black Eyed Peas. Is it Josh Duhamel or Cameron Mathison? And who did Josh play on "All My Children," and when did he leave? –Joyce Stoudt, Sinking Spring, Pa.

A: It's Duhamel, who's currently on the big screen with Kristen Bell in the romantic comedy "When in Rome." And the veteran of television's "Las Vegas" and the "Transformers" movies was Leo du Pres on ABC's "All My Children" from 1999 to 2002.

Q: Where is Chris Cuomo? He seems to have disappeared from "Good Morning America." Maybe I missed an announcement. –Mary Ann Bittner, Belleville, Mich.

A: You did. Cuomo became a factor in the recent changing of the guard on the ABC program, since he turned over the news anchor position to Juju Chang when George Stephanopoulos replaced Diane Sawyer as the program's co-host.

Cuomo – a son of former New York Gov. Mario Cuomo and brother of New York At-



Kelsey Grammer

– now shares anchor duties with Elizabeth Vargas on the ABC newsmagazine "20/20" Fridays. He also remains on call to cover breaking stories for ABC News, for which he continues to serve as chief law and justice correspondent as well.

Q: I don't get Showtime. Is there a Web site where I can watch "Henry VIII"? –Don Poulin, Port Saint Lucie, Fla.

A: We assume you mean "The Tudors." Certain episodes can be found at the network's Web site, www.sho.com – but a pay network obviously doesn't want to give away a lot of what it wants you to pay for. Thus, you can find a lot more episode excerpts for free than full episodes (which are available for purchase at iTunes, and also in full-season DVD sets of the series that have been released). The fourth and final "Tudors" season debuts on Showtime April 11.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Garrett County Planning Commission will conduct a hearing concerning proposed revisions to three principal land development ordinances currently implemented by the County. The proposed revisions would affect the following ordinances:

1) Deep Creek Watershed Zoning Ordinance;
2) Garrett County Subdivision Ordinance;
3) Garrett County Sensitive Areas Ordinance

The Date and Time of the Hearing is:
Saturday, March 6, 2010, at 10:00 a.m.

If the above hearing is cancelled due to inclement weather the alternative hearing date is March 11, 2010, at 7:00 p.m.

The Location of the Hearing is:
Garrett College Auditorium

All interested citizens are cordially invited to attend.

Initial preliminary drafts of these three ordinances were released for public review on September 29, 2009, by the Department of Planning and Land Development. The Planning Commission sponsored a public information meeting on the initial draft on October 14, 2009. The Planning Commission has accepted citizen comments submitted at the public meeting and in writing or by e-mail since the public meeting.

Based on the comments received, the Planning Commission has prepared Revised Draft Ordinances that incorporate major changes to the September 29 drafts regarding subdivision policies in the AR (Agricultural Resource) and RR (Rural Resource) land classifications and zoning districts. The Revised Draft Ordinances:

- Allow subdivisions using either a non-cluster option or a cluster option.
- Remove the provisions requiring creation of a resource parcel when subdivision occurs.
- Allow subdivision with a 3-acre minimum lot size.
- Allow subdivision with a one-acre minimum lot size for transfer to children or grandchildren of the lot owner; for subdivision of a parcel less than 20 acres in area; or by waiver, for subdivision of parcels larger than 20 acres if they are primarily surrounded by subdivided lots.
- Provide incentives to promote cluster subdivision as a preferred option.

The Revised Draft of the Deep Creek Watershed Zoning Ordinance also reduces the area of the proposed Scenic Protection Overlay District to include only those areas identified as "Crestline Sub-district" on the initial draft zoning map. Within the Crestline areas, the Revised Draft has eliminated requirements for design, location and screening of buildings. Requirements for preserving and/or planting trees are retained for the sides and rear of structures within the Crestline areas.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the DCW Zoning Ordinance:

1) New Zoning Districts are proposed: Agricultural Resource (AR), Rural Resource (RR) and Lake Residential–2 (LR-2) are new districts intended to preserve rural character and conserve natural resources by limiting residential development to a relatively low average density. Standards for subdivisions in the AR and RR districts are proposed. The Rural Development (RD) district is proposed to be eliminated.
2) A Scenic Protection Overlay District is proposed for those areas identified as Crestlines on the proposed zoning map. This provision is intended to preserve the scenic views of the ridge tops and crest lines surrounding Deep Creek Lake. Requirements for retaining and planting trees on the sides and rear of structures when viewed from the lake and shoreline are proposed.
3) Architectural Standards for non-residential structures in the TC, TR and GC zoning districts for metal buildings are proposed.
4) Provisions, including set-backs, for domestic, agricultural and industrial wind energy devices are proposed.
5) New set-backs for drilling for natural gas are proposed.
6) New provisions for non-conforming structures and grandfathered non-conforming lots are proposed.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the Garrett County Subdivision Ordinance:

1) The Agricultural Resource (AR) and Rural Resource (RR) land classifications are proposed to be expanded and new standards for subdivisions in these areas are proposed.
2) A provision that would allow the Planning Commission to require a Traffic Impact Study for major subdivisions is proposed.
3) A provision to retain trees and other vegetative cover for new subdivisions abutting Scenic Byways is proposed.
4) Provisions to delineate the boundaries of any wetlands or Source Water Protection Areas on subdivision plans are proposed.

The following represents a summary of the most significant policy changes to the Garrett County Sensitive Areas Ordinance:

1) Provisions to protect Source Water Protection Areas are proposed.
2) A provision to limit the exemption from the steep slope requirements to lots of record that are less than four acres is proposed.
3) A provision to prevent construction of buildings on man-made slopes exceeding 30% grade is proposed.
4) A provision to use the Maryland Sensitive Species Project Review Areas map as the indicator for referring applicants to DNR is proposed.

The Revised Draft Ordinances are formatted such that readers will be able to easily compare them with the September 29 drafts. All three Revised Draft Ordinances and related maps are available for public review on the County's website at http://www.garrettcounty.org by clicking on Draft Revisions to Ordinances under News. The revised drafts are also available at the Department of Planning and Land Development office, all branch locations of the Ruth Enlow Libraries and in the main offices of the Crellin, Bloomington, Swan Meadow, Yough Glades and Route 40 public schools.

A $50,000.00 deposit, payable by cashier's or certified check, will be required of the purchaser at time and place of sale. The deposit must be increased to 10% of the purchase price before 3:00 pm on March 10, 2010 in the office of the auctioneer in the form of a cashier's check or certified check. The deposit will not earn interest in the hands of the Substitute Trustees. The Noteholder or its affiliate, if a bidder, shall not be required to post a deposit. Immediately after the sale, the successful bidder shall execute and deliver a contract of sale with the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder, copies of which shall be available for inspection immediately before the sale. The balance of the purchase price shall be paid by a cashier's or certified check, or such other form as the Substitute Trustees may determine acceptable, in their sole discretion, at settlement, which must occur within twenty (20) days following final ratification of the sale of the Property by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, unless such period is extended by the Substitute Trustees, time being of the essence. If payment of the balance of the purchase price does not take place within such period of time aforesaid, in addition to any other legal or equitable remedies available to them, the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder may declare the entire deposit forfeited and resell the Property and the Personal Property at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser. In such event, the defaulting purchaser shall be liable for the payment of any deficiency in the purchase price, all costs and expenses of both sales, attorneys' fees and all other charges incurred by the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder. Purchaser waives personal service of any paper filed in connection with a motion to resell the Property on the purchaser and/or any principal or corporate designee, and expressly agrees to accept service of any such paper by regular mail directed to the address provided by the bidder at the time of the sale. If the Property and the Personal Property are purchased by someone other than the Noteholder, interest shall be paid on the unpaid purchase price at the rate of ten percent (10%) per annum from date of sale to the date of settlement, or such date that funds are received by the Substitute Trustees. There will be no abatement of interest due from the purchaser if additional funds are tendered before settlement or if settlement is delayed for any reason. Taxes, water bills, and all other municipal liens and charges and all other public charges and assessments payable on an annual basis, if any, shall be adjusted to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. Any condominium association fees, assessments or capital contributions payable with respect to the Property shall be adjusted to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser shall pay all settlement costs, including title examination charges, title insurance premiums, county and state recordation and transfer taxes (including all sums payable as a result of the Deed of Trust's status as an indemnity deed of trust) and recording costs. The purchaser shall pay all costs incidental to the conveyance of the Property and the Personal Property. Purchaser shall pay at settlement reasonable attorneys' fees and disbursements incurred in the preparation of the deed of conveyance, the bill of sale and other settlement documentation, including $295.00 to the seller's attorney for review of the settlement documents and an additional fee of $295.00 for review of any motion which may be subsequently filed with the court to substitute a purchaser herein. The purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the Property and the Personal Property. Additional terms may be announced at the time of sale. If the Noteholder or its affiliate is the purchaser of the Property and the Personal Property at the sale, the amount bid at the sale by the Noteholder or its affiliate shall be a credit against the indebtedness secured by the Deed of Trust.

The Property and the Personal Property will be sold and conveyed subject to all encumbrances, rights, reservations, covenants, conditions, restrictions, rights of redemption, rights of entry, easements, agreements of record, notifications and statutory liens, if any, having priority over the Deed of Trust as they may lawfully affect the Property and the Personal Property and subject to all applicable building and zoning code violations, subject to all environmental problems and violations which may exist on or with respect to the Property, and subject to all matters that an accurate survey or physical inspection of the Property might disclose. The Property and the Personal Property will be sold subject to the right of redemption of the United States of America, if such right exists.

The Property is sold specifically subject to the operation and effect of (i) the Declaration of Condominium of Alpine Village Condominium dated December 31, 2002 and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on January 8, 2003 at Liber No. 941, page 249, (ii) Declaration of Reciprocal Easements, Covenants and Restrictions dated December 31, 2002 and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on January 8, 2003 at Liber No. 941, page 294, and (iii) the Amended and Restated Declaration of Condominium of Alpine Village Condominium recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on March 15, 2007 at Liber No. 1294, page 136, as may be amended from time to time.

The Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder reserve the right: (1) to accept or reject any or all bids, (2) to modify or waive the requirements for bidder's deposits and terms of sale and/or settlement; (3) to approve the creditworthiness of any bidder or final purchaser; (4) to withdraw the Property and/or Personal Property from the sale prior to acceptance of the final bid(s); (5) to keep the bidding open for any length of time and (6) to cancel or postpone the sale.

The Property and the Personal Property are sold and conveyed in "AS IS, WHERE IS" condition. Neither the Substitute Trustees, the Noteholder nor any other party make any warranty or representation, either express or implied, of any kind or nature regarding the Property or the Personal Property, including, without limitation, the description, use, physical condition, subdivision, zoning, environmental condition, compliance with applicable laws, ordinances, or regulations, structural integrity, physical condition, condition of the soil, workmanship, habitability, merchantability, or fitness for a particular purpose. The purchaser shall assume the risk of loss for the Property and the Personal Property immediately after the sale.

If the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder are unable to convey the Property and/or the Personal Property as described above, by reason of any defect in the title or otherwise, the sole remedy of the purchaser at law or in equity shall be limited to the refund of the aforementioned deposit. Upon refund of the deposit to the purchaser, the sale shall be void and of no effect, and the purchaser shall have no further claims against the Substitute Trustees or the Noteholder. The conveyance of the Property by the Substitute Trustees to the Purchaser at settlement shall be by deed without covenant or warranty of any kind whatsoever.

DCL Lions Club To Hold Annual Cardboard Derby

The Deep Creek Lake Lions Club will hold its 8th annual Cardboard Box Derby on Saturday, March 20, beginning at 1 p.m. at the Bear Claw Tubing Park, Wisp Resort, McHenry. This event is part of the resort's Beachin' Weekend festivities.

Entries will be judged on design and speed in several age/business categories, with cash prizes awarded to the winners.

In addition to judging, the race will include balloons, T-shirts, food, beverages, and music.

The rules for entries are as follows:

1. Boxes may be constructed only of cardboard, tape, and string.

2. Decorations, painting, and flags are permitted and encouraged.

3. Push-off at the start by a nonrider is permitted.

4. There is no limit to the number of passengers or size of the box.

5. Participants are asked to remove boxes/remnants at the finish of the race.

6. Each entry will run individually against the clock. The clock will stop when the entire entry, including riders, crosses the finish line.

The minimum donation fee to enter the race is $20 for an individual and $150 for a business. Preregistration is encouraged, but on-site registration will take place at the park at 1 p.m. Proceeds benefit the Lions Club Blind Skiers and other programs.

During 2009, the DCL Lions Club spent more than $20,000 serving others. Locally, the club purchases eyeglasses and hearing aids, assists with the printing of Braille publications, supports scholarship books for students at Garrett College, and funds preschool eyesight screening.

On a larger scale, the club helps fund the Wilmer Eye Institute at Johns Hopkins, sends a camper to Camp Merrick for diabetic children, finances Leader Dog training, and assists many other programs.

This year's derby sponsors include Wisp Resort, Rob Michael of State Farm Insurance, Underwater World, SilverTree Marine, Team One, Greenscapes, Deep Creek Marina, High Mountain Sports, Long and Foster, Ridgeview Valley, Railey Realty, Bill's Marine, and Coldwell Banker.

To obtain a Cardboard Box Derby entry form or more information, persons may call Lion Jean at 301-387-8585 or Lion Mary at 301-616-7512.

One may also go to www.wispresort.com, click on "Wisp Events," locate March 20, 2010, on the calendar, and click on "Beachin' Weekend/Cardboard Derby."

READY FOR TAKE-OFF AT THE CARDBOARD BOX DERBY – A wide variety of whimsical creations will be featured at the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club annual Cardboard Box Derby, slated for Saturday, March 20, at Wisp Resort. Pictured are two of last year's entries: a replica of the Red Baron's tri-plane and an Easter basket. Proceeds benefit the club's Blind Skiers Program and other initiatives. See story.

CEO William B. Grant, First United Bank & Trust, has announced the retirement of Robert W. Kurtz after 37 years of service.

"Bob's career spanned nearly four decades, and it was my pleasure to work closely with him for over 30 years," Grant said. 'We will miss his knowledge and experience, as well as his passion for doing the right things, and serving our communities."

Grant added that he was pleased that Kurtz will continue his service on the board of directors.

"First United has been a great place to work throughout my tenure at the bank, " Kurtz said. "Banking has seen a lot of changes over the past four decades, but the board, management, and associates have remained steadfast on delivering the best service and solutions to our customers. I am proud to be associated with First United."

Kurtz began his career with First United in 1972 as a management trainee. In 1973, he was named auditor and promoted to chief auditor in 1974. Cashier was his next promotion that came in 1977, followed by vice president and controller in 1980.

In 1982, he was named senior vice president and cashier, and five years later was promoted to executive vice president and cashier.

Then in 1996, Kurtz was named president and chief operating officer, until 1997 when he was promoted to president and chief financial officer. For the last three years of his career with First United, Kurtz was the president and chief risk officer.

Garrett County, Maryland • Thursday, March 4, 2010 • www.therepublicannews.com

IS THIS REAL? Yes, it is indeed very real, as all Garrett Countians are aware. The snow this winter is relentless, with more than 260 inches, or 22½ feet, having come down so far. The weather is a constant topic of conversation, and residents do wonder at times if anyone in the rest of the state truly understands what has happened up here. The area has garnered some state attention, with news stories in the larger newspapers and a report Tuesday evening on the Baltimore ABC television station. This photo was taken at one of the county's more notorious spots for drifting — near the intersection of Rt. 495 and O'Brien Road. Standing next to the 12-foot drift, helping to give the perspective, is Diana O'Brien. Today's issue contains several weather-related photographs throughout. Photo by Lisa Broadwater.

BOE To Address School Calendar At Next Meeting

The Garrett County Board of Education and superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets will be addressing several weather-related issues at the upcoming board meeting next week, including the make-up process for the already-missed 17 days of school.

"I would anticipate that we will request the 5 waivers days approved from the state," said Teets. "We have some procedural requirements to meet, so it will be next week before we can make a formal request for the waiver days."

As of yesterday, all but four schools (Southern and Northern high schools, Northern Middle School, and Dennett Road Elementary School) were in operation. This past Monday, an assessment was completed on the snow load on the school roofs. Teets commented that there had been no need for concern until last weekend's snow storm. It was determined that snow needed to be removed from portions of the roofs of the above-mentioned schools, as well as Grantsville and Crellin, before students could safely return for class.

Teets contacted the Maryland State Department of Education executive director Dr. David Lever and

DUANE YODER NAMED "2010 MAHC HOUSER OF THE YEAR" – Duane Yoder, president of the Garrett County Community Action Committee, received the 2010 Houser of the Year Award during the Maryland Affordable Housing Coalition's (MAHC) annual meeting last month in Annapolis. This award recognizes an individual who has demonstrated "outstanding" overall achievement in the development of quality affordable rental housing in Maryland. Additionally, this individual is someone who, over the years, has helped to promote and preserve affordable housing opportunities for low-income Marylanders by tackling tough issues and advocating for the affordable housing industry in the state. Yoder has been an industry leader who has advocated for or supported affordable housing for all of Garrett County for many years, according to county administrator Monty Pagenhardt, who attended the conference. "Duane is recognized by his peers from all around the state for his dedication and hard work," said Pagenhardt. "It was very evident to me that Garrett County is a model for every local jurisdiction throughout the state for our affordable housing program and the acknowledgment of Duane for this award was certainly deserving." Pictured, left to right, are Bart Harvey, former chair/CEO of Enterprise Community Partners; Kim Fry, MAHC executive director; Gov. Martin O'Malley; Wallace Scruggs, MAHC board president; Secretary Raymond Skinner, Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development; and Yoder.

Yet Another Storm Hits Local Area; High Winds, Snow Cause Problems

by Renée Shreve

As of 7 a.m. Wednesday, 264 inches of snow has fallen on Garrett County this winter, shattering the previous record of 233.5 inches, which occurred in 2002-2003, according to state highway officials at Keysers Ridge. The measurements were taken at the Mt. Nebo picnic area.

About 2.5 feet fell this past weekend alone, as yet another blizzard hit the area. While this storm's snow totals were not as great as those experienced earlier in February, wind gusts of up to 60 miles per hour created havoc for motorists, road crews, and emergency personnel. Forecasters described local weather conditions as a snow hurricane or snowcane.

"Amazingly, there was only one power outage during this [storm], and that was quickly restored," said Director Brad Frantz, Garrett County Department of Public Safety and Emergency Management. "This situation would have been much worse had there been significant power issues."

Snow started piling up early last Thursday morning, and nearly one foot had fallen by lunch time in some areas. Schools were open, but dismissed three hours early.

An accident involving between 10 to 20 vehicles occurred Thursday afternoon in the westbound lane of I-68 near the Garrett-Allegany county line. According to Garrett County 911 dispatch, the 4:15 p.m. pileup sent five people to the Western Maryland Regional Medical Center in Cumberland. Their injuries were not life threatening, officials said.

Both lanes of the interstate were closed for about four hours following the accident. Eastbound traffic was detoured onto Lower New Germany Road, while westbound motorists had to take the Midlothian Road exit near Frostburg.

High winds and heavy snow continued throughout Thursday night, forcing SHA officials on Friday to declare Garrett County's 40-mile portion of I-68 closed to traffic. SHA stopped westbound vehicles at LaVale.

U.S. Rt. 219 south of Red House and across the West Virginia line was also closed to traffic on Friday.

General roads superintendent Jay Moyer, Garrett County Roads Department, said 95 percent of county roads were blocked by at least one snow drift Friday morning.

"I'm really impressed with the guys and what they accomplished in only a couple of days," Moyer said about his employees.

Road crews had to contend with white-out conditions, mountainous snow drifts, and numerous abandoned vehicles as they plowed roadways, dug out stranded motorists, and assisted with emergencies.

County plow drivers also had to dig out their own trucks after they got disoriented in blinding snow and ran into ditches or snow banks. Crews also had to deal with numerous truck and equipment repairs.

In addition, the county's three road garages handled requests from Garrett 911 to help stranded caregivers reach hospitals, nursing homes, and other destinations. Most of the requests

The Republican Marks 133rd Year On Today's Date

The Republican newspaper officially turns 133 today, March 4. The first issue of the newspaper was published by James Hayden on March 4, 1877. The paper has been produced every week since.

The newspaper was launched by Hayden in that year, and was named in honor of the recently slain Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican president. Hayden was a veteran of the Civil War, having served in the Union Army.

The paper was purchased in 1890 by Benjamin H. Sincell, who published his first issue on his 20th birthday in that year. It has been in the Sincell family since that time, with just four editors in its history: Hayden; B.H. Sincell until 1946, then George Hanst (brother of Elsie Hanst Sincell), who was editor from 1946 until 1977; and then Donald Sincell, editor from 1977 to the present.

The Sincell Publishing Company, located along Second Street in Oakland, currently employs 28 people. The newspaper is published every Thursday, and the company's commercial print shop, also launched by B.H. Sincell, produces a wide range of printed materials.

As the newspaper covers the news of the entire county, the company maintains a satellite office in the Grantsville Plaza.

As the publishing company embarks on its 134th year, the staff wishes to thank the readers, advertisers, and printing customers for their continued support.

Public Safety Office Offers Flood Facts

Flooding may become a major problem in the local area as the large amount of snowfall from February's storms begins to melt.

"We are very concerned about that likelihood as the temperatures warm up beginning this week," said Director Brad Frantz, Garrett County Department of Emergency Management.

With that in mind, the director offers the following flood fact sheet from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA):

DURING A FLOOD

If a flood is likely in your area, you should:

•Listen to the radio or television for information.

•Be aware that flash flooding can occur. If there is any possibility of a flash flood, move immediately to higher ground. Do not wait for instructions to move.

•Be aware of streams, drainage channels, canyons, and other areas known to flood suddenly. Flash floods can occur in these areas with or without such typical warnings as rain clouds or heavy rain.

If you must prepare to evacuate, you should do the following:

•Secure your home. If you have time, bring in outdoor furniture. Move essential items to an upper floor.

•Turn off utilities at the main switches or valves if instructed to do so. Disconnect electrical appliances. Do not touch electrical

Deep Creek Hydroelectric Station To Lower Lake Level; Users Cautioned

The record snow fall in Garrett County could cause a record spring runoff. To avoid serious and potentially damaging high water conditions at Deep Creek Lake and at its dam, the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) has approved a request by Brookfield Renewable Power (owner of the Deep Creek Hydroelectric Station) to draw the lake level down two feet below its permitted March lower limit.

The draw-down, which began on March 1, will take place gradually, with a maximum of 0.5 feet reduction per day.

"Together with MDE, we are doing what we can to anticipate and mitigate the impacts of the spring thaw," said David Barnhart, general manager for Brookfield's Mid-America Operations. "As this winter proves, you never know what Mother Nature will throw at you, and an early, sustained thaw may result in higher than usual water levels."

To a limited extent, Deep Creek Lake levels can be controlled by the hydroelectric station, which operates under a Water Appropriation and Use permit from the MDE. Under the permit conditions, the station uses water to generate hydropower, but keeps lake levels within a defined "rule band" with upper and lower limits.

The lowered water levels beneath the ice cover, combined with warming temperatures, pose unpredictable risks to recreational users of Deep Creek Lake.

"People should remember that there are always hazards to recreating on naturally-formed ice," said Carolyn Mathews, manager of the Deep Creek Lake Recreation Area. "Lowering the lake to make additional storage space for the anticipated above-normal spring runoff may destabilize the lake's ice. We urge everyone to take special care to stay safe."

The MDE, Brookfield, and the Department of Natural Resources are continuing to monitor the lake levels and weather conditions to determine whether additional actions for safety

Donations Sought For Local Family Displaced By Fire

Donations are currently being accepted for Kurt Wilt, Ty Taber, and their 11month-old son Lorenzo, who lost all their possessions in an apartment fire at the Avilton Inn near Grantsville last Friday.

Volunteers from the Grantsville, Eastern Garrett, Bittinger, Shaft, Clarysville, and Deep Creek fire departments responded to the 12:59 a.m. blaze at 8467 Avilton Lonaconing Road. No additional information about the fire was received.

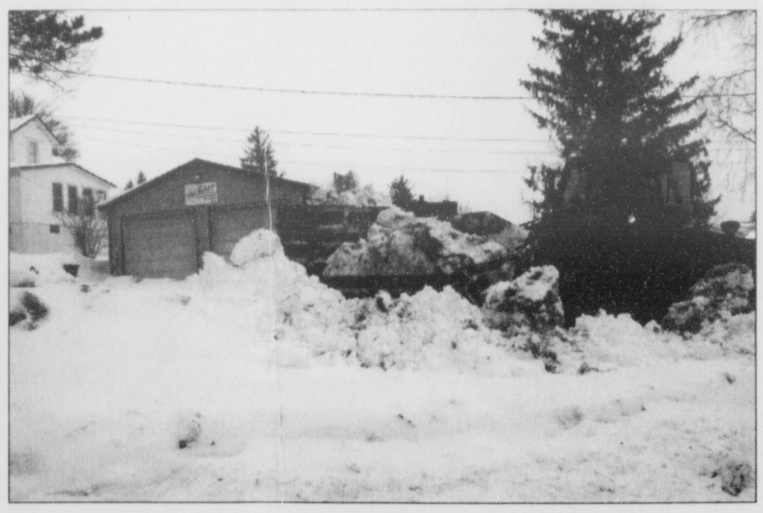
Monetary donations, clothing, and furniture would be appreciated. The baby wears size 18 months or 2T clothing.

Donations can be dropped off at the home of Sherry Wiley, 117 Miller Street, Grantsville. For more information, persons may call Sherry at 301-895-5141.

The family is currently being served by the Warm the Children program.

YES, THEY REALLY DID IT! Despite terrible weather on Saturday, more than 400 people made it to Uno's at Deep Creek Lake, donned their various costumes or skimpy swimsuits, and took the plunge for the annual Deep Creek Dunk. More than 500 registered dunkers could not make it to the location, as the wind and snow closed many county and state roadways. The Maryland State Police, a co-host of the event, cautioned motorists to stay away unless they had four-wheel-drive vehicles. But even with the adverse conditions, the brave (and slightly senseless?) group of 400+ ran into the muddy, frigid water, thus earning more than $130,000 for the Special Olympics of Maryland. Photo provided by Donny Boyd, with assistance by Pam Trickett.

MORE THAN 20 ROOF COLLAPSES or partial collapses have occurred recently because of massive snow loads in Garrett County, including this one that happened at Thomas Tires and Accessories on Sunday in Rosedale. Director Brad Frantz, Garrett County Department of Public Safety and Emergency Management, is requesting any business or individual citizen who had significant uninsured property damage this winter season contact his office as soon as possible at 301-334-7619 or by e-mail at bfrantz@garrettcounty.org. Photo by Lisa Rook.



GARRETT COUNTY GETS A HELPING HAND, OR THREE – Local resident Erica Mowbray snapped these photos and numerous others on Sunday showing the county's massive snow accumulation and cleanup efforts following the most recent snow storm. National Guard, State Highway Administration, and Maryland Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) personnel assisted local towns, the county roads department, and residents throughout the storm and its aftermath. See story for details. Pictured above is a National Guard task force team on a Loch Lynn street, left, and widening an intersection there, right. Below, is a Guardsman working in Deer Park. Mowbray is MEMA's regional administrator. Director Brad Frantz, Garrett County Department of Public Safety and Emergency Management, said Mowbray has been "invaluable" in providing assistance because of her expertise and first-hand knowledge of the county's situation.

GCHD To Offer Limited Supply Of Chicken Pox Vaccine For Free

by Diane Lee, public information officer

The Garrett County Health Department is offering a limited supply of chickenpox vaccine free of charge to the general public. Anyone interested in receiving the chickenpox vaccine may call Personal Health at 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111 to schedule an appointment.

Chickenpox is a common childhood disease. It is usually a mild disease, but may be serious at times, especially in young infants and adults. The chickenpox virus spreads primarily from person to person through the air or by direct contact with the fluid from the chickenpox blisters. A person who has contracted the disease may experience the following:

•A rash, itching, fever, and tiredness.

•The chickenpox virus can cause skin infections, scarring, pneumonia, brain damage, or death in more serious cases.

•A person who has had the chickenpox in the past may also develop a painful rash known as shingles in later years.

The chickenpox vaccine is important to get because most people who get the chickenpox vaccine will not get chickenpox. But if they do, the symptoms are usually milder, resulting in fewer blisters and a faster recovery time. The recommended chickenpox vaccine schedule is as follows:

•Children 12 to 15 months of age (one dose of vaccine) and a second dose at age 4 to 6 for entry into daycare or school. The second dose may be administered at an earlier age as long as the interval between the first and second dose is greater than three months.

•Children who have received only one dose of vaccine and have not had chickenpox infection should receive a second dose. This should be given at least three months after the first dose.

•Persons 13 years of age and older who have not had chickenpox and are at high risk for exposure (for example, living in a household with children; teachers; institutional residents and staff; college students; international travelers), or persons who have close contact with those at high risk for complications from chickenpox should receive two doses of vaccine, four to eight weeks apart.

Getting chickenpox vaccine is much safer than getting the chickenpox disease. Most people who get the chickenpox vaccine do not have any problems with it. Reactions are usually more likely after the first dose than after the second dose. The following individuals should ask their doctor before getting the vaccine:

•Those who have had a life-threatening allergic reaction to a previous dose of the chickenpox vaccine or to gelatin or the antibiotic neomycin;

•People who are moderately to severely ill at the time the shot is scheduled;

•Pregnant women should wait until after they have given birth to receive the vaccine;

•Anyone who has a medical condition or is taking medications that affect their immune system should talk with their health care provider first; and

•Anyone who has received a transfusion or was given other blood products should also consult with his/her provider before receiving the chickenpox vaccine.

The board of Garrett College announced that it is inviting nominations for the award for Outstanding Contributions to Garrett College. This award is typically given at Garrett's commencement ceremony in the spring. Any member of the community may submit a nomination, and all nominations are encouraged.

Two Drivers Cited In Minor Auto Accidents

Two minor vehicle accidents were investigated by Garrett County sheriff's deputies last week. The following incidents are unrelated. Both resulted in no injuries.

Public agenda topics to be discussed will include action on Board Policy 345.2, Physical Education and Athletic Programs for Students with Disabilities, and the Maryland School Performance Recognition Program. Informational items will be the class of 2010 HSA graduation update, Race to the Top, the proposed graduation date, and an update on the school calendar. The FIRST LEGO League Fiery Snowbricks team will be recognized at the meeting.

Time is set aside again at 7 p.m. for public comment and participation on any topic. The public is invited to attend.

"WHAT THE HECK HAPPENED TO MY FRONT YARD?" Petey seems to be wondering. Oakland resident Rick Kutchman makes sure this canine is well taken care of, but the Garrett County Humane Society reminds everyone to provide plenty of fresh water, food, and adequate shelter for their animals at all times, especially during winter weather. "Make sure your pets can find warm shelter and get to their food and water dishes in this deep snow," added president Lisa Baker.

County Resident Delivers Gift Boxes To Children In Ecuador

by Brenda Ruggiero

A plastic shoebox filled with gifts recently made its way from Garrett County to Ecuador, as mentioned in a previous issue of The Republican.

The box was personally taken by Debbie Welch of Oakland, who is the area coordinator for Operation Christmas Child (OCC). OCC is the largest ongoing project of the ministry Samaritan's Purse.

Welch originally served as relay coordinator for about 10 years, and was asked to be area coordinator in June 2008. In that role, she is responsible for developing and leading a team of volunteers from seven counties in the Keyser, W.Va., panhandle. They include Garrett, Allegany, Pendleton, Grant, Hardy, Hampshire, and Mineral.

"I help equip them to share the joy and hope of Jesus Christ through Operation Christmas Child," she said. "At our team meetings, we are able to share our goals for our area and encourage one another to fulfill the calling that God has given us for this ministry.

"The volunteers help in sharing the passion that we each have about OCC with community groups, churches, schools, and individuals in our area. The different areas of ministry are community relations, church relations, prayer, media, and collection. We are continuing to develop this team as the Lord calls others to serve him through the ministry of OCC. I attend several trainings a year as area coordinator, and have the opportunity to meet people from all of the U.S. who share the heart for the shoeboxes as I do."

Current members are Carolyn Livengood, community relations coordinator; Linda Glotfelty, church relations coordinator; Ross Glotfelty, media relations coordinator; and Trina Kesner, collection center coordinator. Other team members are Dottie Sines, Marilyn Diller, and Cheryl Marple. Relay center coordinators are Evie Maust, Cindy Sites, Rosemary Shrout, Shirley McKenney, Gerald Lewis, Kris Stump, and Donna Evic.

Anyone who would like more information about the ministry or who is interested in volunteering yearround may call Welch at 301-334-9468.

"My desire and prayer for the ministry of OCC is that more and more people will see the power of this ministry in the lives of children who may not otherwise hear of the love of Christ," Welch said. "We want to continue to add team members who sense God's call on their life as they become a part of the ministry.

"I would love to see the Lord open the doors to be able to generate 100,000 new shoeboxes for 2010 by our team sharing this vision with churches in our area so that they can then share it with their family and friends around the U.S. I see the Lord's hand in this ministry, and I don't want to miss anything that he has for me."

Welch noted that she has been personally blessed by serving in the ministry.

"Serving with Samaritan's Purse through Operation Christmas Child has been and continues to be such an honor for me," she said. "It is my calling in life and I love it. It has been a wonderful blessing as I understand how a simple shoebox gift can change the life of a child in another country. Something as common as a box of crayons can bring such joy to a child's heart.

"But much more important than a shoebox gift, these children are introduced to the greatest gift of all...our Savior, Jesus Christ."

Along with the box, the children receive a booklet in their language called "The Greatest Gift of All." The booklet is written in over 70 languages.

Currently, shoebox gifts are collected from 13 countries: Australia, Austria, Canada, Finland, Germany, Hong Kong, Ireland, New Zealand, the Netherlands, Spain, the United Kingdom, and the United States.

National Collection Week is held in November. In 2009, the United States collected 5,198,657 shoeboxes, and 8,125,047 were collected internationally. These gifts are then sent through a processing center to make sure that appropriate items are being sent to the children. They are then distributed in 105 countries. Although some boxes are delivered between Thanksgiving and Christmas, most boxes are delivered after Christmas.

Each year, OCC takes area coordinator volunteers on shoebox distributions to experience firsthand how the gifts, gospel literature, and children's programs impact the lives of children in over 100 countries.

Welch was recently invited to go on a distribution trip to Ecuador, and left on Jan. 31. Approximately 80 people from all over the United States went on the trip, which included two shoebox distributions each day in Manta, Ecuador.

THIS BOX OF GOODIES was packed by writer Brenda Ruggiero and hand-delivered to Ecuador by Debbie Welch of Oakland, who is the area coordinator for Operation Christmas Child. The recipient was 16-year-old Ariana Elizabeth Cedeno Intriago, who e-mailed "a thousand thank-yous" for the gift. See feature story.

They also participated in the construction of a surgical clinic in Portoviejo, which is being built for disabled Ecuadorian children who are in need of surgical attention and lack the resources to fund their surgeries.

"It was hard to take in all of the sights and sounds of something that is so different from what I am used to," Welch said. "The countryside is very poor, with lots of little shacks here and there. I was surprised that I didn't see yards or grass along the roads. It seemed that everything was dirt. About 38 percent of the population in Ecuador live in poverty, and there are approximately 4.5 million children under the age of 14.

"It was hard to imagine that they live like that all of the time, and that they don't have the many conveniences that we take for granted."

Welch noted that the people in Ecuador were generous and welcoming. Each team had two or three interpreters, which allowed them to communicate.

"I didn't know how beautiful the children would be and how much we would enjoy seeing all of their smiles as they opened their gifts," she said. "Laughter and smiles are the same in every language."

While most of the boxes the group delivered were gifts packed by churches, children, schools, and groups from all over the United States, Welch personally took several boxes from Garrett County, including one from her Sunday School class and one from The Republican packed by writer Brenda Ruggiero.

As the boxes were distributed, the children waited until each had received one. Then they opened them together on the count of three.

"It was amazing to see them be so excited and so full of joy as they looked in their boxes at the new toys, crayons, pencils, dolls, hats, and whatever else may have been packed in the box," Welch said. "At the last distribution, I gave a shoebox that I had taken with me from my Sunday School class, and the little girl's name was Deborah. We saw time and time again how God put the right child with the right box."

On the bus ride back to where the hospital was being built, Welch decided to give the gift box from The Republican to a teenage girl who was riding the bus with her mother.

Ariana Elizabeth Cedeno Intriago is 16 years old, and was not expecting to get a box because she was older than most children who receive them. However, her 10-year-old brother Moses already had one.

Welch was also able to get Ariana's e-mail address, and Ruggiero was able to correspond with her after translating the e-mails to Spanish through an online program.

"The truth is that I never thought I would receive a box since they were for the children," Ariana said. "I thank God for having the opportunity to receive one. I liked it very much... I loved all the things inside the box. I have the plush (stuffed animal) in my (room), and all the persons who see it like it very much. Thanks for the box. It is beautiful, and whenever I open it, I remember you."

When she saw the younger children receive the boxes, Ariana said that she could "see in the face of every child the happiness and importance" of being given the presents.

"One asked me why they are doing this for us," she said. "I answered him that it is because God loves you, and you are important to God. They want you to know the gift that God sent for you, and that was to send Jesus to save you from your sins."

Ariana stated that her father is a chauffer and her mother is a nurse. She said that she loves school and enjoys her friends there. She has a computer, but has to go to a "cyber" for Internet access.

She dreams of having a family, and is waiting for God to bring a special boy into her life.

"Before making a decision, I always ask God what I should do," she said.

For now, she has devoted herself to composing songs and learning to sing more professionally. She noted that she likes living in Ecuador, where the climate is very warm. However, when she learned of the snow Garrett County has received, she said that she would love to visit, since it is very hot where she lives.

Welch reported that her accommodations were very good throughout the trip. On their last day, they visited the Equator and ate at a restaurant there. She was adventurous enough to order cuy.

"It's a great big guinea pig that's roasted, and the whole thing is on the plate," she explained. "It was my most unusual meal. I tasted it, but I didn't eat the whole thing. It had kind of a fishy taste."

On the last night of the trip, Welch noted that the group had the opportunity to meet one of the men who was responsible for the killing of five missionaries in Ecuador 54 years ago. The incident was depicted in the movie End of the Spear.

"Mincaya and his wife Umpupra and their grandson spoke to our group, and he shared some of his story with us," Welch said. "He spoke in his native language, then his grandson translated it to Spanish and the other interpreter translated it to English.

"What a powerful story of the grace of God as He transformed these Waornani Indians who had attacked and killed the mis-

Garrett College Students Help Haiti

Garrett College students recently participated in a Help Haiti program, which collected supplies for the victims of January's earthquake. The program was organized by residence life staff as a response to students wanting to do something to help those in need.

"We decided to have the Help Haiti program after one of our residents, Janay Collins, asked us to do it," said Kailee Craig, assistant coordinator of residential services. "She e-mailed me before we got back from winter break and asked if the residence halls could do a donation program for the people in Haiti. After Janay suggested the program, we ran with it."

With the help of students, residential staff set up a donation center in the residential office. They also collected items during residence-life programs held throughout the two-week effort.

"The resident assistants told residents about the drive during their first hall meetings of the semester," said Craig. "After that, people just kept donating."

Students living in the residence halls donated over 100 pounds of clothing, food, and other supplies for those affected by the disaster. The supplies were sent to Feed the Children, a Christian, international, nonprofit relief organization that delivers food, medicine, clothing, and other necessities to individuals, children, and families who lack these essentials because of famine, war, poverty, or natural disaster.

Residential life staff was impressed with the overall response they received from the drive.

"Our student residents have shown not only that they are willing to help when asked, but that they are also ready to take the initiative with charities and ensure that those in need are assisted," said Craig. "I am incredibly proud of the residents' response to this program and how enthusiastic they were to help others."

Students said that they got involved for a variety of reasons, but most simply wanted to help the Haitians in their time of need.

"I wanted to give people hope," said freshman Veronica Addison. "The people in Haiti needed the supplies a lot more than I did. This was my first charity program. It felt good to give back."

GC Foundation Extends Deadline For Applications

The extension previously applied only to the supporting materials (i.e. transcripts, recommendation letters, information from guidance office, etc.) of the application. However, because of the recent inclement weather, the foundation decided to extend the deadline for the applications as well.

"I have been struggling with my weight all of my life. My doctor had told me that exercise and a healthy diet were the key to controlling your weight. I guess I knew he was right, but I usually looked for the easy fix. Crash diets were not successful and led to binging and failure. I came to work at Curves two years ago. I had never been a member before. I fell in love with the ease and flow of the circuit – the fact that the routine and machines are set up for you and you can work at your own pace. Not a Good Trend...

It was on this very day, March 4, 1877, that The Republican came into being, as editor James Hayden rolled off Volume #1, Issue #1. All those responsible for making sure this newspaper hit the streets every week since then have faced a variety of challenges, as have numerous businesses and industries.

It is possible, though, that the biggest challenge to date in those 133 years lies directly in front of those of us here today, that being the very survival of The Republican, even through the next five years. The trend is not a good one for us, with the popular electronic media rapidly assuming the role of dissemination of both news and advertising. More and more newspapers, particularly the large dailies, are in financial trouble, many in the throes of bankruptcy. Some have already disappeared.

Certainly all Americans are hoping that the economy of our nation will recover as quickly as possible, but those of us in this business are wondering if newspapers will be included in that recovery or be left in the dust.

Coupled with that is the possibility that the floundering U.S. Postal Service will cease Saturday home deliveries, which is the latest threat announced just a few days ago. With our publication date being a Thursday, the termination of Saturday delivery will mean that many of our readers will not see their copy until Monday.

The loss of newspapers will also have a severe, negative domino effect throughout many other industries. Suppliers of newsprint, ink, film, printing plates, various chemicals, and a wide variety of printing equipment will all be adversely affected, resulting in the loss of perhaps hundreds of thousands of jobs. Every failed newspaper is also another lost customer to the Postal Service.

However, we want to assure our readers that we will continue to work hard, to try to evolve, and to do all we can to keep The Republican alive well into the future. We know that thousands of people depend on us every week for information about a myriad of topics, events, and issues.

Finally, on this our 133rd anniversary, we extend our heartfelt appreciation to all of our customers – readers, as well as advertisers – for your continued support of our publication and thus the folks who work here. Without all of you, our newspaper would have ceased to exist a long, long time ago.

Letters to the Editor

Writers of letters to the editor are reminded that letters will not be published if they exceed 400 words, do not include contact information, and/or are deemed to be libelous.

To the Editor:

Several months ago I wrote to The Republican about the poor job being done clearing the roads this year compared to last year's effort. Now I would like to change my opinion to "Job well done," and thank the people of the roads dept. for the great job they have done in keeping up with this year's record snowfall.

I know you are used to complaints, but I wanted to let you know that you have restored my faith in you and your dept. Even though funds must be getting tight, you have gone above and beyond, and I hope that the state and federal governments give you the funds you need to replace your deficit.

Charles McLaughlin

To the Editor:

I must praise the members of the Garrett County Roads Dept. for their efforts to keep open as many roads as possible in this awful weather.

These guys have been working 12-hour shifts since the first of February, with no (or very little) time off. They are beyond exhaustion. May they get through the rest of the winter in good health, get some rest, and regain their sanity and strength. The job they have done so far has been amazing.

Thanks!

To the Editor:

In Vol. 132, Issue 51 of The Republican, a letter to the editor states, "Turning your lights on does not use extra gas or energy..." This is patently false; headlights use energy from your car (produced by your battery, which is charged indirectly using the car's gas).

Although I am a proponent of turning your headlights on in inclement weather, I don't think that a statement that is clearly incorrect should be printed in our fine paper. I realize that this was a letter from a concerned citizen, but since this particular concerned citizen also works for The Republican, I believe that she should at least fact check her article before submitting it for publication. Additionally, as stated on the same page, the editor reserves the right to choose which letters are published, and I believe he should be diligent in choosing letters which do not contain blatant factual errors.

On another note, in the same issue's editorial, the editor notes that Denmark's coal consumption "didn't decrease from 1999 to 2007. He then makes the conclusory remark that this is due to the "inefficiency and unreliability of wind turbines."

Was any thought given to the fact that Denmark's energy consumption increased (by 3%, from World Bank statistics) over that same time, and that some other energy source, likely wind power, filled in that gap?

Also, referring to our country's elected officials as "guys" and by their first names is disrespectful. You wouldn't call President Obama "Barack." And even if you do refer to them in an informal tone outside of the publication, you know that you should show respect to them in the news.

Sincerely,
Mark Fisher

Mr. Fisher (Mark?):

While it is true that the writer of said letter probably should have written something like "Turning on your lights uses only minuscule extra gas/energy," such a minor technicality would hardly have changed the point of her letter.

It also seems that you may be a bit "fuzzy" on the difference between a letter to the editor and a factual news article. They are two entirely different "animals," with the former typically containing opinion that need not be challenged by the editor.

Further, if I were writing a news article that involved the county (country?) commissioners, I would certainly not refer to them as Ernie, Fred, and Denny. This was, however, an editorial, and not a news article. (You incorrectly referred to Ms. Vecchioni's letter as an article; second paragraph.)

Finally, I do happen to know the commissioners personally, and doubt that any one of them was offended by my use of their first names. Heck, I might do the same with the president if I knew him personally – not in a news article, but in an editorial. And I wouldn't feel a bit disrespectful doing so.

But ... you are certainly entitled to your opinion about the level of my respectfulness.

To the Editor:

Being one of the few denizens of Garrett County of "Skandanoovian" descent, I offer this bit of humor and perspective, copied from a Time magazine article of Jan. 27, 2003 (year of the "big freeze").

"Sturdy North Dakotans of Scandinavian descent long inured to the cold broke out booster buttons 'Minus 40 Keeps the Riffraff Out!'"

I know of Snow and Thorsen families of Scandinavian descent here in the county. I wonder if there are others. Please contact me (301-334-1386).

To the Editor:

I wish to thank you for including news from Aurora in your web site edition. I am a native of Aurora, but have not actually lived there for 40+ years. Although I live in the neighboring state of Virginia, it does wonders to have "memory jogs" of people and places which I knew so well during my growing-up years. I appreciate your efforts to keep the area news "flowing" to those of us who consider the Oakland (and surrounding W.Va.) areas to be truly our homes. My best to you and your staff!!

P.S. As I grow older, I find my memory is not as good as it used to be. I also find my memory is not as good as it used to be.

To the Editor:

I was in a near-fatal motorcycle accident on March 7, 2009. If things would not have lined up the way they did, I would not be here today.

I have the deepest gratitude that Garrett County is where I live. The people who live here are of a caliber that no one could ever hope to match. If it had not been for the Oakland Volunteer Fire Dept., the Southern Rescue Squad, the doctors and staff of Garrett Memorial Hospital, and not the least, those people who came to my aid in the middle of the road, things could have been very different for me.

Many others helped my family and me more than could be imagined. Numerous churches and people I barely know or know not at all prayed for me and my family to make it through. I thank God every day for the gift he has given me. To live among people that care so much for others is the best gift anyone could ever ask for.

In no way can my words express how much it all has meant to me. All I can do is to say thank you from the bottom of my heart – thank you, everyone.

Joshua P. Sines

To the Editor:

If it were not for our United States soldiers and veterans, many of us would not have the freedoms that we have today. One of them is being able to express my opinion(s) in this newspaper.

For several years, the Deer Park VFW let local musicians bring their instruments in on Friday evenings, pass around a microphone, and pick banjos/guitars, sing, or whatever. They performed various types of music, from country to bluegrass to gospel to polka. Some performed songs that they had written and later recorded.

Some of the observers danced, and the bar was closed off in order to provide "good, clean, family entertainment." Those in attendance ranged from a month old to 90 years. Donations were accepted by the VFW to help pay overhead costs.

But that may all be a thing of the past, and it's sad. Some of the post members don't want to continue to host the "Friday Night Pickin'" anymore. Some want to change it to Wednesday nights.

Many of the people who attend would like to see it continue, but only on Friday nights. Some of the performers work and can't be there in the middle of the week. Some of the children may be in school until the end of June, and some of those in attendance go to church on Wednesday nights. Not only was it nice, it was a good fundraiser for the VFW.

Perhaps the performers and those interested in keeping it going should have a meeting somewhere, put ideas together, and get something going somewhere else. Perhaps there's an empty building somewhere or maybe some organization would donate the use of a facility in order to sell food and take donations (fire hall, rescue squad, or whatever)? Perhaps a cheap admission fee of $2 per person can be charged to help with overhead costs. Those in attendance include a lot of senior citizens, disabled individuals, and families who live on a monthly fixed income, and can't afford to pay an "arm and leg." So let's get movin'.

To the Editor:

The field of social work is vast, complicated, and at times, a mystery. Social workers work in many areas and disciplines.

Most people think of social workers as "the workers who take people's kids away." And certainly that is what is evident in most TV shows, and child welfare is what a lot of new graduates start their professional career in.

However, social workers are also involved in schools, hospitals, nursing homes, home health care, hospice, behavioral health, legal system, family violence agencies, community planning, and politics. Having been asked multiple times, "What are social workers, and what do they do?" my answer is, "It depends."

It depends on where you work, how motivated the client is, what financial resources are available, and how your agency defines your role. So as a social worker who started in child welfare, moved into hospital social work, and now works in behavioral health, my role has changed greatly over the past 23 years. Now with the current economic climate, lack of resources for many and the overwhelming amount of paperwork, it continues to be a challenging career. Some days are incredibly difficult: dealing with the abuse and neglect that happens to children, the frustration in helping people access financial and medical resources, and the bureaucracy of the systems of government.

But it can be very rewarding when you see success and growth in a person who has been struggling. I have been very fortunate to work in Garrett County my whole professional career, and it has been mentioned many times, our community certainly helps those in need. So if you are considering a career in social work, be prepared for a lot of hard work, frustration, and if you're lucky, a great appreciation of success when one of your clients soars.

Sincerely,
Mary Vansickle, LCSW-C

To the Editor:

It is interesting to me how personal experience affects our perceptions. To some the wind turbines on mountaintops are unnecessary, ugly, and damaging. Some see greatly over-sized houses, scattered across mountains and pressing up along roadways, as unnecessary, ugly, and damaging.

Trees, bats, birds, and other critters are harmed for no good reason; unless you are interested in such things as tourist trade, jobs, power, and even the environment of the planet. So happy people visit the greatly oversized houses (don't miss the trees or the bats, apparently), jobs are created, power flows, and we in Garrett County can become proud of what we do to help the planet. Let's trust our elected officials and relax.

About the broken federal government, wouldn't it be nice if our elected officials stopped the lying and posturing. They know and we know that the huge debt was run up under the power of the last Republican administration – passing tax cuts for the rich, funding two wars off budget, not paying for the Medicare drug bill, and more. And, we all know that these bills were passed through the now famous but not much understood reconciliation system.

Now we find out that the Republicans don't think that it is a right of the people to have medical care. I wish they knew the constitution better – where it says that the government is responsible for the well-being of the people.

So now we have the constant campaigning for money and for re-election. Well, why not pass a bill that would fund elections? It's our right and duty to elect them, so let's pay to do just that. And then, let's pass a war tax bill that does not allow us to start wars until there is money to pay for them.

How does it make sense to pay taxes to a government that spends money on destructive activities while it resents spending money on constructive activities to help its own people? Call me old-fashioned, but I'd really like to see more love and less war against humanity.

equipment if you are wet or standing in water.

If you have to leave your home, remember these evacuation tips:

•Do not walk through moving water. Six inches of moving water can make you fall. If you have to walk in water, walk where the water is not moving. Use a stick to check the firmness of the ground in front of you.

•Do not drive into flooded areas. If floodwaters rise around your car, abandon the car and move to higher ground if you can do so safety. You and the vehicle can be quickly swept away.

DRIVING FLOOD FACTS

The following are important points to remember when driving in flood conditions:

•Six inches of water will reach the bottom of most passenger cars causing loss of control and possible stalling.

•A foot of water will float many vehicles.

•Two feet of rushing water can carry away most vehicles, including sport utility vehicles (SUVs) and pickups.

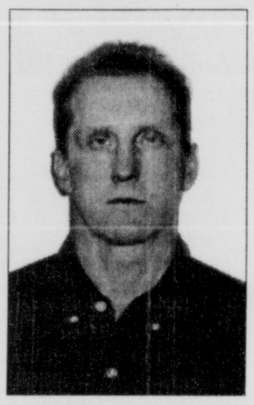
Teagarden Seeks Re-Election To Oakland Council



Sherwin Teagarden has announced his candidacy for a third term on the Oakland town council. The election for the council and mayor will take place on Monday, March 8.

Teagarden has served on the council for the past four years. During that time, he noted, he has assisted in new growth for the town through improvements to the infrastructure, increased landscaping, and additional businesses.

Teagarden said he realizes the importance of continued education and increased knowledge. He graduated from the Academy for Excellence in Local Governance in September 2009 sponsored by the University of Maryland. This distinction provides him a better understanding of the functions of a municipality, he said.

Teagarden has been involved in various organizations throughout his life in Oakland. He has served as a coach for various youth sports, assisted with local community events, and served as president of the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club in 2008-2009.

Sherwin is a lifelong resident of the Oakland area and resides with his wife Val. They have two children and one grandchild. He is a member of Grace Reformed Church.

"Despite the tough economy and recent cuts by the state, Oakland has a lot to offer existing residents as well as those moving into the area," the candidate said. "I want to continue to support this community for future generations to enjoy. Please vote on March 8, 2010."

Jack Rickman Seeking Seat On Oakland Council

Jack Rickman has announced his candidacy for the Oakland Town Council. The municipal election for the council and mayor will take place on Monday, March 8.

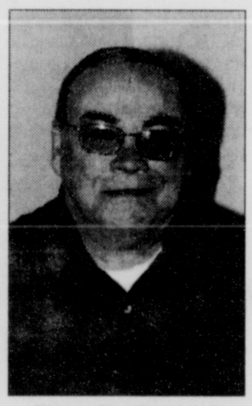
Rickman was appointed to the council some months ago to fill the position vacated by Peggy Jamison, who took over the position of mayor upon Asa McCain's resignation over the summer.

The candidate is retired from the Garrett County Board of Education, starting his local career at the Bloomington School for one year, and then moving to Southern Middle School, where he served as the principal for 33 years.

He is a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church in Oakland. He volunteers one day each week at the church. He has resided in Oakland for 22 years.

"Now that I'm retired and have more time, I want to give back to my church and community in whatever way I can," Rickman said. "Oakland is a wonderful town with very special people. I want to continue the fine traditions of Oakland and help make it a place where people want to continue to live and raise their children."

Butch Redinger Announces Run For Oak. Council



Elmer V. "Butch" Redinger has announced his candidacy for a seat on the Oakland Town Council. The municipal election is slated for Monday, March 8.

The candidate has lived in Oakland for the past 36 years. He was born and reared in East Pittsburgh, Pa., and attended East Pittsburgh High School. He went to work for Westinghouse in Youngwood, Pa., and then transferred to Westinghouse in Elkridge as a lab technician.

Redinger earned a bachelor of science in elementary education in 1968 from Towson State College. He then earned a master's degree in education from Frostburg State in 1974.

The candidate taught elementary school at Highlandtown Elementary school in Baltimore City from 1968 to 1974. He then moved to Oakland, where he taught 5th and 6th grades at Accident Elementary School. In 1978 he became assistant principal of Northern Middle School, where he remained until his retirement in June 2009.

The candidate also helped to operate the Summer Youth Program in Garrett County for 27 years. This program employed hundreds of summer youth both on the southern and northern ends of the county.

Redinger has been a member of the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club for 25 years, for which he served as secretary and treasurer for 10 years.

"I am running for town council to make a difference in these challenging times by maintaining Oakland as a quality place to live, work, and raise a family," Redinger said. "I have resided in Oakland for the last 36 years and am now retired. I believe I understand the pressure the community is under from both county and state agencies, and now I have the time to devote to my community."

The candidate is married to Paula Marucci Redinger and they have two children. Matthew T. Redinger, a teacher and athletic director at Southern High School, and Megan Rae Redinger, manager at Smiley's Pizzeria in McHenry.

HART'S "FIVE FOR FELINES" WAS A SUCCESS, according to HART president Mike Pellet. The campaign was organized by the group's Spay/Neuter Clinic to promote the Humane Society of the United States Spay Day on Feb. 23. Five for Felines featured cat neuters for $5. Appointments for the procedure were booked within a few hours after the local radio station announced the event, with 20 cats being neutered on Spay Day. In explaining the importance of the event, Pellet said, "Somewhere in the U.S., there is an animal being euthanized every 8 seconds. We promoted Spay Day to make people aware that they can do something to solve the pet overpopulation problem. By spaying and neutering their pets, people can become part of the solution." The HART clinic, located at the McHenry Plaza, provides low-cost spay/neuter services to individuals whose income level would otherwise prevent them from spaying or neutering their pets. The facility is not a full-service veterinary office, and surgeries are by appointment only. The clinic spays and neuters healthy animals between the ages of 4 months and 7 years, at a basic cost of $50 or $70 for large dogs. Part or all the cost of the surgery may be covered by vouchers from the county's other animal organizations and by donations, Pellet noted. The clinic can be contacted by phone at 301-387-SPAY (7729) or by e-mail at clinic@hartforanimals.org. HART for Animals Inc. is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization. Additional information about its programs and clinic is available online at hartforanimals.org or by calling the above phone number. Pictured above is a patient receiving a physical exam prior to surgery by Dr. Linda Blakeley (right), with the assistance of Caroline Robison. Pictured below is an armful of kittens, which illustrates the clinic's goal to keep "litters" from turning into "trash."

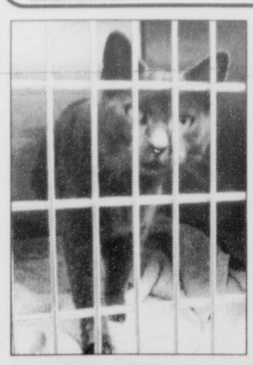
Adorable Adoptables



MANY PETS WAITING FOR NEW HOMES at the Garrett County Animal Shelter this week, including a dark gray female cat, left, and longhaired gray male cat, right. Not pictured is an older black Lab that was dropped off at the shelter weeks ago and no one has come to adopt her. "She is gentle and friendly," a Garrett County Humane Society spokesperson said. Also in need of a home is a male hound that was found running loose after someone dumped him off. "He is very laid back and sweet," the spokesperson said. "Make sure your pets can find warm shelter and get to their food and water dishes in this deep snow." She also noted that the Humane Society handed out more than 75 discount vouchers last Tuesday on Spay Day to help local residents in getting their pets spayed and neutered. "This means there will be hundreds of fewer unwanted kittens and puppies in this county being dumped off on back roads or brought in to the shelter, which may or may not have room for them to stay," she said. For more information, persons may call the shelter at 301-334-3553. Located along Oakland Sang Run Road, the facility is open Monday through Friday.

High Tunnels To Be Discussed At Area Conference

The second annual Mtn. Top Fruit and Vegetable Conference will be held on Friday, March 19, beginning at 8:45 a.m. at Garrett College in McHenry.

The conference will feature three concurrent tracks. Elsa Sanchez, extension educator with Penn State, will discuss "Nutrient Use in Organic High Tunnels," and Lewis Jett with West Virginia University Extension will explain winter production in high tunnels.

Willie Lantz, extension educator with the University of Maryland Extension, will discuss basic high tunnel construction and summer production of tomatoes, peppers, and cucumbers in a high tunnel.

Bob Carrol of Haygrove International will explain how lightweight field tunnels can be used for three season production.

"While the snow is over three feet deep in many parts of Garrett County, a small group of farmers will soon begin planting crops with plans to harvest in late spring," said Lantz. "What advantage do these farmers have? The answer is a high tunnel."

He explained that high tunnels are simple greenhouse structures that cover the land with a layer of plastic that captures the sun's energy, allowing farmers to plant earlier and get more heat units earlier in the spring. These structures are typically constructed with galvanized metal pipe arches, just like greenhouses. However, they do not have the heaters, fans, and other electrical components.

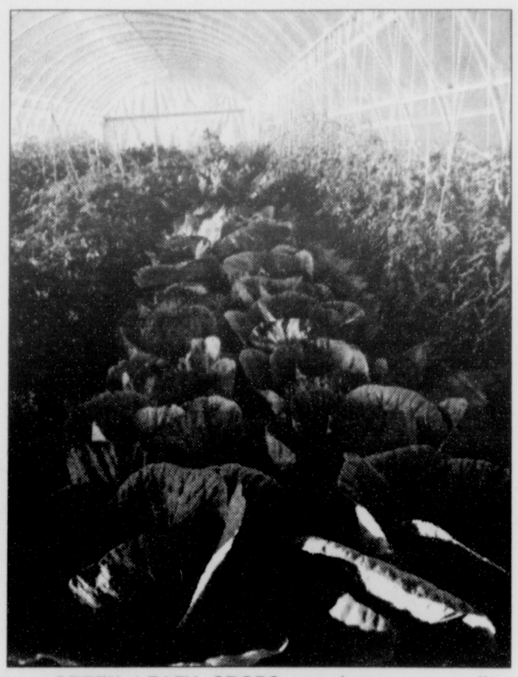
Most crops grown in a high tunnel will be grown in the existing soil, and many crops can be adapted to be grown in a high tunnel.

Lettuce and other green leafy crops can be started in high tunnels as early as March, and will be ready for market by the end of May.

Summer crops such as tomatoes and peppers can be transplanted into the high tunnel in April as early as six weeks before plants are planted outside. Early varieties of tomatoes and peppers can be harvested in mid-June.

Extending the season into the late fall is also possible. Late crops of tomatoes, green beans, and lettuce can be harvested into the early winter. High tunnels also work well for growing fruits such as raspberries, strawberries, blueberries, and small-sized tree fruits.

For more information on the Mtn. Top Fruit and Vegetable Conference, persons may contact the Garrett County Office of the University of Maryland Extension at 301-334-6960 or view the schedule online at www.garrett.umd.edu/Agnr/index.cfm.



GREEN LEAFY CROPS can become a reality much sooner even in snowy climates with the use of a high tunnel such as the one pictured above. High tunnels are greenhouse structures that cover the land with a layer of plastic. They will be one of the topics of discussion at the second annual Mtn. Top Fruit and Vegetable Conference scheduled for March 19 at Garrett College beginning at 8:45 a.m. For more information, persons may call the Garrett County Office of the University of Maryland Extension at 301-334-6960 or view the schedule online at www.garrett.umd.edu/Agnr/index.cfm.

GRASSLAND RESERVE PROGRAM DEADLINE MARCH 10

West Virginia landowners interested in restoring, enhancing, or protecting grasslands may receive funding through the Grassland Reserve Program (GRP).

Landowners must have their applications submitted to the Kingwood Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) Field Office or the Preston County Farm Service Agency (FSA) office, located in the Kingwood USDA Service Center by close of business on March 10 to be considered for rental contract funding this year. NRCS and FSA will assist landowners with the application process.

The Grassland Reserve Program has a continuous signup period. Applications accepted after March 10 will not be ranked until the next ranking period is announced.

GRP provides financial assistance to producers in the form of rental agreements and easements. GRP provides funding to purchase conservation easements and long-term rental agreements, and offers landowners the opportunity to protect, restore, and enhance the grasslands on their property. The program emphasizes support for working grazing operations, enhancement of plant and animal biodiversity, and protection of grassland and land containing shrubs and forbs under threat of conversion.

For GRP, the 2008 Farm Bill provides priority for enrollment of expiring acreage from the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) and is limited to 10 percent of the total acres enrolled in any year. Eligible lands can be enrolled into a permanent easement or a rental contract of 10, 15, or 20 years. Restoration agreements based on a 50 percent cost-share may be placed on land enrolled under a rental contract or easement. Easement compensation is based on the Geographic Area Rate Cap or on an offer made by the landowner, whichever is less.

NRCS and FSA encourage landowners who are interested in this voluntary program to visit the USDA Service Center to apply. Additional information on GRP and other conservation programs is available on the Web at www.wv.nrcs.usda.gov. Persons may also contact Pam Yost, assistant state conservationist for programs, at 304-284-7572 or pamela.yost@wv.usda.gov.

LIVESTOCK INDEMNITY PROGRAM EXPLAINED

The 2008 Farm Bill created several new disaster programs under the permanent disaster legislation, one of which is the Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP). LIP compensates producers for livestock death losses in excess of normal mortality because of adverse weather that occurred on or after January 1, 2008, and before October 1, 2011, on a calendar-year basis.

A notice of loss must be filed with the FSA office within 30 days of when the loss is apparent. The completed application for payment and supporting documentation must be filed with the FSA office within 30 days after the end of the calendar year in which the loss occurred.

Eligible damaging adverse weather events include wildfires, blizzard, tornado, lightning, flooding, extreme cold, extreme heat, and disease (must be exacerbated by an eligible adverse weather event). Drought is not considered an eligible adverse weather event except when associated with anthrax.

Eligible livestock include beef and dairy cattle, buffalo, beefalo, equine maintained for commercial use as part of the farming operation, elk, reindeer, deer, sheep, alpacas, emus, swine, goats, llamas, and poultry. All types and weight ranges are eligible. The eligible livestock must have died in the calendar year for which benefits are being requested. All eligible livestock must be maintained for commercial use as part of the farming operation. Eligible livestock owners may apply if they owned the livestock on the day they died.

Proof of inventory and death of livestock must be provided and may include but is not limited to, any or a combination of the following: (1) rendering truck receipts; (2) written contracts, bank or loan documents; (3) veterinary records; (4) property or other tax records; (5) insurance documents; (6) a measurement service may be requested and paid for by the producer; or (7) producer and production records. Documentation must provide sufficient data that identifies the kind/type/weight range of livestock and the number of livestock.

Third-party certification may be accepted only when participant certifies in writing that no other form of proof of death is available and includes the number and physical location of livestock in inventory at time death occurs. Documentation must also be provided to support the number of livestock in inventory at the time the deaths occurred.

The third party providing the certification must be a reliable source in a position to have knowledge of the dead livestock and shall not be affiliated with the operation, such as a hired hand, etc., or a family member.

LIP payments to eligible livestock producers will be based on 75 percent of a fair market value, as determined by the secretary, for each specific livestock category and the individual livestock owners' eligible losses. Calculations will be performed separately by eligible livestock (by type, kind, and weight range). LIP will pay up to $100,000 annually, including any benefits received from SURE, LFP, and ELAP.

Persons or legal entities that have an average adjusted gross nonfarm income that exceeds $500,000 are not eligible for LIP.

The normal mortality rate is the percentage of livestock that can be expected to die normally in a livestock operation during the calendar year as a result of disease, injury, or other causes that can routinely occur using good livestock handling practices. The normal mortality rates have been established by the West Virginia State FSA Committee and are available at the FSA office.

Producers interested in the Livestock Indemnity Program are encouraged to visit the Preston County FSA office, located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza; telephone 304-329-1923. The FSA web site is also available at www.fsa.usda.gov/.

DEADLINE FOR NAP, CROP INSURANCE COVERAGE FAST APPROACHING

Eric McCartney, county executive director of USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) in Preston County, reminds producers that the March 15 deadline to obtain coverage under the Noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) and Federal Crop Insurance for spring seeded crops will soon be here.

NAP provides coverage to producers for non-insurable crops when low yields, loss of inventory, or prevented planting occurs because of natural disasters. Crops eligible for NAP coverage are those for which crop insurance is not available, including fruits and vegetables, aquaculture, and forage crops. Producers must apply for NAP coverage before a disaster strikes.

A service fee of $250 per crop, per producer, with a $750 cap per county, not to exceed $1,875 for any producer, applies. Service fees may be waived for eligible limited resource producers. NAP applications for coverage must be filed and service fees paid by the applicable closing date. Application closing dates vary by crop. The application closing date for 2010 annual crops, such as vegetables, is March 15.

Producers are also reminded that the final date to apply for crop insurance for corn and oats is also March 15. Current policyholders also have until March 15 to make any changes to their existing contracts. Crop insurance provides protection against losses because of natural perils such as drought, hail, wind, and excessive moisture.

Producers are encouraged to contact a local crop insurance agent as soon as possible for premium quotes and more details. A list of crop insurance agents may be obtained from the Farm Service Agency in Kingwood.

The 2008 Farm Bill stipulates that for producers to maintain eligibility in FSA's supplemental disaster programs, all noninsurable crops on the farm must be covered by NAP. Likewise, all insurable crops produced on the farm must have federal crop insurance coverage.

Southern Moves On Up; Stops Fort Hill, Stuns Northern To Advance In Playoffs

Moving on up the West Sectional Championships is the varsity girls' basketball team of Southern High School after stopping Fort Hill, 56-36, on Tuesday in Frostburg in the first round, and stunning No. 1 cross-county rival Northern High School last night in Accident, 50-45, in the semifinal round.

The Rams took their time in both tournament games, slowly building on points in each quarter until rallying in the second half for the lead. The first quarter score was 10-9 in Southern's favor on Tuesday, but Fort Hill rallied in the second to tie it 23-23 by halftime. The Rams pulled ahead by six points to go into the fourth 37-31, and allowed just five points from the Sentinels in the fourth while collecting 19 of their own.

Southern's Alycia Horner was the star of the game with her 13 points, and teammates Heidi Welch and Alli Shaffer followed with 10 apiece. Five of Welch's points and four of Shaffer's came in the strong fourth quarter. Emillee Bosley sank all seven of her points in the third quarter for the Rams.

Scoring high for Fort Hill was Destiny James with her 12 points, while Sam Frankenberry recorded 10.

In last night's upset of Northern, the Huskies held an 11-10 edge over the Rams after the first quarter. Southern remained on Northern's heels through the second to post a 24-24 tie by halftime. The Rams came out in full force in the third period, outscoring the Huskies 17-9, to lead 41-33 into the fourth. Southern also outrebounded Northern, 32-19.

Shaffer scored 17 points and converted two clutch fouls with 13 seconds left to give Southern the final five-point lead. Welch added 10 points, and Bosley aided with a pair of big 3-pointers.

Kaitlynn Fratz, the area's scoring leader, put up 10 of her game-high 29 points in the final eight minutes to carry Northern, and had the Huskies back to within three points of the Rams before Shaffer sank her free throws.

"They played our perimeter game really well," said Northern head coach Steve Fratz. "We got frustrated and lost our composure in the third quarter. We then fought so hard to get back that we ran out of gas."

The victory avenged two lopsided regular season losses for Southern. The Rams had lost to the Huskies 70-39 and 79-44 earlier in the season. The win boosts Southern to 17-6.

The Rams will face second-ranked and second-seed Allegany for the section title tonight at 5 p.m. at Allegany. Southern lost to the Campers in the first meeting, 52-22, but then took the second 41-40. The winner of tonight's game will face East Section champion Smithsburg for the West Region title this Saturday at Frostburg State at 3 p.m.

Rams Rally In 4th Quarter To Defeat Huskies; Hand Playoff Loss To Miners

It was a close game throughout, but a pair of free throws from Calvin Hilliard in the fourth quarter sealed the victory for the Southern High School varsity boys' basketball team as it barely edged Northern High School, 50-49, on Tuesday in the first round of the Maryland 1A West Regional Tournament.

And as if the win over the Huskies weren't enough, the No. 3 Rams made their way to the West Sectional Championships after defeating second-seeded Mtn. Ridge last night in Frostburg. Southern rallied in the fourth quarter once again to hand the Miners a 35-26 loss.

Southern led Northern by three points, 9-6, in the first quarter of Tuesday's playoff game, and remained ahead 23-19 at halftime. The Huskies' offense came back stronger in the third quarter, outscoring the Rams 14-7 for a 33-30 lead going into the fourth. Northern was up 49-48 when Hilliard canned the tying and go-ahead free throws with 12.5 seconds to go in the game. The Huskies got the final shot, a 10-to 12-foot jumper along the baseline, but were unable to convert.

Only four players scored for Southern, but all of them reached double figures. D.J. Ritchie hit five 3-point goals and had 17 points to lead the Rams. Hilliard posted 12 points in the win, while Joe Kisselovich finished with 11 and Ben Meyers with 10.

Northern was led by Matt Gibson's game-high 19 points, and was followed by Cody Humberson with 10. Gibson was 9-for-10 from the foul line, while Humberson hit four of four foul shots.

Hilliard had another big night last night against Mtn. Ridge, cashing in from the free-throw line, to lead Southern. Offensively, it was a two-man show for the Rams as Hilliard and Kisselovich accounted for all 35 points, and also combined for 21-for-24 from the foul line. Hilliard finished with 23 points and was 15-for-17 from the free-throw line. Kisselovich ended with 12 points in the win.

The scores of the first half didn't reach double figures, proving a strong defense from both Southern and Mtn. Ridge. The Miners held the lead through three periods with a 7-4 first quarter score, a 9-5 halftime score, and an 18-15 lead after the third. The Rams did the same thing in last night's game as they did against Northern on Monday by turning the three-point deficit into a nine-point victory by sinking 20 points and allowing just eight from Mtn. Ridge.

Daniel Strietbeck led the Miners by making three 3-pointers to end with 11 points.

Southern (13-8) plays top-seeded Allegany (21-0) tonight at 7 p.m. in Cumberland. The winner of tonight's game will play for the West Region title this Saturday at Frostburg State at 1 p.m. against the winner of the Clear Spring/Williamsport game.

Lakers' Season Brought To An End By Trojans In JUCO Semifinal

The 2009-10 season came to an end for the Garrett College men's basketball team Sunday afternoon when the Lakers were eliminated from the Region XX Tournament by the Trojans of Allegany College of Maryland, 84-65, in a semifinal played at Hagerstown.

The Lakers, who were able to play only three games in the past 25 days because of severe winter weather conditions, finished the season with an overall record of 15-10, while the Trojans took an 18-7 mark into the Region XX final against Frederick CC Tuesday evening. The Cougars won the title with a 66-63 victory over AC.

Jordan Gipson spearheaded the Lakers' offensive attack against the Trojans, as he poured in a game-high 28 points. Teammate Joe Dubuche also reached double figures with 10 points.

The Trojans hit a sizzling 69.2% from the floor, making good on 36 of 52 shots, while the Lakers connected on just under 50% of their shots (25 of 51). Garrett hit only four of 15 three-point attempts, which was below the team average.

The Lakers were hammered on the boards, outrebounded by a 40-16 margin.

The Lakers held a brief lead early in the contest, up 9-6 following a couple of shots by Gipson.

The score was tied at 19-19 at the 11:12 mark of the first half, but the Trojans scored the next 13 points to assume a 32-19 lead at the 7:28 mark.

Allegany held a reasonably comfortable 42-29 advantage at intermission. The Lakers could get no closer than 10 points in the second half, that coming with about 15 minutes to play (48-38).

Allegany was led by Marcel Chesson with 23 points, as he hit nine of 11 field goal attempts. He also grabbed 10 rebounds.

Derrell Armstrong finished with 18 points, 11 assists, and nine rebounds. Dennis Bassich had 12 points, and Aaron Brackett chipped in with 10.

"We are a three-point shooting team, and when we don't hit them, we struggle," said Laker head coach Dennis Gibson. "We played only three games in 25 days, plus have had a lot of days that we couldn't even practice. So I can't fault the kids."

Frederick, a team that Allegany had soundly defeated in the regular season (70-56), advances to the District III tournament, and will face the Region XV champion in New York this weekend.

Southern Bowling Teams Split With Hampshire; Gear Up For Showcase

The weather has certainly put a damper on the winter sports season, but it didn't stop the Southern High School bowling teams from posting some wins against visiting Hampshire last Tuesday. The girls' team defeated the Trojans in the "actual" game, 20-16, but then fell 25-11 in the "adjusted." The boys' team captured the adjusted with a 20-16 defeat of Hampshire, but were handed a 24-12 actual loss.

For Southern's head coach John Sharpless, an upset is always possible no matter how the past games have looked.

"At this point of the season, most of the area winners have been decided, but because of the weather that's not the case," said Coach Sharpless. "Our ladies can't win either side, but we can be a spoiler and we will not give up."

Leading the Southern girls' team was Caitlyn Virts with her first game score of 128 and her second game of 135, shooting well over her average of 119. Kayla Dawson posted a 144 in the first game to be nine pins over her average, while Bethany Rexroad recorded a 142 in the second game, 14 pins over her average.

"The ladies can finish probably third or fourth in the actual side," said Coach Sharpless. "If you look at our averages, they aren't big, but we are able to shoot 180 or 190s at any time. For them to finish in the top four means so much for next year because we have no seniors."

Shooting high for Hampshire was Heather S. with her scores of 138, 165, and 182 for a set of 485.

In the boys' match,

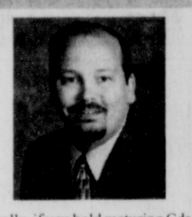
A Year after Market Low How Should You Invest?



It's been about a year since stock prices hit their record low point during the long bear market. Since then, of course, we've seen a big rally, but some of the decisions you made when the market was at its lowest point may still be affecting your portfolio's performance and prospects. So now that we've reached the one-year anniversary of the market bottom, it's a good time to see where you are today and how you can prepare for tomorrow.

In looking back at the market depths of a year ago, it s important to note that we didn t get there overnight. In fact, stock indexes had fallen about 50% since hitting their all-time high in October 2007, which means investors went through a 16-month downturn. Consequently, it s not surprising that many people, tired of seeing gloomy investment statements month after month, decided to play it safe for a while by putting large sums into fixed-rate vehicles such as certificates of deposit (CDs). And a lot of those CDs had one-year maturities, which means they re coming up for renewal.

If you bought CDs a year ago, you probably did so for their ability to preserve your principal, but in the process you made some trade-offs. First, you accepted a relatively meager income stream, because short-term interest rates, like those paid on your CDs, were low. And second, you relinquished the growth potential you might have gotten from other investments, such as stocks. So now that we re a year removed from the bottom of a bear market, can you use the money from any maturing Cds to help you make progress toward your financial goals?

Actually, if you hold maturing Cds, it's a good time to review your overall investment strategy, possibly with the help of a professional financial advisor. Take a close look at your portfolio. Is it well-suited for your individual risk tolerance, time horizon and long-term objectives, or should you make some changes? Is it too aggressive for your needs, or too conservative? Is it properly diversified among investments suitable for your situation? While diversification, by itself, cannot guarantee a profit or protect against loss, it can help reduce the effects of volatility and give you more chances for success. Keep in mind that while CDs are FDIC-insured, other investments carry certain risks that you should understand before investing.

Of course, if you hold investments in a brokerage account, it s likely not your only portfolio you may well be investing through your 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan. If so, keep in mind that you probably don t want your investments to duplicate those investment picture holistically and seek to diversify your accounts.

Once you ve reviewed your portfolio and identified any possible gaps, you can then consider where the money from any maturing CDs can be used most effectively.

You probably won t see any festivities marking the one-year anniversary of the market low. But you can celebrate in your own way by considering available investment opportunities.

Rams Win Regional Wrestling Title; Five Claim Championships

By capturing five individual championships, the Southern High School wrestling team successfully defended its 1A/2A West Region championship by defeating 18 other teams on Saturday at Winters Mill High School in Westminster.

All three of Southern's defending state champions – Brutus Scheffel, Bubba Scheffel, and Lex Ozias – were among the five who took first place. Joining them were Davey Stewart and Ryan Bennett.

The Northern Huskies placed 11th among the teams, and will be sending three team members to the state tourney, including defending state champ Adam Moranduzzo. Jason Opel was a regional runner-up, while Matt Thomas placed fourth.

The top four finishers in each of the 14 weight divisions qualify for the state tourney, which will be held this Friday and Saturday at Cole Field House at the University of Maryland, College Park.

Senior Brutus Scheffel, who will be wrestling for West Virginia University this fall, won the 152-pound division title when he recorded a 7-2 decision over Gus Mohlhenrich of Winters Mill. The win upped his personal record to 36-1 for the season, and affords him the opportunity to become one of only a handful of high school wrestlers ever to win four state championships.

Bubba Scheffel, a junior, maintained his perfect record for the season (35-0) and won the title in the 160-pound division by garnering a 12-2 major decision over Judd Ziegler of Middletown. Scheffel will be gunning for his third straight state championship this weekend.

Ozias, who lost only one match in 36 this season, gained a 12-4 major decision over Joey Sutch of Williamsport to capture the regional title in the 140-pound division. Also a junior, he will attempt to win a second straight state title.

Stewart won the 103-pound title via a 17-2 technical fall over Monica Hovermale of Smithsburg. Hovermale is one of the state's best female wrestlers in history, as her loss to Stewart was only her second in 28 matches this season.

Bennett, who returned to action late in the season because of a serious leg injury sustained during last fall's football season, pinned Alex Schuster of North Carroll to win the title in the 171-pound division. Bennett is undefeated for the season, having won all 14 of his matches.

Northern's Moranduzzo, another reigning state champion, earned a 5-2 decision over Zach Shoemaker of Williamsport to win the individual title in the 145-pound division. The victory upped Moranduzzo's personal mark to 27-3 for the season.

Opel's only loss in the regional tourney was a nail-biting 1-0 decision to Jason Wright of Mountain Ridge in the title bout of the 171-pound division. Opel is 21-3 for the season.

Thomas placed fourth when he fell on points to Chris Antrobus of Century in the 130-pound division consolation final. He will take a 21-10 personal mark into the state event.

Southern amassed 122.5 points to win the team title, while host Winters Mill was second with 108.5 and Mountain Ridge placed third with 102 points. The Northern Huskies finished with 59 points. Fort Hill tied for 16th with 18 points.

REGIONAL CHAMPIONS – Six Garrett County high school wrestlers, five from Southern and one from Northern, captured individual championships at the 1A/2A West Regional Tournament hosted by Winters Mill High School on Friday and Saturday. These six, as well as two other Northern grapplers who placed among the top four in their weight divisions, will be competing in the state 1A/2A tourney this weekend in College Park. The Rams topped 18 other teams to successfully defend the regional team title. In the photo above left, three-time state champion Brutus Scheffel of Southern ties up Gus Mohlhenrich of Winters Mill in the 152-pound division final and goes on to record a 7-2 decision. Mohlhenrich came into the tourney with a 30-1 record. Above right, Northern's Adam Moranduzzo, also a current state champ, controls Zach Shoemaker of Williamsport en route to a 5-2 decision in the 145-pound division. Shoemaker was 30-2 upon entering the match. Below left, Ram Bubba Scheffel, a two-time state champion, records points against Jonathan Best of Boonsboro and goes on to record a major decision victory in the 160-pound division final. It was only the fourth loss in 35 matches for Best, while Scheffel is undefeated this season. Below right is Southern's Ryan Bennett, also unbeaten this season, just prior to pinning Alex Schuster of North Carroll in the 189-pound title bout. At bottom left, Ram Davey Stewart ties up Monica Hovermale of Smithsburg and finishes with a 17-2 technical fall win in the 103-pound final. Hovermale, a female athlete who has 150 wins in wrestling, entered the regional event with a 25-4 record for this season. At bottom right, defending state champion Lex Ozias of Southern incapacitates Joey Sutch of Williamsport and earns a major decision win in the 140-pound final. Sutch, a senior, was 29-2 coming into the tournament. Ozias, a junior, nearly missed the tournament because of severe weather conditions, but his grandfather John Wilson was able to transport Lex from his house via snowmobile to catch the team bus. ASCI To Host Canoe Slalom Nationals And North American Championships

The Adventure Sports Center International at Wisp Resort is scheduled to host the 2010 Open Canoe Slalom Nationals and Northern American Championships whitewater competition for the fourth year in a row, scheduled for August 6-8.

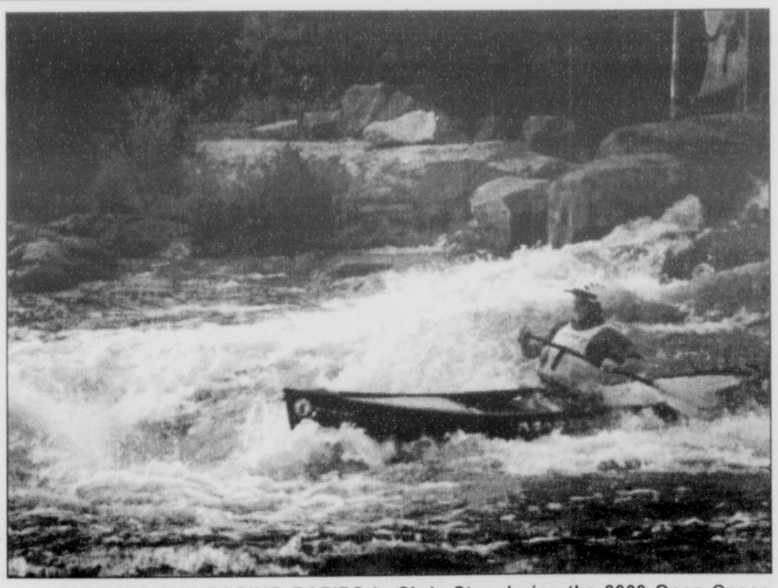
The National Championships bring competitors from across the country, and since it doubles as the North American Championships it will also amount to a duel between the U.S. and Canada. The all-time record holder in Open Canoe racing, John "Kaz" Kazimierczyk of New Hampshire, will be on hand to defend his 2009 title as Open Canoe Champion, as well as upstart youngsters such as Hailey Thompson (Junior National Champion) of Wisconsin.

Open Canoe racing involves boats that look like traditional canoes (as opposed to the Olympic cousins, which are decked and look like kayaks), and which race on Class II-III (IV) whitewater. The challenge is not only to maneuver the boat through the prescribed sequence of gates hung over the rapids – some of which require a competitor to paddle upstream – but competitors must also race without "swamping" their boat in the rapids. This occurs when waves or hydraulics splash over the edge of the open canoe and fill the boat up with water.

This will be the first Open Canoe race at ASCI, which has already hosted the 2007 and 2008 Slalom Canoe and Kayak National Championships (Olympic classes, with "decked" canoes); 2007 Freestyle Canoe and Kayak National Championships; and the 2009 Rafting National Championships. The ASCI whitewater course can adjust to accommodate both world class, Olympic caliber competition, as well as facilitate beginner levels of racing.

Open Canoeing is a North American invention, and canoes were largely used as transport on rivers and lakes by Native Americans, and were seldom used to "shoot" rapids. In the 1940s, Europeans started racing kayaks on whitewater, and when the sport of whitewater slalom took hold in the U.S., the application of traditional canoes to the new sport of whitewater racing became a fixture.

The event will be free to the public, with food and beverages on hand, and canoe and kayak demonstrations through out the weekend. For more information, persons may contact ASCI at 301-387-3250 or e-mail for more information at asci@adventuresports-center.com.



BATTLING THE RAGING RAPIDS is Chris Stec during the 2009 Open Canoe Slalom Nationals held last summer at the Adventure Sports Center International at Wisp Resort. ASCI has once again been chosen to hold the 2010 Open Canoe Slalom Nationals and Northern American Championships whitewater competition, slated for August 6-8. This is ASCI's fourth year hosting the championship, which brings competitors from across the country. See story for more details.

Southern was led by Mark Mattingly's set of 556, with game scores of 178, 195, and 183. Travis Wolfe posted scores of 190, 190, and 159, while teammate Christian Glotfelty finished with 138, 171, and 171.

"I have put a lot of pressure on my young men because I know what they are capable of," said Coach Sharpless. "I put even more pressure on my fifth and sixth guys because they need to step in and be ready to compete."

The Rams were down 712-654 in the first game to the Trojans, and 777-684 in the second. Southern pulled out all the stops in the third game, however, edging Hampshire 683-667 for the adjusted win.

"After the second match, we needed 10 out of 12 points to win the adjusted side," said Coach Sharpless. "With this win, it would give the boys the adjusted side championship for the year. I told them to make up their minds, it's theirs to win or lose. They won the 10 points they needed."

Hampshire was led by Jeff H. with his game scores of 205, 200, and 179 for a set of 584. Justin Bayer followed with a set of 569 with scores of 178, 210, and 181.

Southern was to face Hampshire again this past week, but details were not received. The Rams are scheduled to host and compete in the Showcase Tournament this Saturday at Par-Matt Lanes.

Maryland Deer Hunters Repeat Record Harvest

Maryland deer hunters harvested over 100,000 deer for the second time since modern deer management began in the early 1900s, according to a release from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

According to a DNR spokesperson, surpassing this numerical milestone is consistent with the department's goals to reduce or stabilize deer numbers in most of the state. The record 100,663 deer taken during the 2009-2010 deer season edged the previous record of 100,437 deer set last year.

Hunters reported 33,761 antlered deer (1,115 sika deer) for the 2009-2010 season, a three percent decrease from last year. In contrast, the antlerless harvest increased two percent to 66,902 deer (1,267 sika deer) this year.

"Our survey information confirms that deer hunters have spent more time in the woods over the past two seasons, a trend we attribute in part to the slow economy," said DNR Deer Project leader Brian Eyler. "The increased effort has resulted in more healthy and sustainable venison being put in the freezer, and is consistent with our efforts to manage the deer population."

In Deer Management Region A (Garrett and Allegany counties), hunters reported 9,430 deer this year, a five percent decrease from the 2008-2009 total. The antlered harvest decreased eight percent to 4,964 deer this year, while the antlerless harvest of 4,466 deer was down one percent.

Region A hunters continue to harvest good numbers of antlerless deer because the additional day of antlerless firearm hunting on private lands that was added in 2008, according to the spokesperson. The extra day was provided at the request of landowners in the region who wanted more opportunities to effectively manage deer numbers on their land.

In Garrett County the overall deer kill was down 6%, from 5,235 in the previous season to 4,922 this past season. Of the 4,922, 2,649 were antlered and 2,273 were antlerless, compared to 2,785 and 2,450, respectively, the previous season.

Neighboring Allegany County reported a total harvest of 4,508, down 2.9% from the previous season (4,641), while Washington County had a total harvest of 8,587 (most of any county), down 6.9% from the previous year (9,227).

The reported deer harvest in the remainder of the state (Region B) was relatively consistent for most counties. Hunters in Region B reported taking 91,233 deer for the year. The antlered harvest of 28,797 deer was two percent lower than last year, while the antlerless harvest increased two percent to 62,436 deer.

The deer harvest in Maryland's suburban counties (Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Howard, Montgomery, and Prince George's) continues to be strong. Hunters in these counties reported 21,231 deer for 2009-2010; up one percent over last year. DNR has liberalized antlerless harvest regulations in these counties in an effort to address the impacts that high deer populations have on Maryland's suburban landscape and residents.

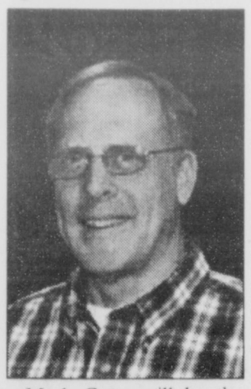
Mark Getty To Speak At Annual Sportsman's Feast



Mark Getty will be the featured speaker for Faith Evangelical Free Church's annual Sportsman's Feast on Saturday, March 13. There will be a pot luck dinner at 6 p.m. that emphasizes wild game dishes, with doors opening at 5 p.m. The event will be held at the church, located at 1009 Maryland Highway in Mtn. Lake Park.

The annual event is open to all persons who love hunting, fishing, and the outdoors. The event is free.

Getty has specialized in ministries around the U.S., including 11 years as field staff with Campus Crusade for Christ International, where he served seven years in the New York/New Jersey area as an administrator for Campus Crusade. His service involved work with the military, lay, and college and high school ministries.

"I'm really excited about this year's event," said Jeff Bowman, the coordinator of the Sportsman's Club. "It's wonderful to get together with so many people who share a love of the outdoors for fun, food, and fellowship."

Since 1980, Getty has spoken in classrooms and open campus meetings about science and faith. He has also served six years as executive director of Covecrest Inc., a Christian camp and retreat center in the mountains of northeast Georgia, where he was a minister with the Evangelical Church Alliance, and an occasional guest columnist with the local newspaper.

Getty was educated at State University of New York College of Environmental Science and Forestry, where he received his bachelor of science degree. In addition to his service with Covecrest and Campus Crusade, he has worked as an environmental scientist, teacher, naturalist, surveyor, and forest and wildlife management technician.

Getty's interests include Indian history and lore, hunting, fishing, trapping, tanning hides, archery, camping, wilderness survival, reloading, flytying, canoeing, taxidermy, and writing. He was also involved in the founding of CHOSN (Christ-Honoring Outdoor Super-Natural) Warriors Inc., a new (actually age-old) ministry to men and boys for developing practical and spiritual manhood through hands-on outdoor life and survival skill classes.

There will be door prizes given throughout the evening, and prizes will be given to persons wearing the best outdoor gear, including traditional and modern hunting attire, fishing outfits, and the open category for bird watchers, hikers, and campers.

For more information, persons may contact the church office at 301-334-4172.

WINNER OF WINTER FEST BOWLING RAFFLE – One of the highlights of Oakland's third annual Winter Fest was the bowling competition. A frozen bowling lane was set up near the town's gazebo at the corner of Second and Liberty streets, and bowlers used frozen cantaloupes to knock down the pins. When a bowler got a strike, his or her name went into a raffle for a 19" television, donated by the Electronic Diagnostic Center. The winner was Hayden McLaughlin, 9, son of Penny and Dave McLaughlin, Oakland. He is pictured above left with donor Jim Johnson.

Jeep Rear-Ended By Dump Truck On Bloomington Hill

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to Maryland Highway on Bloomington Hill for a reported motor vehicle accident with injuries.

It was determined through investigation that Troy Bucklew, Elk Garden, W Va., had been driving a 2006 International dump truck behind a 1998 Jeep Cherokee, driven by David Conklyn, Swanton. Both drivers noticed a tractor clearing out a driveway and crossed the center line to go around it. Conklyn then attempted to turn in to a residence, and Bucklew failed to noticed the vehicle stopping. The dump truck collided with the back of the Jeep.

Passengers of the Jeep were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries. Also responding to the scene were the Tri-County EMTs and fire department.

Bucklew was cited for the accident.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

I wonder why there is no national outrage about releasing sexual predators into our communities? Once again, a young lady from California went missing and has been found dead, and they have evidence linking a local convicted sex offender with her. The police say he may also be involved with several other missing girls.

It is apparent that Chile wasn't as prepared for a big earthquake as it first appeared to be. In fact, Chile's government is now asking for international help, especially for field hospitals and rescue squads.

I have some very clear memories of the big Easter Alaska earthquake in 1964. And then there was another big one in Chile in 1961. And the experts say that they do occur in clusters along the Ring of Fire circle in the Pacific Ocean. That includes Alaska and our Pacific northwest coast down to California.

Is America prepared for a big earthquake? Our federal government has a major earthquake studying and planning agency as part of the geographical survey. That is part of the hated federal government. We are supposed to allow the states to do that? Alaska? Or California, which is too broke to even pay attention? Anyone who can't understand why we need a robust national government clearly doesn't understand the modern world.

It didn't take long for the racists and conservative Christians to place blame for the Haiti earthquake square on its people, descendants of African slaves and condemned by missionaries because they clung to their traditional African religion of "devil worship." I don't remember similar judgment of the Alaskan people. Maybe that earthquake was God stomping his feet at the abusive treatment of Alaska's native population and the rape of their native land to pursue big profits from oil.

I got a rare pleasant surprise last Sunday, even if it cost me $50 to get my lane open so Claire could get in. But it was wonderful to have someone to watch the final hours of the Olympics. She agreed with me on our favorite USA athletes – the Flying Tomato, Shawn White, who won another gold medal, and Shani Davis, who was the first African-American USA athlete to win a medal in the winter Olympics. That was four years ago, but he was able to repeat.

I am glad that the daughter of the terrorist who flew his plane into the IRS building in Texas retracted her statement that her father is a hero. For some reason – maybe she regained her sanity – she said that the one man who died in that building was the real hero. His son said, "If you don't like our tax code, you should go to Congress and try to get what bothers you changed."

But the people of Texas, and lots of other people, just express their anger and blame all trouble on the government. The nut case who flew his plane into that building couldn't have been that bad off if he had his own plane. He blamed the government for his divorce. It's possible that the root cause of his divorce was his anger problem.

It is possible to let the president and other elected officials know your views. And apparently, lots of Americans do get in touch with the president, because the White House comment line was busy all day today. The number is 202-456-1111. It is very often busy. But one can write a letter to the president at: White House, 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, DC 20500.

The phone number of the Congress switchboard is 202-224-6472, and you can just ask for your Congress member.

If you don't have a job, you certainly don't have insurance. So there is a huge number of uncovered Americans. For sure, millionaires have access to excellent health care, and they can pay for it. But that does nothing for the rest of Americans.

If you don't think our taxing system needs reforming, listen to this. Warren Buffet, who is probably one of the richest people in America, said that his tax rate is way lower than his secretary's. Does that make any sense? No. And tax code reform is among the long list of essential reform in our president's mind. Those strange numbers about Buffet and his secretary do not include all kinds of tax-dodging exemptions. But you need an expensive tax lawyer to take advantage of them.

The House of Representatives passed 290 bills and none got anywhere. Endless filibusters required 60 votes to pass anything. Experts say health care reform will create four million jobs in the next four years.

I wonder why the Olympics doesn't allow women to compete in ski jumping. The only sport in which men and women compete in the same event against each other is any equestrian events. And sometimes the women win top medals. But the advocates of male superiority can claim in those events that the reason the woman beat the men was simply that she had a better horse. That's possible.

In 1968, a young British girl was mounted on what was technically a pony that was 14.2 hands tall. She did not win the gold, because that honor went to the captain of the American equestrian team, William Slinkras. But she won the silver medal. Her mount was a remarkably talented jumper for its size.

I'm glad I skipped curling tonight. I found on another channel Alpine grand slam – women's figure skating and women's bobsled. Much better viewing.

The Canadian figure skater was not a top favorite to medal, especially since her mother died very recently. I think her mother must be smiling in heaven to see her daughter give such a beautiful performance. This was the short program and she scored high, high enough to come in third after the two favorites from South Korea and Japan. I thought her performance was the most elegant and beautiful of all the skaters. But I am not a figure skating judge.

I enjoyed snow boarding and aerial skiing, and Alpine ski races. In those, our brightest star, injured Lindsey Vonn, collected a couple medals, including one gold. I was pleased to see our "bad boy" ski racer Bode Miller collect some hardware. And for the first time, we did well in Nordic (cross-country) skiing. But we were at the top of the medal count throughout the games. And Sunday, our men's hockey team will take on Canada. It is strange to see Pittsburgh Penguin star Sid Crosby on the Canadian team.

I heard a weatherman comment that the days are starting to get longer. It seems that almost half the year darkness falls at about 6 p.m., which is too early for me. But one positive sign of spring is that spring training is under way for the Pirates in Florida.

The Old Testament doesn't have much appeal for me. It is an assemblage of a number of historical books about Hebrew history. But I can't see any signs that it has God's inspired spiritual guidance. I much prefer the New Testament. Its message of love and forgiveness appeals to me. Of course, we are supposed to have freedom of religion. So whatever happens to you, you can take it.

It is interesting that Bittinger is divided between very conservative Christians. We have three Mennonite churches and one Lutheran church in Bittinger. Lutherans are one of the more liberal or progressive Christian denominations, but we are living together peacefully. We sometimes even worship together, like at the sunrise Easter service at the fire hall.

During our grandparents' generation, it was very common to even have intermarrying. My grandmother Emma Brenneman, a Mennonite, was married for 65 years to Oral Glotfelty, a Lutheran. And her sister Annie Brenneman married Lawrence Buckle, who was a brother of my other grandfather Charlie Buckle, who marred a Brethren, Linnie Miller.

At last February is over. Sheila Southerly said February was a month that seemed to never end because of the endless snow we got. But today is March 1. I hope that means that yesterday's new foot of snow will not repeat. And if the ground hog was correct, there are only two weeks before spring will begin, which this year will be on March 20.

Unfortunately, the last time Gary Buckel saw my cousin Nadine Buckle, he gave her my Buckel's Store almanac calendar, and that was the last anyone in the Bittinger area saw or heard from her. I assume she is living in her house in Cumberland, mainly because she couldn't stand the drive from here to her job in Cumberland during winter weather. I am sorry to be without my almanac calendar. It gave some important information, like the times of sunrise and sunset and the dates of major meteor showers. But I know the rule: one per customer. No exceptions!

I cried on Saturday when someone said that we would get another foot of snow. I must get my lane opened, and I can't afford to open it often. I realize that. I can't afford much of anything. For some reason, I didn't get my January or February disability insurance checks. That is money that I can't do without, especially since my daughters are needing more money than usual. And I can't refuse them, because I know that they are doing their best.

It's not my fault that I'm in the deductible period for my prescription plan, and one prescription is very expensive. I'm not sure I can risk going back to the new form of it that I can get from the health department, because it does not work at all. And I can't afford to be more depressed. This endless winter, money troubles, and loneliness are just about all I can stand. The last 14 years have had so many big hits, I'm just exhausted physically and emotionally.

The first and maybe worst hit was when I escaped death by inches, but when I awoke, I realized that everything about myself was changed, and not in a good way. But I was so happy to get out of Health South, the rehabilitation hospital in Morgantown, because I thought I could resume my most important roles of wife and mother. I was foolish to believe I could step back into the real world effortlessly. It was barely possible.

The biggest obstacle was fear of everything; fear that I would not be able to resurrect the old Joan: can-do, boundless energy, nothing was too hard for her, and she was self-sufficient. I believed I had enough support to get along. But it seemed that only a few people treated me with respect. That was a big adjustment, because most of my life I commanded respect from almost everyone.

My biggest support was my mother. She resumed our relationship completely and was totally supportive of me. I can't even half express how much I miss her. Every day I want to talk to her about something. And I never realized that I did need someone to depend on. I knew I was supposed to get more and more independent.

I'm glad that the Canadian female figure skater performed so beautifully only days after her mother died, after all those years of sacrificing everything to help her daughter achieve her dream. After her final program brought the audience to their feet, she kissed her hand and raised it upward, not to the audience, but to her mother. Maybe a bronze medal is not as good as gold, but it was a remarkable and inspirational performance. When so many people would just fall apart, it was an extremely courageous performance. As I am writing this, my eyes are filled with tears. I hate to see the Olympics end.

What a relief that the latest earthquake was not in a Third World nation. Luckily, Chile is a pretty well-to-do nation. They instituted building codes, so the damage was far less than in Haiti, in spite of the fact that this earthquake was a real monster, almost a 9 on the Richter scale. That is huge.

Chile's wealth comes from its abundant natural resources. And it does have a functioning, democratic government.

sionaries all those years ago into fellow believers who desire to share their love for their Savior."

Before her trip, Welch noted that she hadn't flown for 25 years, and never by herself. However, she found that God gave her the peace and courage that she needed to complete the journey.

"It gave me the confidence that when God calls us to do something, we can do it, even if we're not very brave," she said. "I felt so completely covered."

Driver Cited In Minor Accident

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to a minor vehicle accident Monday on Garrett Highway at Foster Road.

Investigation revealed that a vehicle driven by Nicole M. Getz was traveling north on Garrett Highway, when she attempted a left turn onto Foster Road. A vehicle driven by Marcie A. Wampler was also traveling north. Her vehicle struck the back of Getz's vehicle. No injuries were reported. Wampler was cited for failure to control speed to avoid a collision.

Man Charged With DUI After Car Gets Stuck In Snow

The driver of the Chevrolet passenger vehicle was identified as David Fulton Shaulis. Troopers reported that the odor of an alcoholic beverage was detected on his breath. After not performing field sobriety tests to satisfaction, Shaulis was placed under arrest. He is charged with driving under the influence, DUI per se, and driving while impaired by alcohol.

Storm Hits

were from the southern end of the county, Moyer said.

Schools were closed on Friday, as were most government offices and businesses throughout the county, including The Republican offices and the Oakland Wal-Mart.

The Garrett County commissioners established a local state of emergency Friday morning. With that, Frantz requested state and federal assistance, specifically for local towns.

"By Friday evening the state and National Guard had deployed two task force teams to assist with gaining access to emergency calls," Frantz said.

Those teams consisted of two 5-ton all-terrain trucks, two Humvees, and eight men.

"This task force was only for assisting in transporting essential workers, assisting public safety response, etc., and were not for snow removal tasks," Frantz explained about Friday assistance.

The director noted that local resident Erica Mowbrey, regional administrator for the Maryland Emergency Management Agency (MEMA), was "invaluable" in providing assistance because of her knowledge of the local situation and her MEMA expertise.

Weather conditions improved somewhat on Saturday, enabling county road crews to open many roads, at least to one lane. They finally got the "upper hand" on the situation Sunday morning when weather conditions rapidly improved, Moyer noted.

The superintendent said 80 percent of county roads were opened and widened by early Sunday. The remainder were blocked or in one-lane condition. SHA and the National Guard also assisted town and county road departments that day.

By early Monday morning, only one county road, Bill Roth, was blocked by drifts. But crews had that road open by 10 a.m., Moyer said.

The department's goal, he said, was to get roads in good enough shape so that schools could reopen on Monday. But they were closed again that day.

Also at the beginning of this week, SHA provided contractors to help finish up work in five local municipalities that requested assistance. In addition, state crews used two of their giant blowers to cut back snow banks along county roads and intersections, areas with snow mounds too immense even for county snow blowers to handle.

"It's been a great help in keeping roads safe and passable," Moyer said about SHA assistance. In particular, he expressed his appreciation to SHA's local engineer Dwayne Bittner, George Shank, and District 6 engineer Tony Crawford.

Moyer said his department is always preparing for the next weather event. Roads are widened, slush is plowed off, banks are cut back to make room for more snow, and abrasives are restocked. The next "event," however, may be melting snow and flooding problems.

As weather permits, the superintendent said, crews will cut "bleeders" in snow banks to divert runoff, and clear culverts and drains to help alleviate flooding problems. That work began in Bloomington on Tuesday.

Frantz is also worried about waterways overflowing, flooding homes and roadways.

"We are very concerned about that likelihood as the temperatures warm up beginning this week," he said.

With that in mind, the director offered a flood fact sheet from the Federal Emergency Management Agency for citizens to review. See separate story.

Roofs collapsing under heavy snow loads is another public safety concern. Though he cannot confirm the exact number, Frantz said he could name more than 20 businesses that have collapse or near collapse issues. Those include Simon Pearce, Mtn. Lake Park; Classic Car and Thomas Tires and Accessories, Rosedale; Garrett Rehab, Oakland; Eberly-Wood, McHenry; and Charlie's Home Bargain Center, located along Rt. 135 between Mtn. Lake Park and Kitzmiller.

Several barn structures and at least two residences have also suffered significant damage, Frantz said.

"I'm sure there is much more that have not been reported," he said. "I am requesting that any business or individual citizen who had significant uninsured property damage to contact my office immediately at 301-334-7619 or by e-mail at bfrantz@garrettcounty.org."

He noted that his office continues to pursue federal reimbursement for costs related to storms that impacted Garrett County throughout the month of February.

"But this will be a lengthy process," he noted about receiving any possible reimbursements.

Moyer reported that as of Saturday, Feb. 27, county road crews had logged 21,085 hours of man hours in overtime this winter.

"That's a whole lot of overtime," he said.

He had budgeted $300,000 for winter operations overtime pay, but the department has exceeded that budget by more than $256,000. Previously, however, $1.5 million of the paving budget was set aside in case the department needed it for overtime. What is not used for overtime pay will go back for paving projects this coming spring and summer.

Moyer also noted that his department has spent $565,000, or about 75 percent, of its $750,000 abrasives budget, and $630,000, or 90 percent, of its equipment repair/replacement allocation.

In all, he said, the department is "just barely" over its total budget. With about 67 percent of the budget year past, the department has spent 68 percent of its budget. Moyer indicated that the small overage showed how well-prepared the county was for this time of the year.

FIRST PLACE WINNERS – One of the many events featured at the third annual Winterfest, held in Oakland two weekends ago, was the Snowman Building Competition. Crews put much thought and energy into the creation of some pretty unique characters. Above are the first place winners of the adult competition with their snowman (or snow-penguin) "Father & Son Day Out." From left are April Steele, Isaac Steele, Evalee Baker, Gary Steele, Debbie Steele, and Adam Steele, all of Oakland. Below are first place winners in the under 16 competition, Riley and Peyton Smith, Oakland, with their "Lego Man."

SECOND PLACE WINNERS – One of the highlights of the 2010 Oakland Winterfest were the imaginative and humorous creations borne in the Snowman Building Competition. Above are the adult contest second place winners Bruce Redcay, Silver Spring, Dottie Cisneros, Cheverly, Tom Pearson, Arlington, Va., Obern Rainey, Silver Spring, and Jaime Alvarado, Silver Spring, with "Broomhilda." Below are Trevor and Patrick Minovitz, Oakland, second place winners in the under 16 competition. They're posing with their snowman titled "Watch Your Step." Other entries were "Crocodile" by Riley Smith, Oakland; "Girl in Dress" by Ava Ashby, McHenry; "Traditional Snowman" by Ella Ashby, McHenry; and "Hanna Montana" by Jake and Everly Sherman, Frederick.

THE FUN OF WINTER FEST – With cabin fever raging throughout the county's population, the third annual Winter Fest in Oakland offered a great respite and some outdoor fun over the weekend of Feb. 19-21. At least a couple thousand folks came out to enjoy the rare sunny day, inspect the many ice sculptures about town, sit on the ice throne (as shown above), and compete in a snowman building contest (below). There were snowmobile races to watch all afternoon at Winters' field along 8th Street as well. A pancake and egg breakfast was held at the Oakland fire hall Sunday morning, and more ice carving and singing entertainment took place in the afternoon. Bill Sandusky of Frozen Assets Inc. was on hand throughout the festival, crafting his unique works of ice art for spectators to watch. He is now in Alaska, competing in an international ice contest. Some of his sculptures in Oakland, because of the continued cold weather, are still standing today. Arlene Murray, Main Street manager for Oakland and an organizer of Winter Fest, said the weekend was deemed a great success, and she is looking forward to next year. Photos by John McEwen.

FUN WAS HAD BY ALL at the third annual Winterfest held in Oakland the weekend of Feb. 19–21. Above are the winners of the Snowflake Toddler Contest. From left are Main Street manager Arlene Murray and Snow Flake Queen Britney Hostutler, with Katy Roderick (mother) holding Snowflake Toddler Boy Levi Roderick, Oakland mayor Peggy Jamison, and Lora Teets (mother) holding Snowflake Toddler Girl Tehya Brook Teets. The town was scattered with unique ice sculptures created by artist Bill Sandusky, below, who completed over 30 designs at various locations on Second and Third streets.

"HOW DO WE GET OUT OF HERE?!" may have been the first thought through Kenny and Janet Alexander's minds after looking through a bedroom window of their Pennington St. home, only to discover that they were truly buried. Last week's storm produced high winds, drifting, and over two feet of snow, but the community is getting a "breather" with warmer temperatures predicted for this weekend.

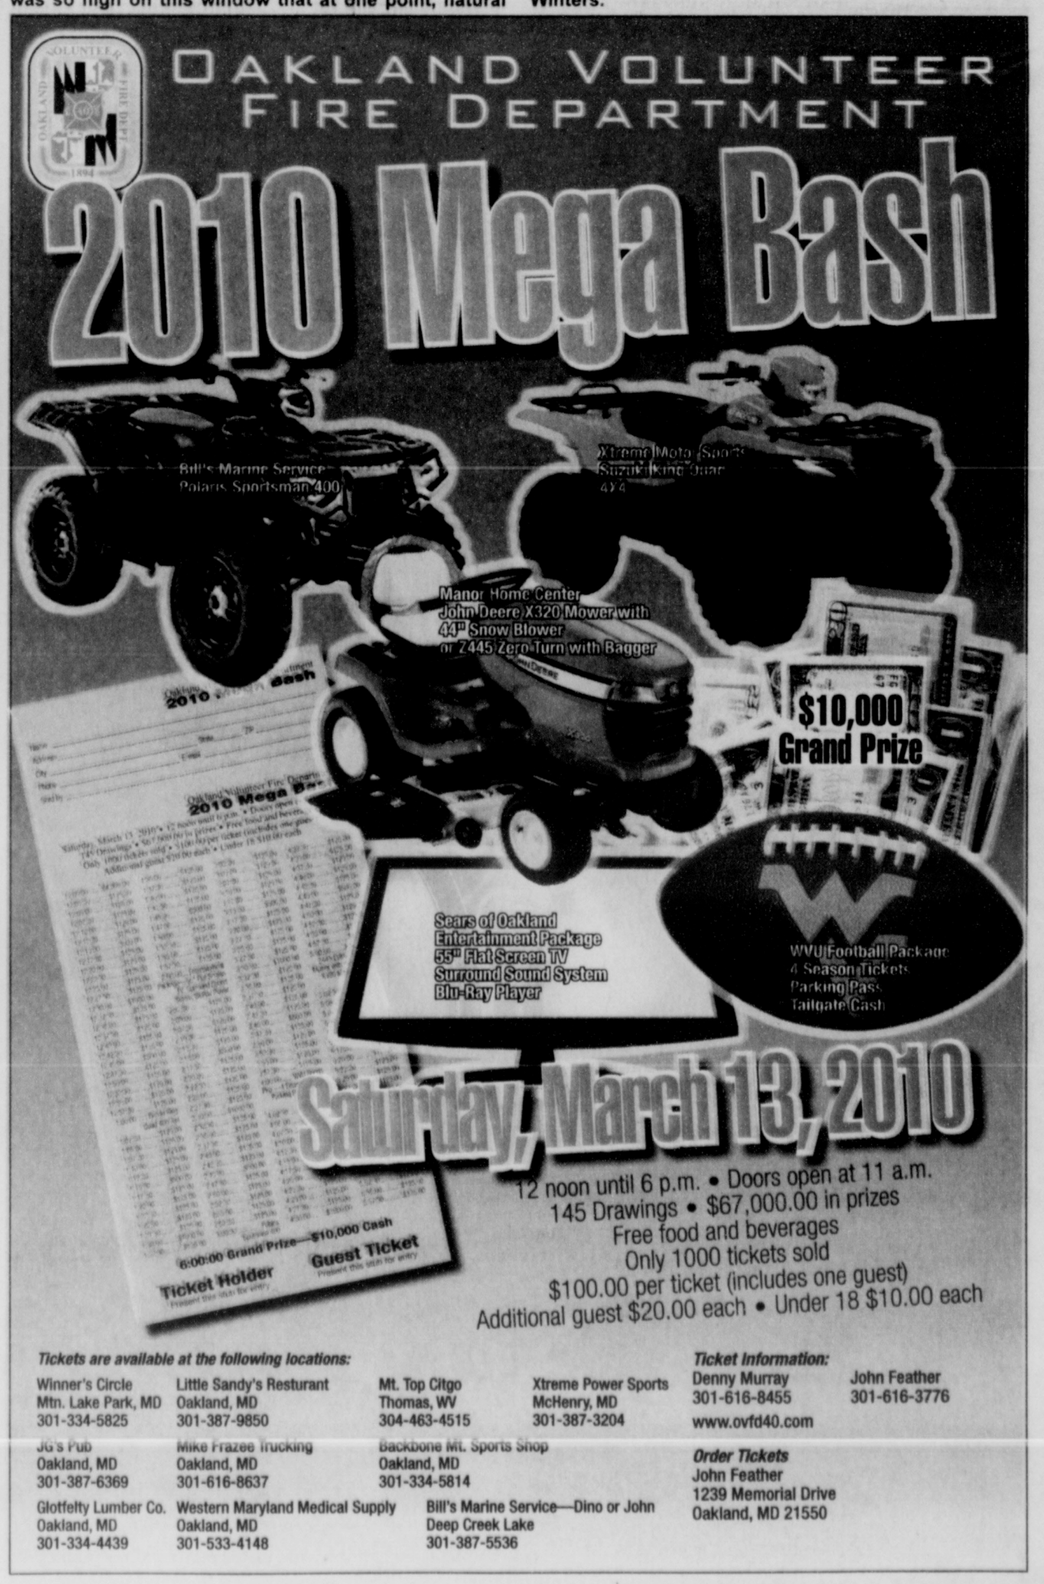
THERE IS A STOP SIGN UNDER THERE – Shown above is yet another picture that speaks for itself. Taken at the intersection of Broadford and King's Run roads, the scene is a familiar one throughout the Garrett County. Today residents are at last seeing the sun and blue sky, and some melting is actually taking place. The weekend is to be warmer yet, and scenes such as this one will be a memory long remembered. Photo by Rebecca Lee.

WHAT A JOB! Almost 90 men were contracted by the Maryland State Department of Education to remove the snow off several school roof tops this week. Above are men diligently working to clear the roof at Northern Middle School, which remained closed today. Southern High School, Northern middle and high schools, and Dennett Road Elementary School (closed today) were still closed on Wednesday when all other students returned to class. Crellin and Grantsville elementary schools' roofs were also a concern, but were cleared before Wednesday. Garrett County schools have missed a total of 17 days because of inclement weather this winter. The Board of Education will address the school calendar and make-up days at next week's board meeting.

TALK ABOUT A COZY CORNER! This normally bright area of the Oakland Ruth Enlow Library needed a little extra indoor lighting after Mother Nature dumped over two feet of snow this past week, adding to the 230-plus inches already on the ground. The snow was so high on this window that at one point, natural light could not make it through. Many people around the county are experiencing this "snowed-in" feeling, but there is light at the end of the tunnel. Or should we say from the window?! Temperatures are predicted to rise this weekend into the 40s. Photo by Bonnie Winters.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, there is a house under that mound of snow, with the birdfeeder hanging in the large evergreen the only real evidence that humans occupy this piece of ground along Hickory Ridge Road, Turkey Neck. The property is owned by Chris Alt of Moorefield, W.Va. The photo was provided by one of his local neighbors, Rich Rohrbaugh.

CLEARING SECOND STREET late Sunday evening were Oakland Street Department employees. Another 2.5 feet of snow fell in the local area this past weekend, bringing the total accumulation this winter to more than 260 inches. Photo by Erica Mowbray.



Historic Business Directory Is Now Available Online

The 1875 edition of Boyd's Business Directory for Maryland is now available online at the Western Maryland Regional Library history web site, whilbr.org, or by using the history/genealogy link on the new Ruth Enlow Library web site at relib.net.

This directory lists the occupations and businesses throughout the state in 1875, including Deer Park, Swanton, Accident, Grantsville, Altamont, and other Garrett County towns. Since at that time most of the male citizens were self-employed, the list contains many of the small town and village residents as well.

"Genealogists often can find interesting snippets about their ancestors from city directories, which were precursors to modern-day phonebooks and contain the names of each adult resident in the town along with their occupation and home addresses," noted a Ruth Enlow spokesperson.

For example, Cumberland's first directory was published in 1859-1860. However, for most small towns there are no directories, and Garrett County has no records of this nature.

"Thus, the Boyd's Directory can be useful in researching information of this kind," the spokesperson said.

The book is organized by occupation. John Gnagey of Accident is listed under agricultural implements. William Chapman, Grantsville, is under blacksmith, and G.H. Murphy, Swanton, is listed as a shoemaker.

Joel Ward, Oakland, was a cabinet maker; W.F. Caldwell ran a boarding house in Deer Park; and F.P. Fallon sold sewing machines in Swanton. John Miller ran the general store in Altamont, while Mrs. Walter Steele ran the store in Deer Park.

In effect, most of the employed population is listed, with the exception of farmers and those worked for others, such as railway workers and clerks.

The list contains mostly individuals rather than corporate entities, with the exception of newspapers and hotels. The Garrett County Gazette is found with C.T. Abell & Co., which published the newspaper in Oakland.

The hotel listing for Oakland includes Mrs. Berry, William M. Coddington, and Rowen White. John Dailey was the proprietor of the Glade House, and James A. Hough was proprietor of the Mountain House, presumably both in what is now Mountain Lake Park.

Daniel Mosser owned the Mosser House in Swanton, Thomas Garvey ran the hotel in Bloomington, and Henry Kahl was the proprietor of the Queen in Accident.

Boyd's Directory also includes a list of post offices and postmasters throughout the state, which may interest genealogists as this listing adds the names of towns and villages that were considered large enough to need a post office.

"A significant number of women were in charge of these post offices, and Garrett County maintained offices in Deer Park, Grantsville, Hutton's Switch, and Altamont, among other small towns," noted the spokesperson.

THERE IS NO QUESTION that Mother Nature is an amazing artist, the evidence for which can be found throughout the world every day. Such talents are demonstrated even during some of the most difficult weather conditions. This photo of untouched snow on a porch roof along Dennett Road, Oakland, was taken by Deb Swiger, as the shapely, but massive blob of white seems to be defying gravity. Heavy snow on rooftops over the past week or so has resulted in a number of cases of collapsed roofs, awnings, and rain gutters throughout the county after well over four feet of it has fallen in the past three weeks.

Annual Hospice Teleconference Slated March 24

Hospice of Garrett County will host the Hospice Foundation of America's 17th annual National Living with Grief Teleconference that will be presented on Wednesday, March 24, from 1:30 to 4 p.m. at the Garrett County Health Department.

The teleconference, "Cancer and End of Life Care," will address care options related to cancer diagnoses as well as loss and grief reactions for patients, families, and professional caregivers. The psychosocial aspects of cancer, pain management, and ethical issues related to the disease will also be examined.

The teleconference will be moderated by Frank Sesno, director of the School of Media and Public Affairs at George Washington University.

Sesno will lead a panel of noted authorities that includes Yvette Colon, PhD; Malene Smith Davis, RN; Kenneth J. Doka, PhD; Richard Payne, MD; Sherry R. Schachter, PhD; and Brad Stuart, MD.

This panel of ethicists, educators, and hospice experts will examine how diversity influences end-of-life decision making and the impact that culture may have at the time of death and during bereavement.

"Grief and loss issues, which are common to us all, can be especially difficult for those caring for a family member or other loved one," explained Mildred O'Haver, Hospice of Garrett County's director of bereavement. "By understanding the unique demands that family caregivers must face, we can work to support them and provide them with effective coping skills."

Each year the award-winning teleconference is seen in more than 2,000 communities across North America, reaching an estimated live audience of 150,000 people, according to event organizers.

The televised broadcast is produced by the not-for-profit organization Hospice Foundation of America, which acts as an advocate for the hospice concept of care through ongoing programs of professional education, public information, and research on issues relating to illness, loss, grief, and bereavement.

This conference is open to the public at no cost, but interested person must register in advance by calling the Hospice office at 301-334-5151, in the Grantsville area at 800-521-5252, or TTY at 800-735-2258.

She allegedly possessed a pipe used to ingest/inhale by smoking CDS marijuana.

Support Group For Depression, Bipolar To Meet

The Western Maryland chapter of the Depression and Bipolar Support Alliance (DBSA) has announced that a new support group is being formed for area people living with depression or bipolar disorder. Beginning on Monday, March 15, the DBSA will host regular, confidential, peer-led, self-help support group meetings.

The support group will meet on the first and third Mondays of each month at the Grantsville Library from 6 to 7:30 p.m.

DBSA Western Maryland groups are open to anyone who is diagnosed with a mood disorder, or has a family member or friend who is diagnosed with a mood disorder: dysthymia, major depression, PMDD, post-partum depression, or bipolar disorder (manic depression).

"DBSA support groups are not run by professionals, but instead offer peer-to-peer support which is an important component of recovery from mental illness for many people," a spokesperson said. However, the group does have a professional advisor.

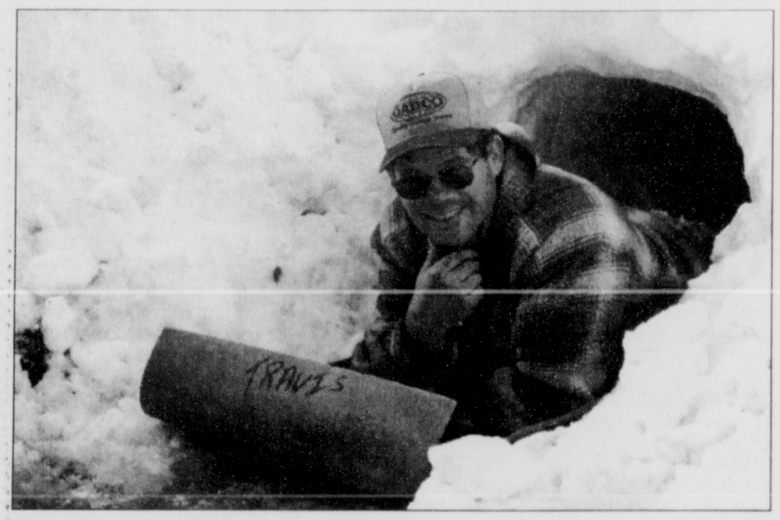
SCOUTS LEARN THE SKILLS OF WINTER CAMPING – Boy Scout Troop 31 of Oakland was scheduled for a sledding outing over the weekend of Feb. 26 and 17, but the enormous snowfall made that impractical. The leaders said they modified their plans and instead taught the boys how to build igloos. Then they learned the art of winter camping. Each boy built his own igloo, learning survival skills necessary to build a warm shelter in the winter, and they cooked over an open fire. Each igloo was inspected by the Scoutmaster for safety, and then, after cooking their lunch and dinner over the fire, the Scouts hunkered down for the night. "It was a great learning opportunity for the boys and a memorable experience for the scoutmasters as well," said Scoutmaster Bob Orr. The "survivors" of the overnight adventure are pictured above. From left are Travis Paugh, Dylan Paugh, Stan Paugh, Doug Burton, Tony Orr, and Michael Paugh. At right is a picture of the boys' campfire with their stew cooking. Below is assistant Scoutmaster Stan Paugh as he emerges from his igloo. The group's event took place at the same time as the town of Oakland's Winter Fest event, as well as in the same month as the Boy Scouts of America's 100th anniversary. For information on Troop 31's upcoming camping, hiking, and biking activities, or to discuss joining the group, persons may contact Orr at 301-616-0621 or by e-mail at bob@offlakerentals.com.



"Marylanders Plant Trees 2010 School Challenge" Begins

Gov. Martin O'Malley last Thursday announced the Marylanders Plant Trees 2010 School Challenge, encouraging students and teachers to participate in the state's citizen tree planting program on behalf of their schools.

Under the program in 2009, citizens planted and registered more than 41,000 tees, and the state planted 204,000 trees through the Department of Public Safety and Corrections Forest Brigade and State Highway projects.

"Every citizen who planted a tree this year – whether that tree was registered through our program or not – made an important contribution to our air, our water, and our future," O'Malley said. "This spring, I am challenging our young people to do their part in helping create a smarter, greener, more sustainable future by coordinating plantings on behalf of their schools."

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) staff officially kicked off the challenge at the Maryland Association for Environmental and Outdoor Education conference in Flintstone last weekend, and has already distributed materials to more than 2,200 Maryland teachers to help them include the program and its benefits into their lesson plans.

The challenge runs through April 30. Trees planted at any time between April 1 and April 30 may be counted toward a school's goal. The schools with the most trees planted will be named to the School Challenge Honor Roll, and the grand prize winner will receive a DNR field day, which will be held on the winning school campus this coming fall.

"With all of the snow we've had over the past few weeks, we hope our students will be excited to work with their teachers, friends, families, and communities to plan for planting in April," said O'Malley.

In cooperation with participating nurseries, the program continues to offer $25 coupons toward the purchase of native trees costing $50 or more, redeemable at nearly 70 nurseries across the state.

The governor and DNR are encouraging Marylanders to register every tree they plant. Not only will they be eligible for prizes, but they will be able to see the environmental benefits of their trees through interactive maps and charts. For more information, a list of prizes, and to register a tree, persons may visit trees.-maryland.gov/index.asp.

Local Reps Asked To Help Allocate FEMA Funds

Representatives from the Garrett County commissioners, Mtn. Top Ministerial Association, Catholic Charities, the Department of Social Services, and the American Red Cross have been selected to assist the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) in determining how the Emergency Food and Shelter Grant, recently awarded to Garrett County, will be allocated.

A national board was charged to distribute funds appropriated by Congress to help expand the capacity of the food and shelter programs in high need around the country, a spokesperson said.

Under the terms of the grant from the national board, local governmental or private voluntary organizations chosen to receive funds must be non-profit, have an accounting system and conduct an annual audit, practice nondiscrimination, have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and or shelter programs, and must have a boundary board, if a private voluntary organization.

The selection of local persons was made by a national board which was chaired by FEMA, consisting of representatives from the Salvation Army, American Red Cross, and a council of the Jewish Federation and Catholic Charities.

The national board includes a representative of the United Way of America, which will provide the administrative duties and function as the fiscal agent.

For more information on the Emergency Food and Shelter Program in Garrett County, persons may contact Linda Green, director of community and emergency dervices for Garrett County Community Action, at 301-334-9431 by March 5 at 4:30 p.m.

The GCCAC Community and Emergency Services programs promote the agency's goal of increasing the number of families and individuals who are economically self-sufficient and able to live independently in the county, the spokesperson said.

Ian Aiken Serves As Page For '10 Gen. Assembly

While most Garrett County School students were at home during a week of snow days, Northern High School student Ian Aiken was taking part in a hands-on learning experience, serving as a student page in the House of Delegates during the 2010 session of the Maryland General Assembly.

Maryland's high school seniors have had the opportunity since 1970 to learn about the legislative process by serving as student pages in the House of Delegates and the Senate of Maryland during the annual session of the state's General Assembly.

The program was launched by House Speaker Thomas Hunter Lowe and approved by the Maryland State Board of Education. Student page duties include keeping the members' bill books up to date, distributing materials on the floor to the members, running errands, answering the phone and assisting visitors, and delivering messages to the members.

In addition to his assigned page duties, Aiken also had the opportunity to observe committee hearings.

"I really enjoyed listening to testimony from citizens on how proposed legislation would affect their lives," the student said. He added that he was impressed with the "dynamic flow of ideas" between the delegates and their "level of commitment to their constituents."

"It was a great experience, and I really appreciated the time Delegate Beitzel and Senator Edwards spent discussing the proposed legislation and answering my questions," the student said.

Aiken plans to start college this fall and major in political science. He then hopes to go on to law school.

Registration For Kindergarten To Be Held In April, May

The Garrett County Board of Education announces that the annual comprehensive preschool registration program will be held again this year. This program is for all children entering kindergarten or first grade for the first time in August. Children who will be 5 years old by Sept. 1 are required to register for kindergarten. Those children who are not 5 years old by Sept. 1 are not eligible for kindergarten registration through this program.

The kindergarten registration program will be held in all elementary schools during April and May. Through the comprehensive registration program, each child registering for school will receive a general (confidential) health interview and dental screening. The Garrett County Health Department will provide immunizations for a fee of $12 or will bill insurer or private insurance.

Parents must register any child who will be 5 by Sept. 1. The law allows exemptions to the school attendance requirements as follows:

•Permits compliance through the home school instruction regulation;

•Grants a one-year immaturity waiver if the parent or guardian makes a written request to the local school system;

•Allows a 5-year-old to be enrolled in one of three alternative program settings: a full-time licensed child care center; a full-time registered family day care home; or part-time in a Head Start 5-year-old program;

•Parents who choose to use one of the exemptions must requrest the appropriate exemption form from the Department of Pupil Services at 301-334-8939.

State regulations require parents to provide evidence of child's birth (birth certificate), an official immunization record, and documented proof of current residency. REMOVING KIDNEY STONES

Q. A friend went to the hospital because of kidney stones, and was back again later that same day! I expected the hospitalization to last a week. How did this formerly major problem turn into such simple and quick surgery?

A. Getting rid of kidney stones is one of the hi-tech advances in medical technology where a laser is used to put in just the right amount of energy at exactly the right place.

The job of the kidneys is to take waste products out of the bloodstream and send urine to the bladder, to be excreted. As long as the chemical balance is just right, that process works fine. But in some cases, excessive minerals collecting in the urine can solidify into tiny crystals. If enough of them build up, the crystals accumulate into a stone.

The possible causes are many, but most often are due to frequent dehydration or an absence of citrate. One way that doctors treat kidney stones while they're still small is to feed the patient lots of citrate, in order to dissolve the minerals and wash out the waste products.

However, when a kidney stone grows big enough, it can block the tube leading to the bladder (the ureter) and then trouble begins. There is considerable pain, which is a warning sign that there is no flow of urine. For a substantial kidney stone to pass through the ureter, bladder, and out of the body it can be extremely painful, and large kidney stones can't fit at all; they sit there blocking the tube. Then surgical removal is required.

In the old days you would need to undergo an incision in your back, followed by the surgeon opening the chamber that holds the kidney and ureter, and the stone physically lifted out. Then everything had to be stitched back up. That's the days-in-the-hospital saga of the past. Recently, tools have been developed that allow a smaller incision, but open operations are no longer the urologist's first choice.

With laser technology, things have gotten much simpler and safer, and operations to remove kidney stones can be done as outpatient surgery. To get at kidney stones, there is an alternate route into the kidneys: by sending flexible tools up through the exit tube from the bladder (the urethra). That tube serves approximately the same function in both men and women, despite different shapes. When the patient is anesthetized, the instruments can be inserted through the urethra and passed through the bladder and up the ureter to the kidney.

Fiber optics is a wonderful technology that enables the surgeon to fire a pulse of energy into a target very precisely. In one typical process called Holmium laser lithotripsy, the source of the energy is a machine outside the body, a Holmium:YAG laser (YAG stands for yttrium-aluminum-garnet, a common type of solid-state laser). The output pulse from this device is at an energy level in the near infrared, at 2.1 microns wavelength. That energy level has been chosen carefully for maximum effectiveness. A fiber optic cable carries the pulse of energy up to the kidney, where it's fired directly at the kidney stone. A small amount of material is vaporized, and that tends to break the stone apart. A few hundred laser pulses later, the kidney stone is reduced to rubble. Small pieces pass through the ureter. Larger pieces are retrieved via a small basket.

There are also completely non-invasive methods for destroying kidney stones. There are ingenuous ways of producing high-energy ultrasonic waves outside the body that are focused on the kidney stone, so as to damage it without damaging the body. There have been a lot of technological advances in surgical techniques in recent decades.

Long ago, a kidney stone could be fatal. Nowadays, it can be treated as outpatient surgery. Of course, the better way is to avoid them in the first place. That means maintaining the proper chemical processes within your body, so that kidney stones never begin to form. A dietitian or urologist can provide guidance toward optimizing body chemistry.

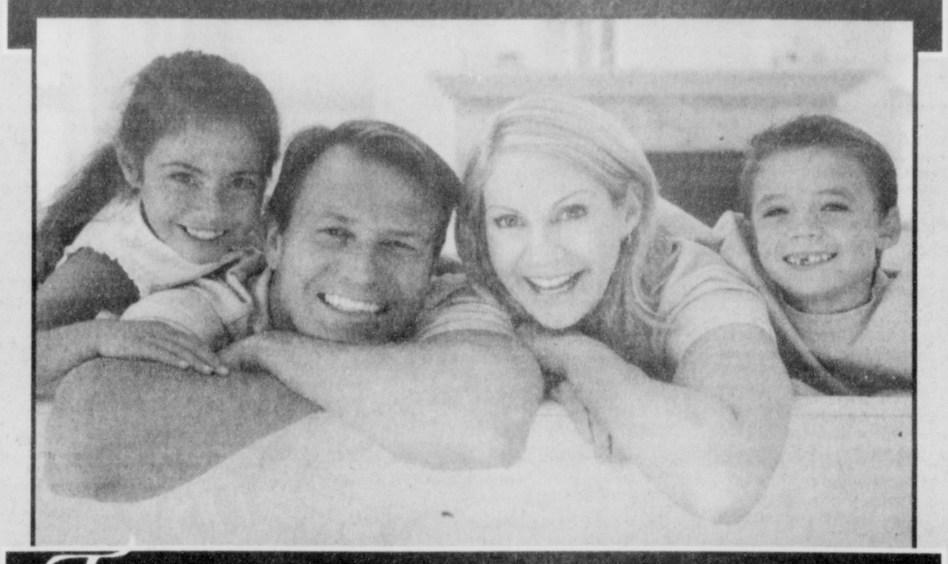
Wait 'Til Your Father Gets Home



© istockphoto.com/monkey/businessimages

Though the world is constantly changing, this phrase is still around. While it might be helpful to those mothers who are at the end of their rope, it sure does give dads a bad rap. After all, dad doesn't know what's awaiting him behind the front door. Although his children might be rightfully apprehensive, they know that he loves them even though he expects them to behave. Therefore, some appropriate repercussion is not a surprise.

Like dad, Our Heavenly Father loves us even more than we can imagine. His words to us are found in the Holy Bible. Though we may cause ourselves grief when we do not obey, God still forgives us when we ask Him to. His love never wavers. Psalm 115:11 reassures us, "You who fear him, trust in the Lord – He is their help and shield."

Worship this week and learn more about your Father's eternal and unconditional love.

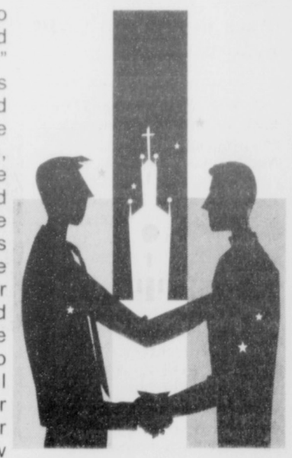
How to Be a Better Friend



In his book "How to Win Friends and Influence People," Dale Carnegie gives some very simple and straightforward advice on making friends, namely, "Become genuinely interested in other people." One easy way to do this is to ask people questions about their interests and concerns. These questions should go beyond superficial questions about their jobs or their education, or how their families are doing, and instead should strive to get to the more interesting kernel of their affairs. A good question about someone's profession might ask what motivated them to go into their field, or what sort of interesting developments are happening in their field today. People love to talk about themselves and their interests, and by talking less about ourselves and inquiring more about others, we help to build a genuine interest in them. We might find that other people really do have something interesting to tell us. Ralph Waldo Emerson is reputed to have said that "Every man I meet is in some way my superior; and in that I can learn from him." Whether Emerson actually said this or not, the sentiment is certainly one we all should take to heart. We should listen to our friends and neighbors, and perhaps even to our enemies, and by taking a genuine interest in their lives and their concerns we might just learn a thing or two. We will certainly gain their friendship and affection.

Let every man be quick to hear, slow to speak, slow to anger, for the anger of a man does not work the righteousness of God.

R.S.V James 1:19-20

Treatments Used for GBS

Guillain-Barré syndrome (GBS) is characterized by progressive muscle weakness, which may lead to paralysis. Weakness usually starts in the legs, but may also begin in the arms or facial muscles. The condition typically develops within 2 weeks. Guillain-Barré syndrome involves inflammation and nerve pain. This condition is thought to be caused by an abnormal reaction of the immune system. The majority of persons affected develop symptoms within several weeks after an infection, vaccine, or surgery. Signs and symptoms include tingling in the toes and fingers, difficulty speaking, severe lower back pain, and difficulty breathing.

Treatment typically consists of plasmapheresis or intravenous immune globulin (IVIG). Plasmapheresis, or plasma exchange, is the process of removing plasma from blood and returning blood cells to the body to produce new plasma. The process aims to remove abnormal antibodies from the body. Intravenous immune globulin (IVIG) may be administered at high doses to provide healthy antibodies and also block harmful antibodies from attacking and causing symptoms. For persons that experience continued nerve pain, corticosteroids may be prescribed. Immunosuppressive medications, such as azathioprine, may also be beneficial.

Back in a 'Flash': ABC drama resumes soon

By Jay Bobbin

Joseph Fiennes

Q: Will "FlashForward" be back, or have they canceled the program? –Cynthia Vecellio, La Veta, Colo.

A: It'll be back, and very soon, too. Joseph Fiennes, Sonya Walger and the other stars of the ABC drama are slated to return with fresh episodes starting March 18.

Q: On "Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve," I saw Justin Bieble wearing a cast boot on his right leg. What happened to him? –Kenneth Rojas, San Antonio

A: He's actually Justin Bieber, and the young music star broke his right foot while opening for Taylor Swift in a concert at London's Wembley Arena. We're not sure which is worse – well, OK, we are – but he also had to forgo his encore at that show. He then had to wear the cast you saw for the following six weeks.

Q: I've been reading your column every week, but haven't seen anyone ask about Sasha Alexander, whose character was killed on "NCIS." What is she doing now? –Marcia Corum, Seattle

A: In fact, a number of readers have asked about her (and have continued to), but there's some new information since the last time we addressed this. The actress has been signed by TNT to co-star with Angie Harmon ("Law & Order," "Women's Murder Club") in "Rizzoli & Isles," an upcoming mystery series based on novels by Tess Gerritsen.

Alexander will play a medical examiner who works with a homicide detective (Harmon) to investigate crimes in Boston; Lorraine Bracco ("The Sopranos") and Billy Burke ("Twilight") also will have roles in the show, which had no set premiere date as of this writing.

Q: I've been waiting for "Friday Night Lights" to resume. Is it in vain? –Dan McKibben, LaPorte, Ind.

A: It is not. The fourth season of the football drama, which initially was shown on DirecTV – as was the case with the series' third season – is set to begin its over-the-air NBC run April 30. And on Friday nights, no less.

Q: Could you please tell me if "Barney Miller" can be purchased on DVD? –Wilbur Wright, Decatur, Ala.

A: The first three seasons of Hal Linden's former ABC police comedy are available in individual boxed sets. There's also a "Fan Favorites" compilation disc that was released last fall, but be aware that it contains only three episodes of the series.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It was American sports writer Art Spander who made the following sage observation: "The great thing about democracy is that it gives every voter a chance to do something stupid."

• With only two known to exist, the rarest U.S. postage stamp is the 1-cent 1868 Benjamin Franklin Z-Grill, so called because of the shape that was impressed into the stamp. One of the Z-Grills is in the collection of the New York Public Library, and the other was sold in 1998 for $935,000. That's not the end of the story, though; in October of 2005, the same stamp was traded for a block of stamps valued at $3 million.

• The next time you're eating an Oreo cookie, consider this: It takes 90 minutes to make each cookie, and each one has precisely 90 ridges on the rim.

• Hindus do not eat eggs, believing them to be a valuable source of life.

• It may be hard to believe, but there is an official competition to see who can sit in a sauna for the longest period of time. The World Sauna Championships have taken place in Heinola, Finland, annually since 1999. The starting temperature is a sweltering 110 degrees Celsius (230 F), and a liter of water is poured on the stove every 30 seconds. The winner is the last person who is able to leave the sauna without assistance. Competitors participate at their own risk, and they are required to sign a waiver agreeing not to take legal action against the event organizers.

• The word hippopotamus comes from the Greek for "river horse."

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 11, 1818, "Frankenstein; or, The Modern Prometheusm" is published. The book, by 21-year-old Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley, is frequently called the world's first science-fiction novel. In Shelley's tale, a scientist animates a creature constructed from dismembered corpses.

• On March 10, 1876, the first discernible speech is transmitted over a telephone system when inventor Alexander Graham Bell summons his assistant in another room by saying, "Mr. Watson, come here; I want you." Bell had received a telephone patent three days before, just hours ahead of another inventor, Elisha Gray.

• On March 12, 1903, the New York Highlanders are given the go-ahead by team owners to join baseball's American League. The Highlanders had recently moved from Baltimore, where they were called the Orioles. The team officially changed its name to the New York Yankees in 1913.

• On March 14, 1935, 6-year-old actress Shirley Temple presses her hands in cement outside Grauman's Chinese Theater in Los Angeles. She first won attention with a song and dance in the 1934 movie "Get Up and Cheer."

• On March 13, 1942, the Quartermaster Corps of the U.S. Army begins training dogs for the newly established War Dog Program, or "K-9 Corps." The top canine hero of World War II was Chips, who attacked an enemy machine gun nest in Italy, forcing the entire crew to surrender. The wounded Chips was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star and the Purple Heart — all of which were later revoked due to an Army policy preventing official commendation of animals.

• On March 9, 1959, the first Barbie doll goes on display at the American Toy Fair in New York City. Barbie was the first mass-produced toy doll in the United States with adult features. Barbie's appearance was modeled on a doll named Lilli, based on a German comic-strip character.

Collecting

by Larry Cox

Q. I collected 15 of the 24 entertainers in the Classic Clowns and Entertainers collection that was issued by Duncan Royale. Are they worth anything now? —June, Albuquerque, N.M.

A. During the 1980s, Duncan Royale took the collectible gift market by storm when it issued its History of Santa Claus collection. That was followed by The History of Pirates and Buccaneers, African Kings and Queens, and an ebony series that celebrated African-American culture. In 1987, the 24-piece issue of the evolutions of entertainers and clowns was introduced.

A reference book, The History of Classic Clowns and Entertainers, by James A. Bates, Danielle Aphessetche and Charles Stalter, also was published by Duncan Royale the following year. It should be helpful. To find out more about current values, I suggest you monitor the Duncan Royale sales on eBay. To learn more about the company and its various products, the official club site might be helpful: The Duncan Royal Collectors Club, 1141 S. Acadia Ave., Fullerton, CA 92531.

GET THE CREDIT YOU DESERVE

Mortgage applications are being reviewed far more thoroughly now than in the past, and your credit score should be 680 or higher to qualify for the best interest rates. So how do you determine your score, and know you're getting the credit you deserve?

Everyone is allowed one free credit report per year from the three reporting agencies (Experian, Equifax and TransUnion). Review the reports for accuracy and act quickly to correct any errors or omissions.

Approximately 35% of your credit score is based on the timeliness of your payments. Make sure that no late payments older than seven years are still on your report.

If you have paid off loans or credit cards, a zero balance should appear on those accounts. Sometimes, agencies don't properly update those balances after settlement.

15% of your credit score is based on the length of your credit history, so make sure that the opening dates of all your accounts are accurate. Also make sure that the limits on your credit cards are correct, and keep the balances under 50% of those limits. Total debt accounts for 30% of your credit score.

Finally, think twice about closing credit card accounts with zero balances, because this negatively reduces your ratio of "available credit" to your debt. First, get the facts. Then, make corrections. Finally, apply for home financing with confidence! Call your REALTOR® and get the ball rolling today.

If you are thinking of buying or selling a home but feel "out of touch" with real estate, give me a call today.

Friends Of DCL Meet With DNR Secretary Griffin

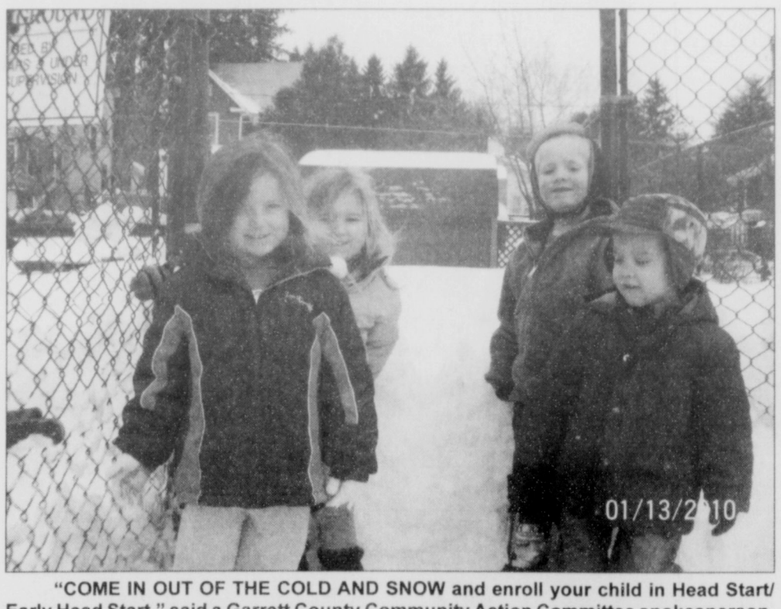
Friends of Deep Creek Lake members recently met with Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary John R. Griffin in Annapolis. The group was following up on its fall petition campaign in which 148 lake stakeholders requested that the DNR create a plan to address intrusion of submerged aquatic grasses, and 141 stakeholders requested a dredging plan to address the shoaling of the coves throughout the lake.

Griffin brought in high level staff for the meeting and devoted an hour and a half to learning about the issues of the lake and exploration of options, according to Barbara Beelar, Friends of DCL director.

"We had an excellent first conversation and look forward to working with the secretary in the future," reported Larry Silverman, Friends of DCL board legal counsel.

Beelar started her group's meeting with the secretary by acknowledging the "heavy burdens" that he is under because of current budget problems.

"We have shaped out requests this year in light of the serious fiscal constraints you face," Beelar told the secretary.



"COME IN OUT OF THE COLD AND SNOW and enroll your child in Head Start/ Early Head Start," said a Garrett County Community Action Committee spokesperson. Head Start and Early Head Start applications for the 2010-2011 school year and 2010 options waiting list are being accepted. Increasing the number of children entering school ready to learn is one of Community Action's primary objectives, the spokesperson noted. The Head Start/Early Head Start programs also promote the agency's goal of creating a positive attitude about the value of education among working families and young people, thereby increasing the number of Garrett County families who are economically self-sufficient. Interested parents may call the family service staff at 301-334-9431 for Head Start or 301-334-4211 for Early Head Start to make an appointment to complete an application or to obtain more information. An open house will be held at each center/classroom in various parts of the county this month. Dates and times will be announced. Pictured are Amelia Fitzwater, Ashlynn McEwan, Jett Miller, and Wyatt Rush of the Oakland Center Street 12-month classroom enjoying a day in the snow.

Her group's specific request is for DNR to fund a dredging plan for Deep Creek Lake. The state has a Waterways Improvement Fund, which can pay for dredging, Beelar noted. To obtain these funds, however, a dredging plan must be developed. Beelar reminded the secretary that, currently, all lake management costs are borne by the lake property holders through the dock permit fee.

"It only seems fair the state support this one small project, given the huge revenues it enjoys from residential and commercial lake property taxes," Beelar said.

William Heinz, Penn Cove property owner, showed the secretary photos of his cove and others, illustrating problems of low and no water in early September. The photo of Thayerville Cove and Arrowhead dock area drew the secretary's attention, according to Beelar.

"The issue of the hydroelectric dam draw down schedule in the fall seems to be exacerbating the problems, but it is the responsibility of the Maryland Department of Environment, not DNR," she said.

Beelar talked about the challenges of trying to get stream protections, since most of the 110 miles of tributaries feeding the lake go through private property.

"There is a buffer zone along the lake shoreline but no comparable zone of protection along the streams which feed the lake," stated Beelar.

John F. Wilson, head of the DNR Water Quality Working Group, said he was very concerned about stormwater and road runoff into the lake. Beelar said she shares his concerns but, stated again, "this is the job of the county, not DNR."

Deputy Secretary Eric Swaab contributed to the discussion, drawing on his experience as Deep Creek Lake manager for several years before the state purchased the lake.

"It turns out, this was one of his last meetings at DNR," Beelar said.

Shortly after meeting with her group, Swaab accepted a job with National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration as head of fisheries, according to Beelar.

Griffin was asked to provide clarity as to whether Deep Creek Lake is covered under the major environmental legislation – the Chesapeake and Atlantic Coastal Bay 2010 Trust Fund.

"Since the lake does not feed into the Bay, it may be our small corner of Maryland is yet again paying taxes for programs we can not use," said Beelar. "This is even more important, since this is one of the few areas [for] which the governor's budget includes a major increase in funding for the coming year."

Ellen Williams, Friends of DCL board member, assured Griffin that the impacts of lake aging are not just a concern of a few people in the coves. As someone with property on the main channel of the lake, she reported, "The water quality by my property has changed. It is muddier and we get the floating weed masses in the late summer. I enjoy kayaking, and I now see lots of areas where the lake is not like it used to be."

Following his meeting with Friends of DCL, Griffin met with Garrett County's state delegation, Del. Wendell Beitzel and Sen. George Edwards, according to Beelar.

The deposit must be increased to 10% of the purchase price before 3:00 pm on March 10, 2010 in the office of the auctioneer in the form of a cashier's check or certified check. The deposit will not earn interest in the hands of the Substitute Trustees. The Noteholder or its affiliate, if a bidder, shall not be required to post a deposit. Immediately after the sale, the successful bidder shall execute and deliver a contract of sale with the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder, copies of which shall be available for inspection immediately before the sale. The balance of the purchase price shall be paid by a cashier's or certified check, or such other form as the Substitute Trustees may determine acceptable, in their sole discretion, at settlement, which must occur within twenty (20) days following final ratification of the sale of the Property by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, unless such period is extended by the Substitute Trustees, time being of the essence. If payment of the balance of the purchase price does not take place within such period of time aforesaid, in addition to any other legal or equitable remedies available to them, the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder may declare the entire deposit forfeited and resell the Property and the Personal Property at the risk and cost of the defaulting purchaser. In such event, the defaulting purchaser shall be liable for the payment of any deficiency in the purchase price, all costs and expenses of both sales, attorneys' fees and all other charges incurred by the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder. Purchaser waives personal service of any paper filed in connection with a motion to resell the Property on the purchaser and/or any principal or corporate designee, and expressly agrees to accept service of any such paper by regular mail directed to the address provided by the bidder at the time of the sale. If the Property and the Personal Property are purchased by someone other than the Noteholder, interest shall be paid on the unpaid purchase price at the rate of ten percent (10%) per annum from date of sale to the date of settlement, or such date that funds are received by the Substitute Trustees. There will be no abatement of interest due from the purchaser if additional funds are tendered before settlement or if settlement is delayed for any reason. Taxes, water bills, and all other municipal liens and charges and all other public charges and assessments payable on an annual basis, if any, shall be adjusted to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. Any condominium association fees, assessments or capital contributions payable with respect to the Property shall be adjusted to date of sale and assumed thereafter by the purchaser. The purchaser shall pay all settlement costs, including title examination charges, title insurance premiums, county and state recordation and transfer taxes (including all sums payable as a result of the Deed of Trust's status as an indemnity deed of trust) and recording costs. The purchaser shall pay all costs incidental to the conveyance of the Property and the Personal Property. Purchaser shall pay at settlement reasonable attorneys' fees and disbursements incurred in the preparation of the deed of conveyance, the bill of sale and other settlement documentation, including $295.00 to the seller's attorney for review of the settlement documents and an additional fee of $295.00 for review of any motion which may be subsequently filed with the court to substitute a purchaser herein. The purchaser shall be responsible for obtaining physical possession of the Property and the Personal Property. Additional terms may be announced at the time of sale. If the Noteholder or its affiliate is the purchaser of the Property and the Personal Property at the sale, the amount bid at the sale by the Noteholder or its affiliate shall be a credit against the indebtedness secured by the Deed of Trust.

The Property and the Personal Property will be sold and conveyed subject to all encumbrances, rights, reservations, covenants, conditions, restrictions, rights of redemption, rights of entry, easements, agreements of record, notifications and statutory liens, if any, having priority over the Deed of Trust as they may lawfully affect the Property and the Personal Property and subject to all applicable building and zoning code violations, subject to all environmental problems and violations which may exist on or with respect to the Property, and subject to all matters that an accurate survey or physical inspection of the Property might disclose. The Property and the Personal Property will be sold subject to the right of redemption of the United States of America, if such right exists.

The Property is sold specifically subject to the operation and effect of (i) the Declaration of Condominium of Alpine Village Condominium dated December 31, 2002 and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on January 8, 2003 at Liber No. 941, page 249, (ii) Declaration of Reciprocal Easements, Covenants and Restrictions dated December 31, 2002 and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on January 8, 2003 at Liber No. 941, page 294, and (iii) the Amended and Restated Declaration of Condominium of Alpine Village Condominium recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland on March 15, 2007 at Liber No. 1294, page 136, as may be amended from time to time.

The Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder reserve the right: (1) to accept or reject any or all bids, (2) to modify or waive the requirements for bidder's deposits and terms of sale and/or settlement; (3) to approve the creditworthiness of any bidder or final purchaser; (4) to withdraw the Property and/or Personal Property from the sale prior to acceptance of the final bid(s); (5) to keep the bidding open for any length of time and (6) to cancel or postpone the sale.

The Property and the Personal Property are sold and conveyed in "AS IS, WHERE IS" condition. Neither the Substitute Trustees, the Noteholder nor any other party make any warranty or representation, either express or implied, of any kind or nature regarding the Property or the Personal Property, including, without limitation, the description, use, physical condition, subdivision, zoning, environmental condition, compliance with applicable laws, ordinances, or regulations, structural integrity, physical condition, condition of the soil, workmanship, habitability, merchantability, or fitness for a particular purpose. The purchaser shall assume the risk of loss for the Property and the Personal Property immediately after the sale.

If the Substitute Trustees and the Noteholder are unable to convey the Property and/or the Personal Property as described above, by reason of any defect in the title or otherwise, the sole remedy of the purchaser at law or in equity shall be limited to the refund of the aforementioned deposit. Upon refund of the deposit to the purchaser, the sale shall be void and of no effect, and the purchaser shall have no further claims against the Substitute Trustees or the Noteholder. The conveyance of the Property by the Substitute Trustees to the Purchaser at settlement shall be by deed without covenant or warranty of any kind whatsoever.

State Completes Sale Of Nearly $600K In Bonds

Maryland State Treasurer Nancy K. Kopp announced that the Maryland Board of Public Works (BPW), comprising Gov. Martin O'Malley, Comptroller Peter Franchot, and Kopp, completed the successful competitive sale of $595,315,000 of general obligation bonds last week.

The sale, which included $195,315,000 in tax-exempt refunding bonds and $400 million in taxable Build America Bonds, sold at true interest rates of 2.965 percent and 2.849 percent, respectively.

The winning bidder for the tax-exempt refunding bonds was Jefferies & Company Inc., while the winning bidder for the Build America Bonds was Citigroup Global Markets Inc.

The sale of the refunding bonds resulted in $8.6 million in present value savings, according to Kopp.

"Today's overall low rate underscores the intrinsic value of our AAA rating and shows again that investors see Maryland as an exceptionally safe and prudent investment," she said.

The BABs, which were authorized by the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, are taxable bonds for which the U.S. Treasury will pay 35 percent of the interest to the state. They offer financial advantages to issuers in the longer maturities, explaining why the state is issuing them only in the 2019-2025 maturities. The state received a savings of $11.2 million from the sale of the Build America Bonds, compared to a sale of traditional tax-exempt bonds, Kopp noted.

CHOSEN AS MISS APPALACHIA OUTSTANDING TEEN – Local student Stevee Royce, 14, was recently chosen as Miss Appalachia Outstanding Teen at a pageant held at Mtn. Ridge High School, Frostburg. A total of 11 contestants competed for the titles of Miss University City, Miss Appalachia, Miss University City Outstanding Teen, and Miss Appalachia Outstanding Teen. Royce (far left) is the daughter of Kiley and Traci Royce, Oakland. She is the granddaughter of Cecil and Kay Royce, Terra Alta, W.Va., and Harry and Lois Martin, Oakland. During her year of service, she plans to lead children by embracing their interest in reading through Landon's Library. Pictured from left are Miss Appalachia Outstanding Teen Stevee Royce; Miss Appalachia Rachel Harkins, 23, Kingsville; Miss University City Hannah Mollerick, 18, Jessup; and Miss University Outstanding Teen Aleksandra Knepper, 14, Frostburg.

"As has been true during our bond sales the past 12 months, we did very well in a very difficult economic climate," Kopp said. "We attracted extremely favorable interest rates for our sale of tax-exempt and Build America Bonds. We can and should attribute this success to our AAA rating, which in turn is attributable to the willingness of Maryland's government leaders to make tough, prudent budgetary decisions in tough times."

On Feb. 18, all three major bond rating agencies –Standard & Poor's Ratings Services, Moody's Investors Service and Fitch Ratings – reaffirmed the state's AAA bond rating. Maryland is one of only seven states to currently hold the AAA rating, the highest possible rating, from all three bond rating agencies. The agencies' reports recognized both the state's challenging budget problems and its history of strong financial management.

A Fitch Ratings spokesperson said: "The state's 'AAA' rating reflects its sound financial operations, a wealthy, diversified economy, and solid management of debt. The state's economy is suffering through a deep recession, with widespread job losses and a severe housing market decline affecting state revenue collections. The state has taken prompt and repeated action to preserve operating balance, including tax increases, repeated spending cuts and use of federal stimulus balances; nonetheless, the rainy day fund balance remains funded at its statutory target of 5% of revenues."

He further stated: "The state's financial operations are conservative, and the state continues to demonstrate a commitment to maintaining budgetary balance."

In assigning its AAA long-term rating and stable outlook, a spokesperson for Standard & Poor's said, "The stable outlook reflects Standard & Poor's view of Maryland's economic strength and historically strong financial and debt management policies. We believe that the state has proactively responded to recent structural budget imbalance, and we would expect continued focus on achieving structural budget balance. Maryland has made steady commitment to funding reserves, which we believe enhances its flexibility in the current economic environment."

He added, "Despite sustaining significant revenue deterioration against budget in fiscal 2010, Maryland has taken steps to maintain adequate reserve levels in the general fund."

A Moody's spokesperson, in explaining his company's AAA rating and stable credit outlook, said, "The outlook for Maryland's general obligation debt is stable. The state faces significant budget pressure that will test the state's financial management abilities. Past budget forecasts have shown sizable out-year deficits which the state was able to manage. The stable outlook reflects Moody's expectation that the state will again manage its budget gap, as it has in the past, and maintain its practice of conservative budgeting."

He also said, "Maryland has a good history of managing its finances through periods of fiscal stress. Moody's expects that, like other AAA-rated states and in keeping with Maryland's historically conservative financial management and aggressive approach to dealing with budget shortfalls, the state will soon stabilize its finances.'

All three rating agencies point to the state's strong, resilient economy, Kopp noted.

Standard & Poor's referred to Maryland's "diverse, broad-based economy, which has historically outperformed the national economy."

Fitch Ratings said, "The state has a diverse, wealthy economy, driven by its proximity to the nation's capital and the importance of Baltimore. "

Moody's noted, "Maryland's economy has diversified in recent years, but continues to be proportionally more affected by the activities of the federal government than any other state…the ongoing Base Realignment and Closure Commission (BRAC) reorganization is expected to result in a significant increase in new jobs, [though] the timing and degree of the impact is uncertain."

The Maryland State Treasurer's Office expects to conduct another bond sale either in late July 2010 or early August 2010.

TESTING YOUR HEARING
A comprehensive hearing evaluation includes an audiogram, in which tested individuals sit in a soundproof booth wearing earphones that test each ear separately. The listener will hear a series of tones at various frequencies and be asked to indicate the softest tone he or she can hear with each ear in the low-, mid-, and high-frequency ranges. Those with excellent hearing will generally be able to hear tones as soft as 20 decibels (dB) or less; those unable to hear tones softer than 45-60 dB have moderate hearing loss. A determination of "speech reception threshold" (lowest levels at which words can be heard and repeated) and an evaluation of "speech discrimination" (ability to distinguish between similar-sounding words) will also be conducted.
When any hearing impairment is suspected, a painless, comprehensive hearing test is in order. It can indicate whether the problem can be helped with surgery, medication, or amplification by a hearing aid. At AUDIBEL, our state-of-the-art hearing tests are conducted and the results evaluated by a highly skilled hearing specialist with advanced training in the art of helping the hearing impaired.
P.S. Inability to hear sound in the 76- to 90-decibel range represents a severe hearing loss.

CONGRATS FROM GEORGE SR. TO GEORGE III – There was no prouder grandfather in the state of Maryland on Saturday than George Scheffel Sr. of Oakland, who is pictured congratulating his grandson George III – also known as Brutus – after the Southern High School senior won his fourth straight Maryland high school wrestling championship, a feat that had been accomplished by only three other wrestlers in the history of the state tournament. The icing on the cake for George Sr. was that Jakob "Bubba" Scheffel, younger brother of Brutus, claimed his second state title, as did teammates Lex Ozias and Davey Stewart. The four individual titles, plus a runner-up win by Ryan Bennett, gave the Rams their second consecutive team state championship. See sports pages for details and additional photos.

A SHARP-SHINNED HAWK paid a visit to an Oakland back yard recently, and was photographically captured by Lisa Rook, advertising manager of this newspaper. A variety of critters have had difficulty this winter just trying to find enough food to survive because of the deep blanket of snow, and this guy was eying fellow – much smaller – fowls on Lisa's birdfeeder. The aforementioned blanket is now melting rapidly, and because of a rainy forecast Garrett County is now under a flood watch.

Melting Snow, Rainfall Could Cause Flooding

Because of the unusually high amount of snow that has fallen this winter, flooding is expected in the area in the days ahead.

"Residents should prepare now for possible future floods," said Director Brad Frantz, Garrett County Department of Public Safety and Emergency Management.

Garrett County government, Public Safety, and public roads officials, in conjunction with Allegany County and Maryland Emergency Management Agency (MEMA), have been taking appropriate steps to minimize the effects of flooding. That includes organizing damage assessment teams ready to be deployed to assess public infrastructure and individual residential and business damages; preparing shelters for evacuation areas, clearing drainage areas, pre-staging swift-water rescue teams; and declaring a local state of emergency in order to acquire outside resources.

Frantz offered the following steps that residents can take in advance to prepare for floods:

•Make sure your insurance policy covers flooding. Even renters are eligible for flood insurance. For more information, you can contact a local insurance agent.

•Move furniture and valuables to higher floors as floodwaters rise.

•Keep your car's gas tank filled in case you need to evacuate.

Follow the instructions given by emergency officials. If told to evacuate, do so.

Listen to radio or television for information, and have a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) weather radio with a warning alarm tone and battery-back-up to receive warnings. You may also receive telephone messages from Garrett County's

Several Items Approved At BOE Meeting

The Garrett County Board of Education recently held its March meeting, at which several topics were discussed, including the updated school calendar for this year, the graduation date, and the budget calendar.

After the board met in executive session, the meeting was opened to the public at 5:30 p.m., with the acceptance of the agenda, announcements, and approval of last meeting's minutes. Information items were the upcoming Garrett County Youth Risk Behavior Survey, the 2010 HSA graduation update, the program Race to the Top, the introduction of a new health course, Health 7-12, Conception to Birth, and the proposed 2010-11 School Calendar.

Action was taken on Board Policy 345.2 and Administrative Procedure 345.21, Physical Education and Athletic Programs for Students with Disabilities, as well as Board Policy 347.7 and Administrative Procedure 347.71, Curricular, Co-curricular, and Extracurricular Activities. Both were unanimously approved. It was approved

Lake Level Still Being Lowered; Public Warned Of Dangerous Ice

The Deep Creek Hydroelectric Station issued another press release this week in its continuing effort to alert persons to the potentially dangerous conditions on Deep Creek Lake. The company is working with the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE) and the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to monitor the snow pack, lake ice thickness, and water level at the lake.

Brookfield Renewable Power, owner of the Deep Creek Hydroelectric Station, in ongoing consultation with the agencies, is making adjustments to the lake level in an effort to minimize serious and potentially damaging high water conditions that will occur as this winter's record lake ice and snow pack thaw. Recreational users of the lake should use extra caution as changing conditions can be dangerous. Persons should be aware that the water level is dropping, so the ice crust may be unsafe.

Brookfield announced last week that it had consulted with MDE and DNR and been granted a waiver to draw the lake level down to two feet below the March lower limit of its water use permit. The 2-foot drawdown was achieved on Sunday, March 7.

The Deep Creek Hydroelectric Station operates under a Water Appropriation and Use permit from the Maryland Department of the Environment (MDE). Under the permit conditions, the station uses water to generate hydropower, while keeping lake levels within a defined "rule band" with upper and lower limits. Any waiver from the rule band limits must be approved by MDE.

Representatives of the MDE, DNR, and Brookfield met Monday to review current lake levels, weather forecasts, and the latest measurement of the snow pack and lake ice. At that meeting, it was determined that Brookfield will continue to gradually lower the lake level beyond the origi-

Seven-Year Long Airport Expansion Project Finalized

The Garrett County Airport Runaway Extension Project is officially completed now that all the paperwork has been finalized, airport manager Ed Kelley told the county commissioners on Tuesday.

His announcement was part of a General Services departmental update report presented by director Gary Mullich.

Because of funding issues, the $17.5 million project was conducted in two phases over seven years. Design work and land acquisition began in 2003. Ground was broken in late 2004, and, finally, a ribbon-cutting ceremony was held at the expanded airport last year.

"Construction was completed in 2009, but we were still in the process of completing the paperwork," Kelley said. He noted that process took about eight months.

Mullich said the commissioners signed off on the airport layout plan about four weeks ago.

"That was the last piece of paperwork to go, which documents everything we've done for the last seven years," the director said.

Oakland Votes For Mayor And Town Council Members

Oakland's municipal election was held this past Monday for town mayor and three council members.

Margaret "Peggy" Jamison was elected mayor with 140 votes. Write-in candidate Aaron White received 9 votes, while write-ins Jeff Browning, Bob Boal, John Maroney, and Asa McCain each received one vote.

New council members Elmer "Butch" Redinger, John "Jack" Rickman, and Sherwin Teagarden received 131, 125, and 122 votes, respectively. Write-in candidate Lois Swartzentruber received 44 votes.

House Committee To Review Beitzel's Wind Turbine Bills

The House Economic Matters Committee will hear three separate proposals sponsored by Del. Wendell Beitzel next Tuesday, March 16 – House Bills 390, 791, and 1013.

HB 390 would give the Garrett County commissioners the authority to enact ordinances regarding commercial grade wind turbines. Specifically, the measure would authorize the commissioners to enact ordinances regarding setbacks and the decommissioning of wind turbines.

This bill has been supported by the Garrett County commissioners and the Garrett County Board of Realtors, Beitzel noted.

"This measure was brought to Sen. George Edwards and me as a request from the Garrett County commissioners during a pre-legislative meeting to set minimal standards for wind turbine development in Garrett County," Beitzel said.

HB 791 and 1013 would be statewide in scope. HB 791 would require the Public Service Commission and the Department of Natural Resources to jointly develop performance standards regarding wind-powered electric generating turbines erected in the state.

HB 1013 would require a surcharge, bond, or other security for the removal of wind-powered electric generating facilities in the event that they outlive their usefulness.

"These measures provide some much needed regulatory controls for wind turbine projects with capacity of less than 70 megawatts that have been exempted from the need to obtain a

Legislation To Help GC Doctors Fails House, Senate Committees

Legislation offered by both Del. Wendell R. Beitzel and Sen. George C. Edwards failed to receive approval of the House Judiciary Committee and the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committees this week. The legislation proposed to include Garrett County doctors performing obstetrical services under the classification of state employee over the next five years.

"This legislation did not increase state spending," said Beitzel. "All it sought to do was provide much needed medical liability insurance assistance for family doctors who provide obstetrical service for the women and children of Garrett County."

The family practitioners were receiving a subsidy as a result of a 2007 legislation presented by Beitzel and Edwards that was subsequently signed into law by Gov. O'Malley. The legislation provided more than $750,000 over three year, but had a sunset provision that ended the subsidy on Dec. 31, 2009.

Money for the physicians' medical malpractice insurance subsidy was provided from the Rate Stabilization Fund. Subsequent efforts to continue the subsidy by legislation introduced by both Beitzel and Edwards failed in 2009 after receiving considerable opposition by the O'Malley administration, which earlier had diverted the proceeds from the Rate Stabilization Fund for other uses.

"Garrett County is unique," Beitzel told the House Judiciary Committee. "There is no other county in the state that is in the same position that we are in. Because the next best hospital is at least 45 minutes to an hour away, this is a women's health issue."

Garrett County is Maryland's sole jurisdiction without a practicing obstetrician. The county relies on the high quality obstetrical care provided by four family practitioners and has some of the state's best birth outcome indicators, Beitzel noted.

The legislation intro-

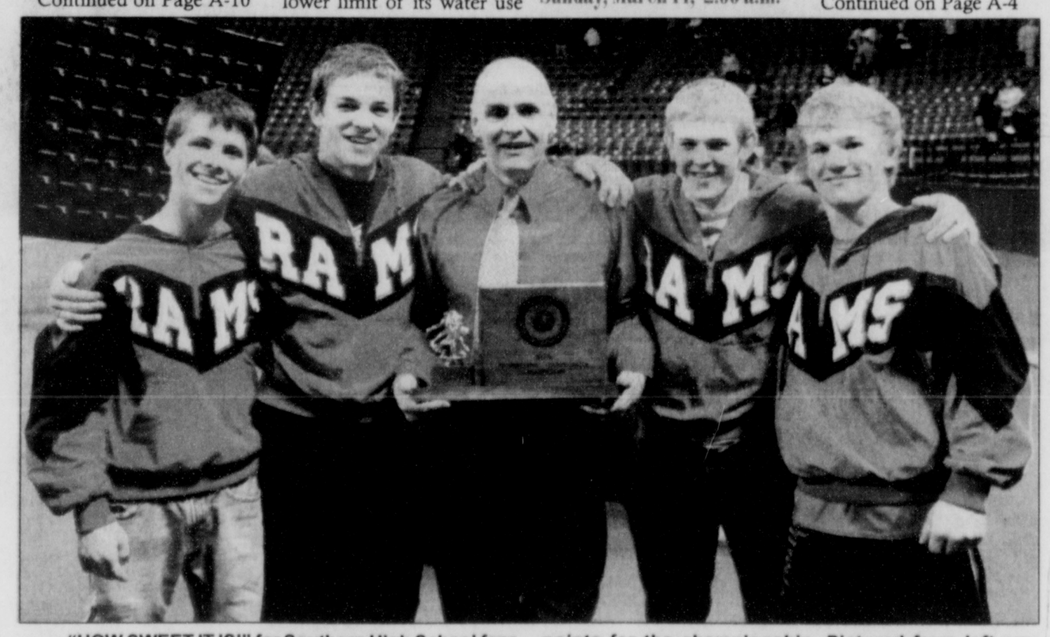
Woman Charged With Second Deg. Murder, Abuse

The first of four indictments handed down by the March 2010 term of the grand jury has been served. Jamie Lynn Hiemenz, 27, Arnold, turned herself in at the Maryland State Police Barrack in McHenry and was arrested on the strength of the warrant issued from Garrett County Circuit Court.

Hiemenz has been charged with second degree murder, manslaughter, first degree child abuse, and reckless endangerment. She appeared for an arraignment with her attorney, Thomas C. Mooney, before Judge Jim Sherbin. Her bail bond was set at $50,000, with 10 percent postable.

According to State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch, the charges stem from events of Sept. 19, 2009. Hiemenz arrived at Garrett County Memorial Hospital with a deceased baby boy, claiming she had miscarried and had not known of her pregnancy until delivering the child.

Evidence collected during the investigation by Maryland State Police led to the death being deemed a homicide by the Medical Examiner.



"HOW SWEET IT IS!" for Southern High School fans that their wrestling team brought home from College Park on Saturday a second straight 1A/2A Maryland team championship. The Rams soundly defeated grapplers representing 68 other schools throughout the state, with second-place Glenelg finishing more than 30 points behind. While only five Rams qualified for the state event, four of them won individual state titles and one placed second to amass plenty of team points for the championship. Pictured from left are: Davey Stewart, 103-pound champion; Jakob "Bubba" Scheffel, 160-pound champion; Coach Dave Taylor; George "Brutus" Scheffel, 152-pound champion; and Lex Ozias, 140-pound champion. Not present for the photo was 189-pound division runner-up Ryan Bennett. Brutus Scheffel made history by becoming only the fourth Maryland high school wrestler in history to win four individual state titles.

Bloomington, Swan Meadow, Dennett Road Elementary, and Crellin Elementary schools were recognized for their students' improvement on the tests. "The School Recognition Program allows us to shine a spotlight on the hard work of the staff and students as they meet increasingly difficult goals," said state superintendent Nancy S. Grasmick. "Maryland schools continue to be recognized as the nation's best, and the effort put forth in the classroom is the big reason for this success." Above, from left are Crellin principal Dana McCauley, board president Dr. Donald Forrester, Bloomington principal Connie Uphold, director of elementary education Barbara Baker, Dennett Road principal Gary Gallaway, coordinator of research, evaluation, and information Jim Morris, county school superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets, and Swan Meadow principal Randi Craig.

Employers, Job Seekers Gear Up For Garrett County Job Fair On March 25

Job seekers will be able to speak with more than 35 different organizations at the upcoming Garrett County Job Fair, scheduled for Thursday, March 25, from 3 to 7 p.m. in the Garrett College Gymnasium. Employers will be available to speak about full-time, part-time, and summer positions as well as positions for those looking for a career change and those seeking a first-time job, including high school and college students. Registration will begin at 2:30 p.m.

"The job fair is open to the entire Garrett County community," says Judy Carbone, coordinator of career and transfer services at Garrett College and chair of the job fair planning committee. "Last year, more than 500 job seekers spoke with representatives from more than 50 hiring organizations, and the committee is working to see that this year's job fair is just as successful."

Companies that are currently registered to attend include Adventure Sports Center International (ASCI); Beitzel Corporation; Bill's Marine Service; ClosetMaid; Comfort Keepers; Deep Creek Lake Recreation Area (MD Department of Natural Resources); Deep Creek Marina; Enterprise Rent-A-Car; Fechheimer; FCI – Cumberland/Federal Bureau of Prisons; First United Bank & Trust; Garrett College; Garrett County Memorial Hospital; Government Contracts Consultants; Itezz; Jacobs Petroleum Products Inc.; Laurel Highlands River Tours; Maryland Army National Guard; Morningstar Inc.; Moran Manor & Devlin Manor; MuttWorks; Nemacolin Woodlands Resort; Oakland Nursing & Rehabilitation Center; Railey Mountain Lake Vacations; Smiley's LLC; Sycamore.US Inc.; Taylor-Made Deep Creek Lake Vacations; White Water Adventures; Will O' the Wisp Resort; and WMD Radiowerks Broadcasting.

Jobs that need to be filled at these companies include supervisors and managers, tellers and bank associates, office and data entry clerks, customer service representatives, hospitality staff members, outdoor and adventure enthusiasts, naturalists, restaurants workers, hospital and other health care workers, correctional institute staff, computer technicians, welders and machine operators, sales representatives, and more. A full list of participating employers can be found on the job fair web site at www.garrettcollege.edu/events/jobfair.

The number of registered employers is down slightly from last year.

"Our tagline for this year's fair is 'This Year, More Than Ever, You Can't Wait for Opportunity to Knock' because this is an extremely competitive job market," says Carbone. "In order to have the best chances of success, job seekers must be proactive and take advantage of every opportunity to make connections with employers and make the best possible impression."

According to Carbone, job seekers will increase their chances of success at the job fair by being well-prepared. She encourages job seekers to do the following: "Write a professional resume that presents you as a qualified applicant for your target position."

"Employers appreciate and often expect being handed a resume that demonstrates your qualifications, including past experiences, education, skills, and accomplishments," says Carbone. "Job seekers who come to the job fair without a resume may find themselves at a disadvantage and most likely will not be seen as favorably as those who do have resumes."

A handout on writing effective resumes can be found on the job fair web site.

Job seekers can have their resumes reviewed by professional employment consultants at the job fair. Although it would be too late to make any revisions before meeting with job fair employers, it would be an opportunity for job seekers to improve their resumes for future use.

"Review the list of employers who will be participating in the Job Fair," said Carbone. "Identify your must see employers, and research each using the Internet and other resources available in the library or at one of the organizations sponsoring the Job Fair.

"Knowing about the employer organization can help you better answer questions they pose to you, and show that you are enthusiastic about the possibility of working for them." Links to the employer web sites are available online at the job fair web site.

Carbone also recommends that job seekers plan in advance to make a good, professional impression. One way to do this is to wear an outfit that is professional. At the very least, dress in clean, business casual attire, says Carbone. "Every year, some job seekers come to fair in clothes that are dirty or are far more appropriate for a day hiking in the woods. Employers often are left with the impression that these job seekers are not serious about finding employment."

Other tips and suggestions may be found at the job fair web site by downloading the "Making the Most of the Garrett County Job Fair" brochure.

Although space is limited, business owners may still register for the fair. Participating employers will be offered display space, including a table, chairs, and a sign with the company name. The fair is open to any employer who is expecting to hire people within the next few months, whether full time, part time, summer, entry level, or experienced. Space will then available until March 24 or until all spaces have been reserved. Also, access to electrical outlets will be available on a first come, first served basis.

"We are up to just over 35 employers now," said Carbone, "and we are prepared to host a well-organized and well-attended event and hope that other businesses will consider joining us. Space is limited and is expected to be reserved quickly."

The job fair is being sponsored by Garrett College, the Garrett County One-Stop Career Center, Western Maryland Consortium, WMD Radiowerks Broadcasting (104.5 'KHJ/92.3 The Train/1050-am WMSG), and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce.

For additional information, persons may contact Carbone at 301-387-3046, by e-mail at judy.carbone@garrettcollege.edu, or by visiting the web site at www.garrettcollege.edu/-events/jobfair.

O'MALLEY'S STAFFERS VISIT CO. TO ASSESS STORM DAMAGE – Three staff members from Governor Martin O'Malley's office came to Garrett County Friday to survey the effects of the recent winter storms. The three met county commissioner Fred Holliday and MEMA (Maryland Emergency Management Agency) representative Erica Mowbray in Grantsville. During their hour-long tour, the staffers asked Holliday to stop several times so they could take photos of the significant snowfall. The staffers are shown above. Ashley Valis is next to the snowbank, having her photo taken by Josh Russin (far left) and Izzy Patoka (center). This picture was taken on O'Brien Road off of Route 495. After their tour, the three attended a meeting in Allegany County for Western Region (Washington, Allegany, and Garrett counties) elected officials and emergency management personnel to learn about possible reimbursement from FEMA related to costs incurred during the storms. Representatives from Garrett's municipalities attended, as well as county and state government personnel. A panel composed of officials from FEMA, MEMA, O'Malley's office, and the Maryland Insurance Administration addressed the group. Photo by Erica Mowbray.

Two Drivers Charged With DUI By GCSO

Two men were arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies this past weekend. Both are charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and related charges. The following incidents are unrelated.

Deputies located a vehicle on Garrett Highway that was involved in an unreported motor vehicle accident early Friday morning. The driver was identified as Jason Finch, 28, Oakland. Investigation revealed that Finch had lost control of his 2003 Volkswagen and impacted a snow bank located on the shoulder of the roadway.

Further investigation found him to be driving under the influence. He was also found to be in possession of a glass smoking pipe containing suspected burnt marijuana. He is charged with DUI, driving while impaired, possession of marijuana, and possession of CDS paraphernalia. He was taken into custody to await a bond hearing.

A vehicle was stopped on Sunday by deputies on Third Street, Oakland, after it was observed swerving and crossing the center line. The driver was identified as Donald Douglas Odell, 44, Berkeley Springs, W.Va. Investigation revealed him to be intoxicated. He is charged with DUI, DUI per se, DWI, and failing to drive right of center. He was taken into custody to await a bond hearing.

Woman Charged With Protective Order Violation

Garrett County sheriff's deputies arrested a woman at a Dennett Road residence after it was learned she was in violation of a protective order. Shavon Lynn Saylor, 27, had reportedly committed a violation against the victim of the protective order. She was taken to the Garrett County Jail to await a bond hearing.

A total of $660 was raised. From left are Regina Roberts, Chelsie Murray, Cameron Upton, and Lane Savage. Students also took part in the "Jump Rope for Heart" program and learned about the heart and physical activities that promote a healthy heart. They jumped rope and brought in donations in the amount of $1,583, which was given to the American Heart Association. Two Charged After Search Is Executed At Garrett Dorms

The March 4 arrests of two Garrett College students were recently announced by state's attorney Lisa Welch, spokesperson for the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force.

Members of the task force responded to the college dorms for a drug complaint last week, which resulted in a search and seizure warrant executed at one of the residence hall dorm rooms. A quantity of marijuana and paraphernalia were located in the room.

Terrance Keith Snowden, 19, Baltimore, and Quran Ali Muhamad Swiggett, 19, Washington, D.C., are both charged with possession of marijuana and possession of CDS paraphernalia. Each was released from the Garrett County Jail on personal recognizance after appearing before a District Court commissioner.

Student Survey To Be Conducted At Secondary Schools

A student survey will be conducted in the middle and high schools during the week of March 29 by the Garrett County Health Department. This survey will use the Youth Risk Behavior Survey (YRBS), a national survey developed by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in 1990 to monitor areas of health risk for youth and young adults. It was previously conducted statewide in Maryland in 2007.

The survey is intended to assist local agencies with obtaining various state and federal grants and will allow for comparison with the Maryland State results as well as with results from other states. The surveys are anonymous. No individual students or their responses will be identified. The survey will take about 30 to 45 minutes, and participation is voluntary.

A permission form will be sent home from the school to the parents/guardians of each student a few weeks prior to the survey. Copies of the survey will be available at the school office for review, as well as on the health department web site indicated on the permission form. If some parents/guardians do not wish for their child to participate, they will need to indicate so by checking on the permission form that they wish to "opt their child out" of the survey, and then sign and return the permission form to the school by the date indicated on the form.

Those with questions about the survey may contact Robert Stephens at the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7672 or Dr. Phillip Lauver at the Garrett County Board of Education at 301-334-8939.

Two Arrested By Deputies On Court Warrants

Garrett County sheriff's deputies made two arrests on the strength of court warrants this week. The following cases are unrelated.

Jamie Dee Stanton is charged with violation of probation stemming from a Circuit Court warrant obtained by the Department of Parole and Probation. He was taken to the Garrett County Detention Center to await a bond hearing.

Bill J. Oros, 40, Footdale, Pa., is charged with failure to appear in court. He was taken into custody to await a bond hearing.

Man Arrested By MSP On DUI Charges

A Pennsylvania man was arrested by Maryland State Police Wednesday after a traffic stop was executed on Chestnut Ridge Road.

Troopers stopped a 1992 GMC truck for a speeding violation, and upon contact with driver Jerry Williams, 68, Salisbury, it was determined that he was operating the vehicle under the influence of alcohol. He is charged with DUI and exceeding the posted speed limit. He was taken to the McHenry Barrack and then to the Garrett County Jail to await a bond hearing before a District Court commissioner. His bond was set at $1,500.

Beyond Outrageous...

Outrage doesn't begin to adequately describe the feeling experienced yesterday when it was learned that a particular piece of legislation proposed by Senator George Edwards and Delegate Wendell Beitzel failed in committee. The measure would have continued a subsidy to help Garrett County's family physicians who deliver babies continue to be able to afford to do so.

Garrett County Memorial Hospital is somewhat unique in that it does not have on its staff an obstetrician/gynecologist (and certainly not for the lack of trying to recruit one). So the delivery of babies is handled by several of our family physicians. A few years ago, the state mandated that family physicians who provide obstetrics must pay the same insurance premiums as do ob/gyn physicians, an amount that is simply unaffordable for most family physicians. Because of Garrett county's unusual situation, a measure was passed in 2007 to provide subsidy funds to these local physicians, but there was a three-year limit imposed on that subsidy.

Some readers may recall that this column was utilized more than once back in 2006 to demand some kind of action by the state lawmakers so that obstetric services could continue to be provided at Garrett Memorial. It was emphasized that, because local mothers-to-be would have to travel to either Cumberland or Morgantown to have their babies if the services were not provided at GCMH, the health and well-being of both mother and baby would be greatly jeopardized, particularly because of Garrett County's mountainous geography and extreme weather conditions.

To put this clearly into perspective, consider our winter weather conditions of late. How in the world would an in-labor patient even be able to get to Cumberland or Morgantown during the several blizzards that we have endured several times here on the mountaintop just in the past month? Even in good conditions, 50 miles is a long way to have to travel for this purpose, sometimes causing the driver to greatly exceed the posted speed limits. What is at stake here is, quite simply, the lives of our mothers and babies.

The really miserable kicker here is that it was lawyers who successfully brought about the defeat of this proposal. The basis for their concern is that the bill would cap the damages that one could pursue in a lawsuit against Garrett County physicians.

It's difficult to convey with mere words how much rage this selfish, callous rejection has instilled in this writer, who is a former chairman of GCMH's board of governors, father of four children, and grandfather of two. (Even italics don't do it.) As Delegate Beitzel stated, "The committees (House Judiciary and Senate Judicial Proceedings) put the interest of trial lawyers before Garrett County's babies and their mothers."

This is way beyond outrageous; it is downright evil, and we defy any member of these committees to dispute that assessment.

Letters to the Editor

Writers of letters to the editor are reminded that letters will not be published if they exceed 400 words, do not include contact information, and/or are deemed to be libelous.

To the Editor:

I am not a Garrett County resident; however, I wish to share a word of thanks for a Garrett Countian.

On the morning of March 3, I was traveling on Morgantown East Road in Arthur, W.Va., when my accelerator stuck and caused me to run off the road into a snow bank. This guy was coming down the mountain at the time, as he was unable to load his truck at the quarry because of the road conditions. He actually parked his truck in the road on the mountain and waited with me until another person came with a chain. He then proceeded to pull me out of that bank with his truck. I'm sorry I didn't get his name as there was a lot of confusion at the time.

Thanks once again!

To the Editor:

The voting citizens of Oakland went to City Hall on Monday to exercise their right to vote. I am disappointed that I was unable to file as an incumbent candidate for this election.

The fact that I missed the deadline date was definitely an oversight. However, I wish to thank all those persons who supported me by writing in my name on the ballot. My plans are to remain active in the council meetings by attending both regular and special sessions, continuing to raise my concerns through inquiry.

Recently I was sorting through some of my parents' scrapbooks and albums. The following is one of the entries that appeared in The Republican was written by my father, Hub, during his terms as mayor: "It is my belief that we will work together for the continuance of what is best for Oakland, for out of this belief are borne deeds and out of our deeds we form habits. Our habits create our character, and it is on our character that we build our destination. May we hold to the belief that our town is a great town."

I just wanted to share these words of wisdom and to again, thank you. Please include time in your schedules to attend council meetings, which are held the first Monday of every month.

To the Editor:

Having just spent some time watching Fox News, I felt like I needed to say a few things. Actually I wanted to punch the screen and utter some fairly nasty stuff to the blond bimbos that infest the Fox News organization.

Do they all have to be blond and wear short dresses to qualify as news people? I know that's a bit trivial, but it speaks to a mindset that engulfs that place. It's not news. It's some kind of weird entertainment for people who really don't want the news. The Fox News message is fear that everything is going wrong and it's Obama's fault. There can be no good news. It never fails that they can twist any good news into bad. It's no wonder their viewers are in the dumps. All they get is bad news. And the Republicans aren't helping things going around all hang-dog and bitter. They have nothing to offer but more nothing.

Where was all this bad news when the Texas Fly Boy was in power? What about his huge growth of government? His huge deficits? His bank bailout? His squandered budget surplus? His no W.M.D.? His off-the-books financing of the Iraq War? His gift to the drug companies of Medicare Part D, passed by reconciliation? The lowest poll numbers by a president in some time? You get the point. Where was the bunch of hypocrites at Fox when all this was going on?

Whoever won the 2008 presidential election was in for some tough going. Would McCain/Palin have done any better? How quickly we forget how close we were to losing a lot more than we did. We are back from the brink, but we have lots more to do. We can only get this ship of state moving by hoisting the anchor and running up the sails. Just sitting in the harbor moaning and groaning gets us nowhere.

America's greatness was not born of naysayers and fear. We need to live up to our own expectations and get on with the future.

To the Editor:

The field of social work has come a long way from the days of the friendly visitor in the 1950s. I have been a social worker for 43 years and have watched this evolution with pride.

Social workers are dedicated to helping families and individuals resolve problems that prohibit them from living a happy and productive life. Social workers also have a role in resolving conflicts and problems in the business industry, health care, the court system, and in law enforcement. As a result, the field of social work is very challenging and provides a great deal of diversity.

For me the greatest satisfaction comes from knowing that I have helped someone, protected a child, and served as an advocate for victims. Social workers do make a difference.

DID YOUR DOG WRITE THIS LETTER?

A Special Message from the Garrett County Humane Society

While we receive many calls from people who want the Garrett County Humane Society (GCHS) to investigate cases of animal cruelty and neglect, we have never in our 26-year history received a letter from an animal! But recently, while the snow was falling day after day, we received the following:

Dear GCHS,

Please help me. I am a very nice dog that lives at XXXXX where my owner keeps me in a pen with a small dog house in his yard. I am neglected and not well cared for. I am tired of being left in the cold and snow without any water or food. My owner is not home often and the water that he does give me freezes on the lonely cold nights. I have little food and am cold all the time. With all this snow I do not have enough room to go to the bathroom and have to sleep outside in the cold, below-zero nights because I am neglected. I bark until 1 a.m., tired, hoping my owner or someone will save me from starving and freezing. I am a nice dog and would like someone to love me and take care of me. Living in this prison without care, water, or food is not humane. Please rescue me and help me find a warm home."

Nice Dog Needs Help

The Garrett County Humane Society receives more than 20 calls per month regarding animals that are in distress, danger, or neglectful situations. In 2009, the GCHS answered over 200 calls. Each call is followed up by a visit from a humane officer who investigates the facts, takes pictures, and writes a report. If the facts confirm the complaint, the officer leaves a form instructing the owners on what must be done to bring their animal's care into compliance with Maryland law. Follow-up is in the form of a recheck, which can be followed by animal removal or judiciary action. When we visited the "writer" of the above letter, we found an affectionate female retriever-type dog who — from the deep snow surrounding her cage — had not been fed or watered for a couple of days. From the initial investigation, the officer found that the dog had grounds for writing the letter.

We are working with the dog's owner to improve the situation. However, the animal's letter provided us with an opportunity to point out that this winter has been a harsh one for everyone. It has been exceptionally hard for all the animals in the county, many of whom did not make it through the winter months.

Dogs are "pack animals" and never live alone by choice. Of the 157 breeds, not one was bred to be tied to a doghouse or live alone in a kennel. When a dog is isolated from its pack (who is its human family), it feels as though it is being banished for wrongful behavior. The dog will try every day to be good enough to earn its way back into the pack. A dog that is kept in isolation sees every day as a failure because it relates its situation to solitary confinement, the cruelest punishment there is for a social animal.

The GCHS would like to ask you: Did your dog write this letter?

Please make sure your dog has shelter, protection from the elements, fresh, clean water all day, and nutritious food. These are required by Maryland law.

The project resulted in the airport length being increased by 2,000 feet. Construction there included a new 50-foot parallel taxiway, 24 airplane T-hangars, terminal and equipment buildings, and water/sewer lines. A new trackless vehicle, an upgraded AWOS (automated weather observing system), a new card reader system, and new security system were also added.

Funding came from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), about 82 percent, or $14.4 million; Garrett County, about 14 percent, or $2.4 million; Maryland Aviation Administration (MAA), about 4 percent, or $691,000; and Federal Emergency Management Agency, about .002 percent, or $37,500.

Kelley said he compiled some before-construction and after-construction statistics, which indicate the expansion costs were a "very good investment" for the county.

In 2004, total sales at the airport amounted to $28,889, compared to $183,476 last year, according to Kelley.

"So, you can see the large jump in total sales," he told the commissioners.

The average number of flights per day also increased. In '04, there were 4.55 per day, compared to 7.85 last year when the expansion project was completed.

Kelley also noted there was a "large jump" in jet A fuel and avgas sales. In '04, there were 8,465 gallons sold for a total income of $22,628. Last year, 24,349 gallons were sold, garnering the county $96,078.

More hangars at the airport also means more income for the county. In '04, the county had only four hangars and received $3,760 in rent. Last year's income was $76,806.

Kelley noted that 18 of the 24 new hangars are currently rented by pilots. Up until last October, he said, all the hangars were in use, but the economy "went south" and people started selling their planes.

The next airport project may involve excavating the rest of the hill behind the terminal building. Some of the soil would be used to fill in a low area at the end of the runway, Mullich said.

With the hill removed, about 2,000 square feet would be available behind the terminal, enabling a new jet parking area and more hangars to be constructed.

Mullich said capital money for excavation and construction would not be included in his department's Fiscal Year 2011 budget. He said excavating the hill would cost about $5,000, while the construction, paving, and other aspects would be "a couple million."

He and the commissioners then discussed the possibility of FAA and MAA grant funding.

The commissioners will hold their next public meeting on Tuesday, March 23, beginning at 9 a.m. at the courthouse in Oakland.

nal 2-foot waiver.

"Our goal is to get the lake to a level where it can safely accommodate the snow melt, thus avoiding high water and pressure on the dam," said David Barnhart, general manager for Brookfield's Mid-America Operations. "We've agreed with MDE to do all we can to lower the lake further."

Barnhart added that public safety is a top priority for all involved. Brookfield, MDE and DNR continue to advise users on or near Deep Creek Lake to be observant for changing conditions.

"With the water level being drawn away under the ice cover, and this week's spring-like temperatures, we continue to remind users of the surface of Deep Creek Lake to be extremely cautious," said Carolyn Mathews, manager of the Deep Creek Lake Recreation Area.

She added that unseen hazards "always exist when recreating on naturally-formed ice."

The officials said that lower water levels and warmer temperatures may present the following dangers:

- Ice that cracks or suddenly shifts as additional weight is applied;
- Ice that shifts, lifts, and/or settles, creating unexpected ridges;
- Ice slabs that break off near the shoreline, creating open water between stable interior ice and the shore.

Because many people are potentially affected by the lowering of the water level, MDE is requiring that public notice be provided to the local media. For more information on the lake's level, persons may visit www.deepcreekhydro.com.

Man Receives Five Years For Drug Possession

A 26-year-old Keyser, W.Va., man pleaded guilty last week in Garrett County Circuit Court to possession with intent to distribute marijuana. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced William Andrew Davis to five years in the Division of Corrections, with all but 18 months suspended.

This sentence will be served consecutively to a nine-month one that Davis received in Allegany County in February for another drug charge.

He was arrested and charged by Maryland State Police (MSP) in September 2009. The vehicle Davis was driving was stopped at the ramp onto I-68 from Chestnut Ridge Road for an equipment violation. During routine checks, the trooper learned there was an arrest warrant out for Davis in the Allegany County case.

The trooper also smelled the odor of marijuana coming from the car. A search revealed approximately four pounds of marijuana, the state's attorney said.

In an unrelated case, Larry Allen Coddington, 21, Oakland, pleaded guilty to a fourth degree sex offense. Sherbin sentenced him to one year in the Garrett County Jail and suspended the sentence.

Coddington will be on probation for two years, with conditions that he have no contact with the victim in this case and that he pay a $500 fine and the costs of the case.

He was arrested by investigators with the Garrett County Sheriff's Office in October after it was determined he had an inappropriate relationship with an underage person in September.

In other court proceedings this week, Lester Eugene McClintock, 37, Confluence, Pa., pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless endangerment. Related charges were dismissed upon his plea.

Sherbin then sentenced him to three years in the Division of Corrections. The sentence was suspended, and McClintock was placed on three years of probation, with conditions that include having no contact with the victim and paying the costs of the case.

In August 2009, McClintock was arrested and charged by MSP who responded to a domestic altercation in the Accident area. During the dispute, McClintock had displayed a handgun to various persons who had gathered at the residence and at one time pointed it at his girlfriend, the state's attorney said.

Also in Circuit Court last week, Derrick Lamar Davis, 32, Frederick, was found not guilty of third degree sex offense and second degree assault following a jury trial.

Davis was arrested last April after investigators gathered information allegedly identifying him as the person engaged in sexual activity with an underage person at an apartment in Oakland in December 2008.

In an unrelated case, Wayne Francis Crenko, 21, Bethlehem, Pa. pleaded guilty to driving a motor vehicle on a suspended out-of-state license and possession of drug paraphernalia. Related charges against him were not prosecuted by the state's attorney.

Crenko received a six month sentence, which was suspended, and was fined $500 for the driving violation. For the possession charge, he was fined another $500 and was placed on two years' unsupervised probation.

The charges stem from a traffic stop for a speeding violation conducted by a Maryland State Police trooper on I-68 last September.

In other proceedings, Aaron Lee Wilhelm, 26, Frostburg, received two months' unsupervised probation for a speeding violation that occurred on Rt. 495 last September. An MSP trooper clocked Wilhelm's vehicle traveling 59 miles per hour in a 50 mph zone, according to court records.

Also in Circuit Court last week, charges against Andrew James Prins, 23, Swanton, and Shannon Marie Davis, 21, Oakland, were not prosecuted by the state's attorney. The two defendants had been charged with first degree burglary, theft over $500 in value, conspiracy to commit first degree burglary, and conspiracy to commit theft over $500 in value.

Prins and Davis had been accused of entering a home in the Gorman area and taking a laptop computer, iPod, cell phone, and other items in June 2009.

Liz McDowell To Be Speaker At Garden Club Mtg.

The Mountain Laurel Garden Club will meet on Tuesday, March 16, at the Santa Fe Grille, McHenry, at 10:30 a.m.

Liz McDowell, coordinator of the Western Mountains Chapter of the Maryland Native Plant Society (MNPS), will be the special guest, and will discuss why switching to native plants and using conservation landscaping techniques is crucial to the long-term health of the environment.

McDowell has more than 30 years of experience in education and the environment. She earned a master of science degree in wildlife management at the Appalachian Laboratory at Frostburg University in 1983.

Her various positions over the years include park naturalist and resource biologist for the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, environmental specialist for the Maryland Department of the Environment, science teacher at Northern Garrett High School, and owner-operator of Elk Ridge NatureWorks. She currently serves on the boards of the Allegheny Highlands Conservancy and Savage River Watershed Association, and assists with the Frostburg University Arboretum Task Force.

McDowell plans to discuss how gardeners can play a key role in maintaining regional biodiversity, even as habitat is lost and exotic species invade the most wild and rural areas of the local region. She said she will also highlight the many native alternatives to the exotic invasive plants commonly used for landscaping in western Maryland.

The meeting is open to both men and women. Members will be called in advance, and guests are asked to make lunch reservations by calling Ginni Neff at 301-334-7387.

The Mountain Laurel Garden Club is a member of the National Garden Clubs Inc., the Central Atlantic Region, and the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland Inc. Affiliated clubs provide education, resources, and national networking opportunities for members, as well as promote gardening, floral design, and civic and environmental responsibility, a spokesperson said.

Driver Injured After Hitting Bridge With Side Of Vehicle

Garrett County sheriff's deputies responded to a single-vehicle accident with injuries in Bloomington on Saturday.

Investigation revealed that Timothy D. Wilt, 44, Kitzmiller, had been traveling on Maryland Highway, when he hit the edge of a bridge with the passenger front side of the 1995 Dodge Intrepid he was operating. He then overcorrected and hit the front driver's side on the opposite side of the road. Wilt was treated by Tri-Towns EMTs and was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Tri-Towns Fire Department also responded to the scene.

Charges may be filed pending further investigation.

CHARLES T. O'HAVER

Charles Thomas "Butch" O'Haver, 63, Westernport, died at his home on Monday, Feb. 16, 2010.

Born May 4, 1946, on the Weber property, south of Oakland, he was a son of the late Joseph "Ted" and Lena Herman O'Haver. His friends knew him as "Charlie."

Charlie grew up and spent his early years on the H. Weber & Sons property where he was born. He attended Oakland Elementary School, the old Oakland High School Annex, and Dennett Road School, where he enjoyed taking part in programs and festivals. One of his favorites was the 1957 Spring Music Festival, which featured Charlie's solo "Trees" by J. Kilmer, and his part in a version of "The Banana Boat Song."

He was a 1964 graduate of Southern High School, where he performed in many choral programs, best remembered for his outstanding performance of the lead character in The Music Man. He was a recipient of an Outstanding Students Achievement Award by the Oakland/Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club for his service and musical contributions within Southern High School and the community it serves that are too numerous to list. He appeared before various professional and civic organizations as a vocal soloist and was a member of local dance bands. His senior chorus teacher, the late Mrs. Carolyn Lambert-Wilt once stated, "Charles is one of the most talented students I have ever had the opportunity to teach."

Charlie worked weekends and after school at Flowers by Webers, doing whatever the job required, which earnings paid for piano lessons. In the fall of 1964 he went to work at WMSG Radio in Oakland as a part-time disc jockey, and later became the local news director.

In January 1968, he moved to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., where he worked in publishing and advertising. As art director for Caribbean Guide Travel Magazine, he traveled to several of the islands throughout the tropics. He also entertained as an organist in many well-known clubs in the Ft. Lauderdale area. He moved to Ft. Myers, Fla., in 1979 and continued working in newspaper and magazine publication. In Ft. Myers, he also worked in summer theatre, appearing in several stage productions.

In the late 1980s he returned north, and settled in Berkeley Springs, W.Va., where he operated a variety store. In 1989, he relocated to Westernport and worked in retail and restaurant work until 1996, when diabetes and heart problems forced him to slow down.

Charlie was very interested in genealogy and had recorded extensive family history on both sides of his family. He worked hard to help organize the O'Haver Family Reunion in 1999, which has successfully continued and has grown each year. He had also compiled The O'Haver Family & Friends Cookbook, Vols. 1, 2, and 3, and had begun gathering information for a future Vol. 4.

Charlie will be especially remembered in the local area for his outstanding portrayal of Captain John Hanson McNeill in the 1991 outdoor drama McNeill's Rangers at Larenim Park Amphitheatre in Burlington, W.Va. Charlie was a great-grandson of a member of McNeill's Rangers, and after his performance, he was honored to be introduced to and congratulated by a grandson of Captain McNeill.

His hobbies included going to flea markets, flowers, his vegetable garden, and his large record collection. He loved to cook and enjoyed making gifts and treats for his many friends and relatives. His pets were a very important part of Charlie's family, and over the years there were many dogs, cats, cockatiels, and parakeets, and in recent months as his health failed, he had expressed concern that his cat Bo would have a good home.

He loved traveling around with other family members to cemeteries, searching for genealogical information, clearing overgrown areas, and placing a flower on a long neglected grave of one of his ancestors. He took pride in his ancestry, and always encouraged the interests of others in their family histories.

He looked forward to the several family reunions each summer, arriving with a large picnic basket, camera, notebook full of photos and information, and the hope of meeting yet another descendant in his family tree. Charlie's friendly personality and entertainment will be sadly missed at all these occasions.

Charlie is survived by two sisters, Carrie Martin, Monongah, W.Va., and Diana Warnick and husband Delmos, Oakland; one brother, Dennis Butler and wife Dorothy, Pataskala, Ohio; several nieces and nephews; four great-nephews; four great-nieces; one great-great-niece; and his cat, Bo.

Besides his parents, he was preceded in death by his brother-in-law, Jim Martin, in 2006; his best friend Roy Michael in 2005; one niece; and one great-niece.

Charlie had chosen cremation as his final disposition.

Arrangements were handled through Boal Funeral Home, Westernport. Because of severe weather conditions, a memorial service will be scheduled at a later date.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

It looks like this long, hard winter is just about finished! Even though I still have 10-foot piles of snow. But the last couple days were pretty warm and sunny. It looks pretty good to me, and there is no snow in the forecast.

Caitlin and Mere and some friends went to West Virginia's cross-country ski place, White Grass at Canaan Valley. They had a wonderful time, I can well imagine. But I was sad to learn that their spring break is not until April, even though real winter looks like its finished. I talked to a friend in Virginia and she said she is expecting some daffodils to sprout any day now.

I was a little surprised to get a phone call the other evening from Bea Buckel. She, like all the University of Maryland crowd, was so excited and happy about our Terrapins' big victory over the Duke Blue Devils. When any team beats the seemingly unbeatable Duke, it is a big day. And I think Maryland and Duke are neck-and-neck to win the championship of the regular season. But last weekend, Duke really beat up another ACC powerhouse, the North Carolina Tar Heels.

I asked Bea about wedding plans for her and Charlie. But it turns out that a major hurdle appeared. Her fiancé Charlie hoped to sell his house, but the big snow down there caused major damage to it. A big ice dam on its roof caused a lot of leaking.

I still have some big icicles on the outside of my picture window in the living room. I hate to think what is above them.

I heard a lot of people voice concern about flooding if we get a fast melt. That's possible in places like Sang Run and Friendsville, and of course worst of all is the Casselman River valley. I never heard of any flooding in Bittinger, but down there below Jennings they always have some, even after a normal winter. That is quite low ground.

Anyway, I am so happy that I am not still snowed in. I hired a boy, Dalton Bender, to clear off the huge amount of snow on my deck and ramp. He did a great job. At last, I can open my front door without any problems. And thank goodness my lane is very clear. But my little pickup truck that used to belong to my mother is still totally buried.

Thank goodness my cousin Courtney Englar braved the deep snow around my bird feeder, so it is full for the first time in a long time. And I saw several birds near it. That it something I did not see for quite a while.

When my cousin Nadine was still around, she really wanted a DVD player for my television. But Rodney thought it would be better to buy a new television with DVD included. He found a flat screen high definition one, which was fine until I needed a new satellite TV receiver. I got one. Then I found out that I couldn't operate it.

Last Tuesday, Pastor Randy Richardson and his wife Cindy dropped by on their way home from Cherry Hill's Bible study. They said they probably would be unable to help out with my remote problem, because they are pretty technically challenged. Cindy said they went about a month without any picture on their television. But then one of their sons stopped by, and voila, he just pushed some buttons and they had TV again.

Randy said he would try, and suddenly, I had both picture and sound! He gave the credit to the power of prayer.

At last, some powerful Islam clerics launched an all-out war against terrorists. And some polls suggest that citizens of various Islamic nations go along with their religious leader to reject terrorist activity. Maybe this trend will make some difference. I hope so. Because every day it gets more and more clear that military action is not a viable solution.

Think about one ugly fact: We have in the USA 1,500 hate groups! How can we call ourselves a Christian nation? Or a conservative nation? These groups advocate the killing of various kinds of people, including African-Americans, immigrants, and probably also liberals and homosexuals. How cozy that many groups get together and plot and finalize plans about killing harmless people.

And they call themselves "patriot groups." What a load! They do not stand for real American values. I suspect that quite a few members of these groups probably view themselves as good church-going Christians and defenders of America.

I heard a story that made no sense. Even people who oppose higher taxes wouldn't really support the plan in Michigan to release early thousands of murderers and rapists to save money.

Only minutes later I heard about the area in California where they found some pieces of one missing girl with the DNA of a released sex offender living in that area. He only served five years of his 10-year sentence for a rape.

But it is possible that someone who committed a very minor drug offense in Garrett County would spend longer behind bars.

The mentally ill man who shot at the Pentagon bought a gun on the West Coast and headed to the East Coast. Most states have laws to keep a patient in a mental hospital if he is believed to present danger either to himselves or other people.

It is nonsense to advocate state-based gun laws instead of federal laws. And it's a difficult issue trying to better deal with mental patients, which covers a wide range of persons.

I myself suffer from severe depression. But anyone who went through what happened to me and is not depressed must be crazy. I don't care if I couldn't buy a gun, because I have nothing I would like to do with it. Is freedom to carry guns really a terribly important part of American freedom?

Some extremists say that our president is some kind of Nazi, and no one really wants a Hitler-figure as our head of state. Hitler was the embodiment of evil. Many of his citizens believed that he would keep them safe and prosperous. Well, yes, the German economy did get a big boost by the building up after World War II, which brought jobs, jobs, jobs.

I'm ashamed to admit that I was a very small benefactor of that German economic boom. I once knew a very nice man belonging to the family that owned Mercedes Benz, which built most of Germany's banks.

When my wallet was stolen at a horse show and I lost almost a whole week's income, that very wealthy man got his wallet out and handed me a brand new $100 bill. Ziegfried was a very rich person who was also quite generous.

One top stable started to bring guys from Mexico (illegal aliens) to care for the show horses. I doubt if Ziggy would have given them $100 because they happened to get robbed.

At the top of the horse-show pyramid in America are a few national and international riders who own and run their personal stables. Those are only for the wealthiest riders. My closest friend in the horse world, Betty, got a job in the most successful family-owned stable, a family with three sons close to Olympic riders, financed by parents who were doctors in New York City.

They did have a nice facility, just outside Manhattan. You could see the Empire State Building from their barn, which held half dozen international jumpers. I really can't even begin to estimate the value of their equine operation. But given the quality of the real estate, it must be mind-boggling. Add the equine talents, with each one having a six-figure plus value. They also had all the best equipment, including a whole bunch of saddles that each cost thousands of dollars.

Well, I imagine it was worth more than all of Garrett County's agriculture business. What for? Not just lots of trophies, ribbons, or prize money. The ultimate goal of at least one son was to be a member of the USA Olympic equestrian team. In 1980, one son did get named to the Olympic squad. But that was the Moscow Olympics, which the USA boycotted.

Naturally, they wanted the very best "help," which was my buddy Betty, and a handful of lower-skilled workers to do the less demanding work like mucking the stalls. When it came to the care of their valuable and talented equines, they could only trust that job to the cream of the hundreds of horse-crazy young people employed by hundreds of show horse businesses.

That top layer of cream consisted of maybe about 25 or so who were highly experienced in horse care, riding, and handling. They were very trustworthy, and had enough of a personal appeal to be almost part of the family. Most were well-educated.

Among these people were a couple of unusually beautiful as well as skilled girls who had a very close personal relationship with their employers (not me). But I got in on the fast track to that top level of cream by my resume featuring the accomplishments Joey and I had, including a highly prized "B" rating in the USA Pony Club.

I applied to a top professional farm in Ohio, owned by the CEO of Cleveland Electric and Power. His daughter, who although a pretty good rider, was not world class. She was pretty successful in major horse shows in the hunter division, but not as a jumper.

Her daddy's big money got for her several former national champions as instructors. He also bought the top international prospect for jumper, the Cardinal, for which I believe he paid three million dollars, plus a former member of the USA equestrian team, to be the trainer.

When I first started working there, Bogey was a beautiful dark brown, almost black, with a lovable personality. He quickly became my favorite. The other one was a lovely gray thoroughbred, unfortunately with a broken knee. I spent many hours treating it and trying to get rid of the massive swelling in it.

I don't know whether it eventually went away, but I doubt it. No matter what I did to it, nothing helped, including dozens of whirlpool treatments, massages, and using all kinds of topical medicines.

But the improvement to Bogey's well-being was hard to miss. He seemed happier and more content, and his coat became positively sensational. The big boss, the trainer Bernie, passed Bogey's stall and asked, "Who is taking care of this one?" I was a little scared to admit that it was me. But there was nothing wrong; he had just noticed how wonderful he was looking.

That was my first big step upward in the hierarchy of the staff. The higher you climb, the better the class of horses in your string. So Singapore, perhaps the country's best jumper, joined my string.

The worst thing about the life of an elite show horse is that he spends almost all of his time confined in a 12x12-foot box stall, which is pretty boring. It resulted in some behavior problems, like pacing endlessly and being nervous when he was ridden. Singapore was regarded as a "head case."

A popular slogan from the Vietnam War was "Question authority." Notice that the first word is "question," not defy all authority. We always must remember that our leaders are chosen by ourselves, and that their authority is legitimate and deserves some respect.

That is what I used to tell my students: If they had some doubt or question

Adorable Adoptables

THESE TWO MELLOW CANINES WOULD MAKE GREAT COMPANIONS, according to a Garrett County Humane Society spokesperson. At left is a sad looking Rottweiler-hound mix. "He's so laid back and sweet," the spokesperson noted. "At right is a black Lab. This older girl was given up by her owner who had health issues. She misses her owner and home; so please come in and meet her. All the dog kennels at the animal shelter were filled last week, so HART took out many to rescues, which made much needed room for more dogs. There are also several nice cats up for adoption. Go to Petfinder.com and view the hundreds of homeless animals (from large to small) in the tri-state area. Just enter what kind of pet, what breed or size, and your zip code to find what you are looking for." For more information, persons may call the shelter at 301-334-3553. Located along Oakland Sang Run Road, the facility is open Monday through Friday.

Oakland Farmers Attend Mideast Dairy Conference

Oakland area dairy farmers Terry and Jill Hauser recently attended the Dairy Farmers of America Inc. (DFA) Mideast Area Young Cooperator (YC) Conference in Champion, Pa. The Hausers were among 46 DFA YCs who attended the event, which provided the young producers with information about the industry and the cooperative, among other topics.

The Hausers milk 200 Holstein cows on 500 acres with Terry's parents, Jerry and Barbara Hauser. Terry and Jill are third-generation dairy farmers.

"DFA YC conferences are dynamic and engaging learning programs," said Heather Schofield, communications manager for DFA's Mideast Area. "Our young farmers are extraordinary individuals and share a wealth of information by participating in the interactive education sessions and collaborating with their peers."

At the conference, the Hausers attended presentations on a variety of topics, including communicating effectively, using the dairy check-off program, and being an advocate for the dairy industry to legislators.

DFA's YC program fosters interaction among dairy farmers ages 18 to 40 who are involved as owners or partners, or hold distinct management responsibilities on a DFA-member dairy operation.

The program is focused on personal and professional growth, learning the latest innovations in the industry, and networking with peers.

"Through meetings and exposure to their industry organizers, YCs become leaders and ambassadors for DFA and the industry, enabling them improve their industry, their cooperative, and their lives," said Kristi Bell, media relations manager, Dairy Farmers of America.
